THE SMARTEST FASHIONS OF WELL-DRESSED FOLK

At a Birthday Party

ELEANOR DEAR:

Yesterday, as you know, was Dorothy's birthday. We gave her a party and, as it was so near Halloween, made the decorations fit that occasion and the entertainment a true Halloween frolic.

The kiddies all had such a jolly time, and I must confess Edith and I enjoyed it quite as much as the little folk. It recalled so vividly our girlhood days. Jessie Day came over in the afternoon to help us decorate the house and make the refreshment table ready. Bob made us a jack-o'-lantern from a big yellow pumpkin, and that occupied the center, with all sorts of favors grouped about it.

Jessie had on such a pretty frock, I know you will want to hear about it... The material was crepe meteore of a lovely water-green shade. The bodice is made with kimono sleeves having little folded-back cuffs edged with a frill, and opens over a wide vest of lace cut with a round neck.

Frills of the material edge each side of the bodice, going over the shoulders and forming a deep V in the back. Bodice and skirt, which is cut with a short, round train, join with a narrow girdle; and a tunic, shorter in the front than in the back, is edged with a narrow frill. This style of tunic and the frills of material are distinctly new notes on fall gowns, which, my dear, I hope you will make use of in making your indoor dresses.

Edith wore a perfect love of a frock, built of soft rose-colored silk, having a short-waisted bodice gathered in at the girdle line. Three-quarter-length sleeves were finished with lace cuffs and a broad pleated rever edged with lace added charm to the front. Tiny black satin-covered buttons were used with good effect on each side of the bodice and again on the sash girdle, which tied on the left side and hung to a point below the knee.

I was resplendent in my newest frock of lavender crepe de chine, cut over a one-piece pattern, with the bodice slashed each side of the front and inset with heavy ecru lace. A pointed collar finished the neck; the front formed a pointed bib that was trimmed in panel effect with buttons.

This panel was continued on the draped-tunic, which was cut to reveal a broad band of the lace. The skirt was cut very long all the way around and finished with a deep hem.

The party was a great success. I wish you could have been here to enjoy the fun with us. I shall expect a long letter from you soon. Lovingly, your sister,

MADGE

JUNGLE IS NOW LOCATED IN ENGLAND

Muckrakers Discover British Public Are Eating Dirt With Meat.

President's Announcement of Canal Work Arouses Interest.

(By PHILLIP EVERETT.)

LONDON, Oct. 28.—When some years ago Upton Sinclair, in his book "The Jungle," exposed to the world the filthy methods of American slaughter and packing houses, the people of England held their hands in horror and thanked the Lord that no such scandalous state of affairs would ever be tolerated in England. When pure food laws were adopted in America and other foreign countries the same people again felt thankful that they were living in a country where honesty is the chief asset of every business man and where adulteration of food is unknown.

Since then a Pure Food and Health Society of Great Britain has been formed and has proved that nearly everything we eat is adulterated and now we are suddenly shocked at the discovery that what England needs most today is a British Sinclair to strike fear into the hearts of the men who handle our daily roast beef.

So serious are the discoveries made by the above named society in regard to the filthy conditions of most meat sold in Great Britain that the whole matter will be discussed in the House of Commons within the next week or two.

IF CONSUMER KNEW.

Alfred Moore, general secretary of the Pure Food and Health Society, said to me a few days ago:

"If the consumer knew of the manner in which the meat he eats is handled he would join a vegetarian society post haste. The conditions under which meat is handled in the markets and exposed for sale in nearly every town in England are too nauseating to describe in detail."

The contamination first begins in Liverpool and in slaughterhouses where, without any regard for cleanliness, men trample unchecked over the carcasses. From Liverpool meat is brought to the public market in London for the greater part in refrigerator vans. Consigned to private firms, it often comes in guards' vans. It is carried to the London markets in open vans, driven usually by uncouth persons, seated on the actual carcasses. The meat itself may be inadequately protected with muslin, but the neck is always exposed and the shinbone generally recovered.

The consumers are unblended by men in dirty smocks, and the carcasses are frequently stacked on an unswep floor. This state of affairs prevails at nearly every meat depot. There is great laxity at Manchester, Cardiff and Liverpool and Darlington. I myself have seen a man carry a newly killed pig, his head inside the body and resting against the neck, across the floor.

SOCIAL WORLD OF LONDON DUE TO BE QUIET

With King and Queen at Durbar "Whirl" Will Cease Whirling.

Seventh Super Dreadnaught Is Launched by British Government.

(Special to THE TRIBUNE by International News Service.)

LONDON, Oct. 28.—In the social world of London this winter things are likely to be rather dull, for, with the king and queen and their entourage at the Indian durbar, and a proper migration to Delhi of the members of the "upper ten" who are anxious to participate in the festivities and witness the interesting ceremony, there will be very few society people left to do much entertaining. Although the winter season is now particularly busy for court or tradespeople—the real bustle occurring in May, June and July—the flight of society from London will be felt for the next few months.

Those in the catering trade are likely to be most affected with business depression, but while caterers are complaining dressmakers are doing a record.

Some of the dresses which are being taken to India will more than satisfy the natives whose eyes are always attracted toward bright and bizarre colors.

FACTORY GIRLS STRIKE.

A strike of factory girls at Northampton, England, set off by the introduction of the bobbinette, has become serious.

The whole of the employees of the Brook Manufacturing Company, numbering 1200, have been locked out.

The King George V, Britain's seventh super-dreadnaught, has been successfully launched. The ship was christened by Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein at Portsmouth.

In her main features the new super-dreadnaught is similar to the Orion, now preparing for the pennant; but while the latter vessel was under construction several minor improvements suggested themselves, and these have been embodied in the new ship.

With the launch of the King George V the dreadnaught strength of the principal naval powers is as follows:

The authorities of the Louvre, spurred on, no doubt, by the outcry that had arisen over the loss of La Gioconda, have made a thorough exploration of the immense pile where so many national treasures are stored.

Some of the treasures are lost, but the search is not yet complete.

RESTORE OLD CITY ODD MONUMENT

DENVER, Colo., Oct. 28.—One of the most remarkable of the monuments under control of the national government, the Casa Grande, near Florence, Ariz., has been restored and repaired as far as possible and an effort will be made next year to provide better facilities for persons wishing to visit it.

Discovered in 1894 by Padre Kino, one of the missionaries sent to the new world by Spain, the Casa Grande is considered a typical structure of the aboriginal natives of the southwest, and it is the only structure mentioned by the early Spanish explorers that can be checked and interpreted down to the present day.

It was originally an extensive group of buildings and may have served as a considerable community as a place of defense against the wandering tribes of the desert—ancestors of the warlike Navajos and Apaches. The name Casa Grande, in Spanish meaning "great house," was applied originally to the large single structure standing in the southwest corner of the area covered by the entire collection of buildings. The total area is about sixty-five acres. Mounds and scattered debris show where the buildings stood.

BUILT LIKE A CEMENT HOUSE.

The building known as Casa Grande was one of the smallest of the structures but for some reason its walls remained in a much better state of preservation than the walls of the larger buildings. The walls rise to a height of twenty-five feet, while the interior walls are from twenty-eight to thirty feet high. The exterior of the building is in the rough, but the interior is smoothly finished. The outer walls are from three and one-half to five feet thick, and undoubtedly were used for defense. The interior walls are from three to four feet thick at the base. At the top all the walls taper to a thickness of two feet.

The measurements seldom agree, the joists are seldom straight, and these facts, in connection with the varying thickness of the walls, indicate that the building was constructed by a people with primitive ideas about architecture.

The building is well provided with doorways and other openings in pairs, one above the other. There are doorways from each room into each adjoining room, but the rooms of the middle tier can be entered only from the east. This has given rise to the theory that the Casa Grande was inhabited by sun worshippers, but this theory has nothing else to substantiate it. The floors were made of beams three inches in diameter, covered with a layer of rushes and clay.

The building rises to two stories, but a central tier rose another story.

The construction of the house is unique. It is not of adobe, but is what is known as "cajon," or puddled clay, molded into walls. The cajon, in huge blocks from three to five feet long, two feet high, and from three to four feet thick, was manufactured on the spot, much as cement makers manufacture the material for modern cement houses. Walls made of cajon are even harder than adobe, and as long as there is a roof on the structure made of such material the wind and rain have little effect. Without a projecting roof the cajon will wear down gradually. It is by this process that most of the buildings near the Casa Grande have been worn down.

BRICK USED IN RESTORING IT.

After an extended investigation and report by scientists in the employ of the government, it was decided to brace up the tottering walls with brick. Most of the bad effects of erosion were visible at the base of the walls, the falling water

Taft Conceded Place

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Although the national Republican convention which probably will be held in Chicago for the nomination of a presidential candidate, is nearly a year off, and there is much talk of a bitter war being waged in the convention against the renomination of Taft by the insurgents, political leaders of both parties now concede him to be the presidential nominee.

No politician who is informed of the trend of mind of the people, seems to be a radical follower of La Follette, will attempt to start another result of the approaching convention.

An examination of the situation in the different States, even though it be superficial, will justify the confidence of the friends of President Taft who are saying that it is all over save the shouting to the stars.

Two to be named. So far as known now only two names will receive serious consideration at the convention. They are President Taft and Senator La Follette of Wisconsin. According to well-founded reports La Follette and his insurgent followers are planning to make a bitter fight to control the convention and to secure his nomination. There is still a possibility, but not very great, that an attempt will be made to use the name of Colonel Roosevelt, but in case such an attempt is made it will be without his sanction and against his protest. It is well known that Colonel Roosevelt has stated that even if nominated he will refuse to accept.

The recent differences between Colonel Roosevelt and President Taft regarding the throwing up of lands on Controled Bay, Alaska, are not likely to be settled in an effort to show that the former President would exert his influence to prevent the nomination of Taft. Old-time leaders laugh at this, and say that the report is without foundation. Friends of the colonel say that he will watch the events of the convention with personal but not public interest and when the result is announced he will be found working for the election of the nominee.

JUDGE OMITS 'OBEY' AND COUPLES STAY MARRIED

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—Judge Charles Goodnow, who habitually omits the word "obey" from marriage ceremonies, has wedged sixty-four couples in the first six months of Chicago's court of domestic relations. Only two of these marriages proved unhappy. One was a marriage in which "obey" was used.

"I believe that much friction is avoided for the married pair by eliminating the word 'obey,'" said the judge. "It appears that the husbands are more tolerant and not so insistent on enforcing the lord-and-maids attitude. Only two men insisted on the 'obey,' and I used it in my pronouncements."

The judge has returned 1250 estranged husbands and wives to each other's arms and sent them home rather than send one to jail. The court has collected more than $25,000 for deserted wives and children.

The first half year of the new court closed Saturday. The record shows that 424 cases of domestic trouble came before the judge for adjournment up to that time.

"The marriages have been particularly successful," said Judge Goodnow. "We are trying more cases than any other court and I do not think the old system will ever be revived. This gives me a great deal of satisfaction."

MOVING PICTURE TO AID IN ANALYSIS OF MEAT

(Special to THE TRIBUNE by International News Service.)

PARIS, Oct. 28.—To assist in the analysis of meat, cinematographs are to be employed in the Villete slaughter houses of Paris. Pictures will be taken of freshly slaughtered cattle and the films shown to sanitary inspectors, meat dealers and butchers the object being to confirm the nature of diseased meat by the examination of its bacteria, which will be portrayed on the film.

VICTIM OF HOODOO IS LOST TO DAN CUPID

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—James Lawrence Meece of Maywood appeared at the office of the marriage license clerk for a license, but forgot the name of his lady love. He called up a friend, who gave him the name Steila Northcott. The license was issued.

Magee drew $500 from a bank for living expenses. On his way back to Maywood the money and license were stolen by pickpockets.

Accompanied by his future father-in-law, he returned and obtained a duplicate license. On getting off the train in Maywood he fell and was hurt so seriously that the marriage was postponed.

New York Aids Needy Blind

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The needy blind proved to the satisfaction of the Bureau of Dependent Adults that he or she received only from the east. This has given rise to the theory that the Casa Grande was inhabited by sun worshippers.

The buildings of the Casa Grande must have presented an imposing sight, rising from the sterile Arizona plain. It is believed that this region was at one time watered but the gradual encroachment of the desert led to its abandonment, like many other aboriginal communities in the southwest.

There are four rooms in the ground floor plan of what is known as Clan House A, and evidently this structure, like the main building, rose of a height of two or three stories. There are thirty-six rooms in the ground plan of the large compound known as Compound B, the surrounding walls of which are 300 feet long by 155 feet across.

H.B. WARNER AND PHYLLIS SHERWOOD "ALIAS JIMMY VALENTINE" MACDONOUGH

FRANK MCCRACKEN AND ALFRED COOPER IN THE COUNTRY BOY MACDONOUGH

DANCING GIRLS IN THE FLOWER OF THE RANCH

MACDONOUGH

H. E. Warner in "Alias Jimmy Valentine" plays a bank burglar who opens safes by the mere sense of touch in the tips of his fingers, and plies his romantic trade in the dead of night, with a handkerchief bound around his eyes, the better to keep out the distracting light. Jimmy has won the approval of everybody who has seen the play, except the police. The comedy-drama has been the subject of critical praise almost to the fulsome point. But the police—

In the play, which, by the way, comes to the Macdonough for four days commencing Thursday, November 2, with Warner and the original Wallack's theater company, Doyle, a detective, who has for three years followed Jimmy, to jug him for an old bank-heist, stressed said James open a safe by touch, but as Jimmy does this to release a little child who has wandered into the vault and been caught and as the little child's sister is standing by approving Jimmy, why Mr. Doyle lets Jimmy go free. And so—

The Inspector in charge of the detective bureau in New York disapproved, and orders were quietly passed out that the Lieutenant, first grade detectives and all others connected with the bureau were to stay away from the play during its engagement at Wallack's, for the reason that it showed an officer of the law letting a criminal go.

THE COUNTRY BOY

Henry B. Harris will present Edgar Selwyn's big comedy hit, "The Country Boy," at the Macdonough theater for three nights and Wednesday evenings, starting tomorrow. First presented at the Liberty theater, New York, this play enjoyed a run of five months, which was followed by a succession of crowded houses at Powers' theater, Chicago, for two months. The company that will be seen here is an unusually strong one, and has not undergone a single change since the metropolitan engagement.

"The Country Boy" is in four acts and concerns a youth who believes his home town is not large enough to hold him. Desiring greater opportunities, he leaves home, mother, and a village sweetheart to try his luck in New York. Finally he becomes so desperate through his failure to find work that he is ready to end it all, when he is persuaded by a fellow boarder, a newspaper man, to try again, and together they go back to the country town and start a newspaper, which proves highly successful.

FLOWER OF THE RANCH

The newest, cleanest, brightest musical offering of the season is Joseph E. Horne's latest western success, "The Flower of the Ranch," coming to the Macdonough theater Sunday matinee and to-night only. It is fact that Howard has no happy faculty of writing music that keeps running through one's brain after he has heard it and in this latest offering there are a dozen such numbers, "Clarendon," "Dreaming," "Just Say You Care," "Lu La Babe" and "The Days of '49" are always whistled as the audience leaves the theater. The cast is an excellent one, headed by Jess Harris, who plays "Skivvers," the tenderfoot, the leading comedy. Harris gives double measure; he is funny the good old-fashioned way; he gets about, dances, does funny things; in fact, he is a grouch every time he is on the stage. Miss Gaid, well, the "Flower" is a vivacious little girl. She dances energetically and throws her whole soul into her work. Every member works with the same vim and snap. The "broilers" are genuine dancers and any time they are before the audience you may rest assured they are busy, for never was there a more sprightly bunch ever gotten together than these little girls who go to make this musical comedy play complete.

"SEVEN DAYS."

"Seven Days," Mary Roberts Rinehart and Avery Hopwood's clever comedy that relates the adventure of a dinner party during a week in quarantine, will be presented by Messrs. Wagenhals & Kemper at the Macdonough for the week of November 6, under especially attractive conditions. The company comes from the Astor theater, New York, and the third year for "Seven Days" on Broadway. It will be "Seven Days," the leading comedy success of the day, with the brilliant New York cast and superb Astor theater production. To signalize the comedy's third year in New York, and for its tour following the notable Astor theater engagement, the cast was carefully chosen and extra consideration was given to stage settings. The first setting for "Seven Days," an Oriental drawing-room, is new and novel. The second scene, a kitchen, is unique, while the third is a roof garden at night above a house on Riverside Drive, New York, overlooking the Hudson and Jersey Heights beyond. Quite naturally the costuming of "Seven Days" is in keeping with the rest, and women will admire the gowns. They are the latest Paris exportations. These, however, are accessories. The main thing is the play, and of "Seven Days" the dramatic critic for Vogue wrote:

"For brightness of lines, laugh-provoking situations and brisk, snappy action New York has never had a play in any way comparable with 'Seven Days.' Indeed, so far as memory serves me, no play has ever been given the town with anything like its success. Beside it the others become insipid, for what this comedy has they mainly lack, and to the last moment of the play the fun never stops."

Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, all the big cities, have rivaled New York in enthusiasm over "Seven Days," which everywhere and by everybody is declared the best comedy seen in this country. Amy Leslie in the Chicago Daily News said, "It sent the audience into gay hysterics." The Boston Globe said, "It is one of the most amusing comedies that can be imagined," while the Philadelphia Inquirer declared, "It has mirth enough to stock half a dozen comedies."

ORPHEUM

Odiva, "The Water Queen," comes to the Oakland Orpheum today with an act of novelty, beauty and rare skill. This is little Odiva, who first learned aquatic art among the pearl divers of Samoa, is a marvel of verity, and in her exhibition seems to be really amphibious. Her dives are executed with a grace and beauty of motion that is delightful—her swimming feats a revelation. The fish that float about in the immense glass tank seem to be no more at home than she. She eats, sews, sleeps and disrobes beneath the water surface. Odiva has a figure that is well nigh perfect with grace and symmetry that is the acme of art. The stage setting is elaborate, idyllic, and massive. Down the hills there runs a brooklet that flows into a pond, from the shores of which the rugged rocks rise to great heights. This pond is really the enormous glass tank through which every one of Odiva's moves may clearly be seen: From the rocks that reach high into the flies she does her dives. The act is one that vaudeville devotees cannot miss and which elicits the highest praise from all who see it.

Mabelle Adams, the gypsy violinist, known over two continents, and C. H. O'Donnell will be seen in their first joint engagement at the Orpheum. An entire special production with typical French scenery, on which no expense has been spared is used for the act, and the lighting effects are unsurpassed. "Zila" (the gypsy) is the tale of a famous young American painter who fell in love with a gypsy girl model while he was studying in Paris. His jealousy and unwarranted accusations, their quarrel and the effects of a year of abstinence drinking (the drink of the absinthe fiend) are all woven into the strongest dramatic act that has appeared in this city in years.

"Agnes Scott uses for her stage setting one of nature's most beautiful pictures in the little idyllic episode, 'Drifting,' in which Miss Scott and Henry Keane will appear. In this charming little comedy Miss Scott does credit to herself both as writer and actor. This is her first appearance in the West and it is predicted that she will jump with a bound into popularity. She is a woman of bewitching charm, a peculiar winsomeness and fetching personality. Cute, coquettish, coy, cuddling, sweet, simple and fetching are some of the adjectives that describe her. Mr. Keane has already won his spurs with Orpheum audiences. He first appeared as leading man with Valerie Bergerie and afterward starred in a pleasing little comedy with Olive Briscoe.

Sammy Burns and Alice Fulton are a smart little pair of dancers who present as dainty and finished an act as one will see in many days. Miss Fulton's gowns are exquisite and numerous. They change costumes six times in almost as many seconds during their act. It is staged beautifully and artistically. They entertain with bits of songs and impersonations, but their real forte is in their nimble dances. It is doubtful if there is a pair in the world more pleasing in acrobatic dancing than they. The act is divided (without waits) into six parts.

First: An American eccentric song and dance by both. Second: Mr. Burns does an acrobatic buck dance. Third: Miss Fulton does a Persian novelty dance. The costume is Persian, but the dance is much on the order of the Russian whirl. Fourth: Mr. Burns in an Eton suit gives an American's idea of an English vaudevillian's idea of an American coon song. This is the comedy number of the act. With the song is introduced an eccentric dance. Fifth: Miss Fulton dances a Spanish zarzanga. Sixth: An acrobatic waltz, which is the hit of their act and a stunning finish.

Mme. Panita of Cologne, the celebrated European flute virtuoso, is making a return tour of the theaters of the Orpheum circuit.

This lady has an exceptional technique and elicits from the flute a soft and strong tone, all difficult technicalities being overcome with surprising ease. This is most notable in the thrills and smaller chords in the quick passages of her selections. Her staccato is absolutely perfect, in the upper as well as in the lower registers.

Charles and Fannie Van, those riotous fun makers, will offer their diverting skit, "A Case of Emergency," in which Van takes the part of a stage carpenter, whose encounters with a soubrette behind the scenes provoke a lot of wholesome merriment.

The Nichols sisters, known as "The Kentucky Belles," have scored an immense hit during the last week with their unique songs and chatter. They are probably the only two girls who use burnt cork in a vaudeville act and who still remain quaint and delightful even in a black-face covering.

The Four Floods, a quartet of lively acrobatic comedians, will round out the new show with a lot of lively antics.

BELL

Competition for high class vaudeville novelties is very keen nowadays, and sharp indeed, must be the booking manager who is landing the cream of the European and foreign acts that are coming to America. Aside from the cleverness of the S. and C. men in New York and Brooklyn, they make a strong bid from the fact that this circuit can now offer a continuous engagement of a period of weeks longer than other circuits and are thereby able to secure many novelties that otherwise would not make the trip to the United States.

Keep Busy, Says Suzette; Then You'll Be Happy

By SUZETTE

LIFE is lived out in such a rush that every one has a day filled to the brim with activities. For there are no longer any idle women. Every one knows now-a-days how absurd it is to be idle. Frederick Townsend Martin builded better than he knew when he wrote of "The Passing of the Idle Rich." One reads:

"She must do something and do it well if she does not want to wither of loneliness. There is no place in modern life for the idle woman. Even in the supposedly idle class of the very rich she scarcely has a foothold."

Turn where she will she will find the women of her set doing things, even if it is only playing bridge, and very good at that, with all their strength and nerve, and many of them do much finer things after bridge. She could not be idle if she would and keep her place in the rush of modern life. And so it is that life becomes vastly more interesting. There is much enthusiasm in it and women are certainly in much better spirits, now that they think of others, and have such very little time to think of themselves.

So we have our clubs, our charities and the many entertainments that make up the social round, and life is full of interest, full of charm. We are constantly meeting new people and living out life with a constantly widening horizon.

So it is nothing new now for a woman of the smart set to have two or three dates for every day of the week, and her home is all the better for her outdoor life. It is along bigger, broader lines—much that used to be small and petty has been eliminated, as women have been brought face to face with life's larger issues, its greater problems.

MAXWELTON DAIRY AND SOCIAL BONNIES.

"Maxwelton's bras are bonny."

A Skin of Beauty Is a Joy Forever.

DR. T. FELIX GOURAUD'S ORIENTAL CREAM OR MAGIC BEAUTIFIER.

Purifies Tan, Plumples, Rash, and Skin Diseases and every blemish and skin affection. It is so harmless we taste it to know if it is good. Accept no counter fit of similar name. Mrs. Sayre said to a lady of the house, "It is good (and safe)." As you ladies will use them, I recommend Gouraud's Cream as the least harmful of all the skin preparations. For sale by all druggists and fancy goods stores in the United States, Canada and Europe.

FRANCIS T. HOPKINS, Prop., 37 Great Jones Street, New York.

Where early falls the dew;
And 'twas there that Annie Laurie
Gave me her promise true."

And the Maxwelton Dairy will be "bonny," too, for the dearest little dairy lady in the world is to preside over its interest, and as she loves all the bosses in the herd dearly they will behave in the best fashion possible for her.

There are a lot of "promises true" floating around in the land just now, for we are all promising to do our level best for the Maxwelton Dairy and the plucky little matron, who has taken her courage in her hand, and has planned an experiment so splendidly worth while.

"And ne'er forget will we,
And for bonny Annie Laurie
We'd lay us down and dee."

We don't have to "dee"—in fact, there isn't any "dee" at all about this business, but the sentiment is there, just the same. That is the way the good old Scotchman had of expressing his loyalty, and we'll stand for the sentiment in our more lively fashion.

For the "Maxwelton Dairy" is bonny, and the modern "Annie Laurie" is bonny, too, and we are immensely proud of her and fond of her, and we'll stand by the experiment till we achieve the stunning success of which "the dearest dairy lady in the world dreams."

In regard to the "Purple Cow," thereby hangs a tale. It seems that some place else the name had been appropriated and copyrighted, and Mrs. Maxwell was politely but firmly informed of the fact. The "Purple Cow" may gallop down the road of success, but after all she doesn't belong to us, and it is quite as well for us to be original from the start. The name, the dairy and the little matron all belong to the same family, and they will be mighty proud of all three of them as dairy game goes on.

BRIGHT OWNER CHOOSES WORK.

Mrs. Maxwell is young and bright and happy-hearted, and she might be playing bridge "till the cows come home," only they wouldn't be her cows! Instead she chooses work in the world, with the necessary play-time of course, only in her case it is going to be hard to decide what is work and what is play. Dairies are immensely scientific these days; you have to read books, you have to go to the university, you have to know all about the different herds in the state. All of these things Mrs. Maxwell is doing in the deepest kind of earnest. She is studying hard and holding the big problems in the hollow of her hand.

For the matron of the Maxwelton Dairy is bright—there is no mistaking that fact. And she is going about her work with a seriousness that holds the elements of success and with an optimism that makes her very sure of herself and of the success of her experiment.

She means to work hard and to be brave and to take the inevitable hard knocks with a good deal of philosophy.

And she knows how to laugh, and that helps such a lot anywhere in life. And all the rest of us have had a good deal of fun with the "Purple Cow," and only the other day a lady on the car asked:

"Are these the Maxwelton kine browsing on the hillsides?"

We felt when we heard that as if the Dairy had indeed arrived.

And so it has. The Dairy begins the first of the month. The delivery wagon is ready for business, for it is announced that there is to be no unnecessary flourish of trumpets, no automobile wagon, no display. It is an honest experiment, to be tried along the most scientific lines. The public needs the Maxwelton Dairy and Mrs. Maxwell knows how to begin.

Some day, down the future, the papers in the land are going to write up this experiment that has succeeded. The blight of the world's progress will shine on a brave little matron in the Piedmont hills who had the courage of her convictions, and with great courage blazed a trail in which other women may follow. We will be glad to know that we believed in her in the beginning; that we were proud of her; that we helped her. Woman's work is a beautiful factor in the world's development—there is something about it that is essentially noble.

The dairy wagon starts out on the first of the month—the experiment begins:

Good luck to you, dear little matron out there on the hillsides! Good luck to your dairy! All the women of the land give a rousing cheer for you as your dairy wagon starts out on the Maxwelton round.

And a chorus might go rippling out to you:

"And dark blue was her 'ee,
And for bonny Neilia Maxwell
We'd lay us down and dee!"

ENGAGEMENT AROUSES SOCIETY'S INTEREST.

Mrs. Oliver S. Orrick announced on Thursday one of the most important engagements of the autumn—that of her niece, Miss Entz, and Mr. Tod.

The announcement was made at a large card party in which Mrs. Oliver entertained a large number of friends, the card afternoon being given at the family home of the Orricks in Vernon Heights.

Miss Entz is Mrs. Orrick's niece and a niece of the late Irving M. Scott of San Francisco. She is a most charming southern girl, whose home is in Maryland, but she has spent a good deal of time with her aunt, Mrs. Orrick. She is a most attractive girl, of the blonde type, with sweet, sympathetic ways, and she is greatly beloved by the many friends which she has made in California.

Mr. Tod is a very delightful and very successful business man of Chicago, and the engagement has pleased the many friends of the bride and groom-elect. The wedding date will be set for some time early in January. Meantime many good wishes are being extended to the charming southern girl and many congratulations will find their way to her fiance in Chicago.

EASTERN SOCIETY NOTES INTEREST.

Eastern social notes are of decided interest to Californians, as many of them concern people we know.

Mrs. Seth Barton French's villa at Hot Springs, Va., has been leased for November to President and Mrs. Taft, and as their presence will bring many of the diplomatic corps from Washington life bids fair to be very gay at that attractive resort.

Mrs. Taft and Miss Helen Taft will have with them Mrs. Taft's sister, Mrs. Thomas K. Laughlin of Pittsburgh, and the President will join them at the close of his western tour.

He is an enthusiastic horseman and golfer, and the November outing will bring him the recreation and rest that he deserves.

CARD BRINGS BIT OF INTERESTING NEWS.

Many prominent families in Oakland, and indeed on the coast, have received cards which have brought a most interesting piece of news, which comes as a surprise to many friends here. The card reads:

"Dr. William Lamartine, Breyfogle and

Mrs. Ella Naomi Pierce announce their marriage on Saturday, October the fourteenth, nineteen hundred and eleven, at Rockledge,

Lake George, N. Y."

One hears many complimentary things of Dr. Breyfogle, who has an international reputation as a physician and a leader in the medical profession, having filled all of the most coveted positions in its gift. Some years ago he retired from the medical world and became prominent in financial circles.

He was a constructor and builder of railroads, and for several years was president of the "L. N. A." and "C. R. R." known as the Monon Route, running between Chicago, Cincinnati and Louisville. Several years ago he retired from actual business and has since resided in New York city. The marriage took place at "Rockledge," Dr. Breyfogle's summer home at Lake George, N. Y.

Dr. and Mrs. Breyfogle will reside at the Great Northern hotel, in New York city, until midwinter, when they will visit the Pacific coast. Dr. Breyfogle has been a frequent visitor in California and has many friends in San Francisco.

Mrs. Breyfogle, who was formerly

Mrs. Charles D. Pierce, lived in Oakland for many years, and was the center of a large and very representative group of friends. She was an active member of the Ebell Club and a member of the California Club across the bay, and while taking a great interest in club work she was also a very talented artist, achieving great success in her work in oils.

Mrs. Pierce entertained extensively, both in Oakland and in Stockton, where much time was spent during the last few years. She has a large circle of friends across the bay also, so many good wishes go out to her from California, where her home was established for many years. Mrs. Breyfogle spent some months in Europe with her sister, Mrs. John Russ, and her nephew, Dr. Raymond Russ. Mrs. Russ has been spending October days in Great Barrington, L. I., and will come to California later in the winter with Dr. Russ and his bride, the latter formerly Miss Mabel Andrews of San Jose.

:- Suzette's Letter and Other Society Gossip :-

Partington is one of the famous singers of today. It would require a whole page of the paper to fairly chronicle what the papers are saying of her great achievement. She is never going back to be an understudy. When Miss Sylva recovers she will alternate with her.

Among other things one reads: "Still there was Miss Partington; the charm of her personality, the beauty of her voice and of her cameo face demanding her audience's applause. Who is this new star who fell into her own in a night? While her opportunity came unexpectedly it would have arrived sooner or later. Miss Partington is from California, the land of beautiful flowers and women."

And again we read:

"The audience soon forgot the disappointment in the unbounded joy over the appearance of the understudy, Miss Partington, a girl of superb form, an attractive face and expressive features, notably a pair of beautiful and most eloquent eyes. If even an artist made a hit with an audience she did."

"The cloud had a silver lining for Phyllis Partington, the understudy, who not only carried the role to success, but scored a big personal hit."

"Miss Partington, who carried the part to a conclusion, disclosed a voice of exceptional beauty and a musical training far beyond that to which the public is accustomed in musical comedies."

And so the little girl that many of us have known for so long—little Phyllis Partington—has quite grown up and has won out superbly in great New York! It is a proud day in the annals of the gifted Partington household, and their friends rejoice with them and are also very proud of the success of Miss Phyllis Partington.

FREDERICK STRATTON'S STILL AT RANCH.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Stratton are among those who are lingering long out of town in these autumn days. They are still at their ranch near Alamo, where Mrs. Stratton has been entertaining guests most of the autumn. Among her guests in these lovely October days is Miss May Coogan, who is spending some time with Mrs. Stratton.

WHAT THEY WEAR IN HAPPY PARIS.

Many rumors reach us in regard to winter clothes abroad, but perhaps the most authentic notes are from The Graphic, in Paris, which has a way of its own in summing up leading styles. Be it said in passing, also, that it is a man who speaks so glibly of "the styles."

"Women," he says, are to be fantasies in black and white. This lack of color was in vogue last winter, but the combination has now developed into the wildest eccentricities.

"At Longchamps two days ago, scarcely a touch of color was visible. Here and there a splash of canary shade in feathers, or a pansy, violet hat or gown was seen, but nine out of ten women wore original designs in black and white."

"With a white satin gown were worn black furs, white silk stockings and black shoes."

"For costumes consisting of separate coat and skirt are in vogue. Some designs were in ermine, the coat and hem of the gown being fringed with tails. Black patent boots with white uppers are a prominent fashion of the passing hour."

"One black hat was trimmed with the whole skin, with the exception of the head, of an animal which appeared to be a tabby cat, the long tail being curled around the crown as a finish to the back of the hat."

MRS. BAKER CARR IS STATE VISITOR.

An interesting visitor in California this autumn is Mrs. Baker Carr of London, who was formerly Miss Sally Quinan of Oakland. The Quinans lived here for many years, and Miss Sally Quinan and her sister were belles of Fortnightly days. Among their most intimate friends were Mrs. Paul Dinsmore, Mrs. Frank Wells, Mrs. Charles Bentley, Mrs. John Brittain, Mrs. Irving Lundborg, and others of the belles who danced so merrily down Fortnightly winters.

Mr. Quinan, who was a mining engineer, went out to South Africa, taking his interesting daughters with him. They married there, and Sally Quinan is now Mrs. Baker Carr with a beautiful home in London.

She is the guest of Mrs. Edward Pringle, at the Pringle ranch near Cupertino. Last week she was entertained by Mrs. Russell Selfridge, who was formerly Miss Grace Baldwin, also a belle of Fortnightly days.

MISS CHURCHILL IS HOSTESS AT TEA.

An elaborate tea was given at the Palace on Friday, when Miss Dorothy Churchill entertained a large number of friends. Her guest of honor was Miss Winona Derby, whose marriage to Lieut. Burgin, U. S. A., will take place November 7th.

Miss Derby is a charming bride-elect who has many friends on this side of the bay, for her school days were passed here in the family home at Linda Vista.

MRS. E. S. HOWARD IN SAN FRANCISCO.

Mrs. Emma Shafter Howard, who was for so many years a resident of Oakland, is established at the Hillcrest in San Francisco for the winter. One hears that her apartments are most artistic, since she lived for so many years in Europe, and brought from abroad so many articles of rare artistic merit. One of the Kemble-Waldrop readings was given at Mrs. Howard's apartments this week, Miss Margaret Kemble giving selections from Don Quixote, the new opera. The next reading will take place at the St. Francis Hotel, and the subject will be Puccini's new opera, "The Girl of the Golden West."

Among the members are Mr. and Mrs. McCreary, Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rodenberger, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. McKinley, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Colson, Fred Allin, Harry Bostwick, W. E. Pitcher, G. L. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Abila, Fred Ruff, Mr. and Mrs. Al Rieher, Louis Feuerhauer.

MRS. BAKER CARR IS STATE VISITOR.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark L. Requa left for the East yesterday, and they are going directly to New York. They are making a business trip, and they expect to be away from Oakland some weeks. Among those who have also gone East are Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Heron, who have closed their Linda Vista home for a while.

MUCH BEING DONE FOR DEBUTANTES.

Much is being done for the debutantes of the season, and some of the most important social affairs are in their honor.

Mrs. Harry Welke is to entertain at a large card party in honor of her sister, Miss Marie Louise Tyson, and the latter's friend, Miss Metha McMahon.

Yesterday afternoon a large tea was given by Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Hope Beaver to introduce their daughter, Miss Isabelle Beaver. Several hundred guests called were invited to meet Miss Beaver, and the tea was a very elaborate one. Among the very beautifully gowned young girls who assisted the hostess were Miss Ernestine McNear, Miss Myra Joselyn, Miss Harriet Alexander, and the Misses Cunningham.

One of the largest dancing parties of the season across the bay, was given by Miss Elva de Fue, who entertained at her home on Sacramento street, and who made the Misses Edith and Ruth Slack her guests of honor.

Among the other guests were Miss Marion Crocker, Miss Helen Bertheau, Miss Marian Miller, Miss Harriet Stone, Miss Marian Stone, Miss Harriet Alexander, Frank Langstroth, Lovell Langstroth, Walter Hush, and Kenneth Monteagle.

MISS MARIAN CROCKER IS GUEST OF HONOR.

One of the most elaborate receptions of the autumn was that given for Miss Marian Crocker, who is one of the most interesting of the debutantes of the season. And one hears that she had one of the very prettiest gowns of any of the debutantes of the year. It was of white messaline, over soft white satin, and beautifully trimmed with a lace fichu. Her shower bouquet was very beautiful, reaching almost to the hem of her gown, and made up of white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Miss Ruth Winslow carried off many honors in a princess gown of fine white muslin, with insertions of Irish crochet lace. Miss Isabel Beaver wore old rose chiffon embroidered in gold, and Miss Marian Stone, who will make her debut at a dinner before the first Assembly ball, wore rose pink satin, embroidered in silk.

INFORMAL BRIDGE PARTY FOR DEBUTANTE.

Among the debutantes who are having a specially good time on this side of the bay are Miss Dorothy Taft and Miss Nelle Adams. Mrs. B. G. Readshaw is to entertain informally at a bridge party in honor of Miss Taft, next Tuesday, and on Thursday evening Dorothy Taft will herself be a hostess, and will entertain a number of young people at a theatre party, her guests attending the play of "Alias Jimmy Valentine," at the MacDonough. A supper at the Taf-home on Harrison street will follow the play.

SOCIETY

R. AND MRS. PERCY WOOD were host and hostess at a charmingly appointed card party at their Piedmont home last night when they entertained for Miss Ruth Adams, the fiancee of Donald Kessler of San Francisco, where both are well known in social circles. After the card game, supper was served to Miss Ruth Adams, Miss Helen Adams, Miss Margaret Baum, Miss Myrtle Little, Miss Jessie Morrison, Wesley Craig, Goldie Flessner, Scott Martin, Walter Christy, Frank Keeler.

Miss Margaret Baum is visiting her sister, Mrs. Wood, from her home in Placerille.

Schneider, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Vincent, Mr. and Mrs. Al Rieher, Louis Feuerhauer.

RECENT AT HOME.

Miss Esther Porterfield entertained recently at her home in Elmhurst in honor of Mrs. Harvey Frost of Healdsburg, who, before her marriage, several seasons ago, was Miss Elizabeth McBride of Oakland. They also spent some time in Springfield, O., the old home of Mr. Potter. The many friends of the family are welcoming them home.

DELIGHTFUL MUSICALE YESTERDAY.

A large number of guests enjoyed the afternoon.

INFORMAL CARD AFTERNOON.

Mrs. F. S. McHenry was hostess yesterday at an informal bridge party at her Hillside avenue home. Her guests included the members of one of the local card clubs.

BUILDING IN PIEDMONT.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Earl Leach are building a handsome home in Piedmont and will probably take possession of the new place within the next three months. Mrs. Leach will be remembered as Miss Lucy Fennessey and one of the most popular girls in the local smart set.

ANOTHER ENGAGEMENT.

The engagement of Miss Rowena Dunham to Merrill Reed is a bit of news that will interest a wide circle of friends in this city. The bride-elect is a daughter of Mrs. A. L. Dunham of Harrison street and an extremely attractive girl. Her fiance is a prominent business man here. The wedding of the couple will not take place until the latter part of next year.

COMPLIMENTARY BRIDGE.

In honor of her sister, Miss Marie Tyson, and Miss Metha McMahon, two of the season's debutantes, Mrs. Helen Wells has sent out cards for a bridge party on the afternoon of Thursday, November 2. Miss Tyson and Miss McMahon were formally presented at a reception early in the month across the bay.

They will be entertained at the home of the pastor of the Santa Clara Avenue Methodist church, more or less, during their visit at the bay.

McNally, at 4502 West street, Oakland, the occasion being the sixth birthday of their little daughter, Elva Winifred. The decorations and refreshments carried out the idea of Hallowe'en and the little guests made merry until 6 p. m. TIES WIFE TO TREE WHEN SHE "FUSSES" IN AUTO PATCHOGUE, L. I. Oct. 28.—Dr. William Charles Willis, the Patchogue physician, who, in October of last year, exposed a charge of abducting a 15-year-old girl by showing the grand jury a certificate proving he had married her the day before, spent this forenoon in the village lock-up, and after luncheon was taken to the Asylum for the Insane at Central Islip.

Dr. Willis tied his wife to an oak tree in front of the Manhattan Hotel at Bayport early this morning and two physicians who examined him said his mind had been unbalanced by the use of morphine.

Mr. Willis is in bed at the home of his father, George Dayton, in Patchogue. When the rope that bound her to the

NOT ONE WOMAN IN 1000 HAS BEAUTIFUL HAIR

It is not entirely the fault of "rats," puffs and switches. It is because, in the rush of modern life, the average woman does not devote sufficient time to hair culture.

Just try this simple method:

Brush your hair 5 minutes night and morning. Then apply a few drops of

ED. PINAUD'S HAIR TONIC

(BAU DE QUININE)

Then massage it into the scalp with the finger tips for 5 minutes.

At night braid the hair loosely or let it flow without binding. Do this for one month. You will wonder why you didn't do it long ago, when you see the results.

Ask your dealer for a 50c bottle. Say "I want ED. PINAUD'S original Eau de Quinine." Don't accept imitations.

If, before purchasing from your dealer, you would like to try ED. PINAUD'S, send 5c to our American Offices for a regular 10c testing bottle.

MRS. VON CLAUSSSEN AROUSES IRE OF COURT

That Justice Be Done Her.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Mrs. Ida von Clauessen, who has attracted attention to herself in the past by various exploits, such as beating two officials of the United States Mortgage and Trust Company, which is trustee of the estate of her grandfather, Matthew Byrnes, and trying to have Col. Roosevelt arrested for conspiracy, when he was President, to injure her at the Court of Sweden, was sent to the Tombs police court by Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum to be committed for examination as to her sanity, but Magistrate Herbert, sitting in that court, paroled her in custody of her counsel for examination later.

Mrs. von Clauessen has been suing her former husband, Dr. William Francis Honan, to set aside the divorce she got from him in South Dakota in 1905, on the ground that she never acquired a legal residence there but came back with her decree in thirty-six days after she reached there. She also sues for her divorce on the ground of a subsequent marriage by Dr. Honan. The case, in which she sues as Ida Honan was on Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum's calendar in Part III, Special Term, of the Supreme Court. On Sunday night this telegram, which was sent from Chicago, reached Justice Greenbaum at his home:

"Do you know who sent me that telegram?" shouted Mrs. Von Clauessen.

"I sent that telegram," shouted Mrs. Von Clauessen.

"Well, it indicates either an unsound mind or a serious offense," said the judge.

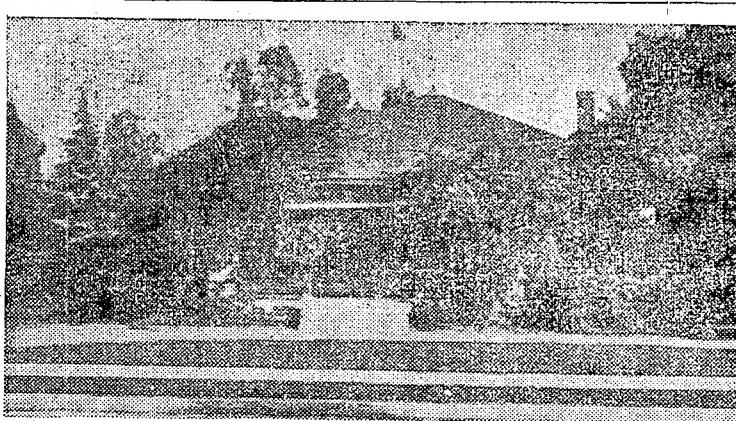

"They tried that unsound mind matter and I beat them," said Mrs. Von Clauessen.

"I know they won't," replied Mrs. Von Clauessen.

madam," exclaimed the court.

Mrs. Von Clauessen laughed aloud and the court called her to the witness stand.

"Why did you send this telegram to me?" he asked.

"Because I want justice."

"Was this case ever tried before me?" "No."

"Did you mean that if you did not get what you call justice you would kill the judge?"

"Oh, no; not that."

"You never heard of me before, did you?"

"No; but I knew you to be a member of the bar."

Mrs. Von Clauessen then declared that she had not been treated fairly by other justices of the supreme court.

"You do not believe that the justices of this court would accord justice to you?"

"I know they won't," replied Mrs. Von Clauessen.

"I will adjourn this case and decide what to do with you. Were you ever

"No, but they tried and failed after many days."

"What do you know about this woman?" asked the Court of Mrs. Von Clauessen's counsel.

"She is a nice, respectable girl," answered Mrs. Von Clauessen herself.

The Court remarked that it was a serious matter and he would decide what to do at 2 o'clock.

Mrs. Von Clauessen grasped Mr. Cowle's hands and said:

"I want to be a wife again. I want to be married. You know, Mr. Cowle, that I cannot become a wife under that

Mrs. Von Clauessen laughed aloud again.

When the case was called in the afternoon Justice Greenbaum asked the lawyers if they were ready to go on and they said they were. The Court said he would not try the case, in view of the telegram.

"I believe this woman is not competent," he said, "and I must call Assistant Corporation Counsel Cowle to take such steps as public welfare demands."

On the way to the Tombs Mrs. von Clauessen grasped Mr. Cowle's hands and said:

"Hello, Judge. Do you remember me?"

"Yes, I do. You were with me when they had me before you before with other witnesses against me. My father, who was with me then, has dropped dead since."

"I'm not insane," she went on later.

"Everybody knows that too. The trouble in now is that the trial just got mad and asked me to afternoon tea."

Then the magistrate said he would

44 HATS AND 29 GOWNS IN A YEAR

PREDICTS OPENING OF CANAL IN 1914

The District Quartermaster in Panama Zone Tells of Progress.

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 28.—The season for fall divorces opened recently with 100 women and 98 men asking for divorces. Exactly fifty of the men asked divorces on the ground of extravagance. Nearly all coincided in the view that their wives spent too much money on fashionable gowns and hats.

"Some one ought to murder these Paris freaks, who are continually creating fashions and subsequently making the poor men of America suffer. My wife has bought 44 hats and 29 gowns in one year," dramatically declared Harry Worthington in asking for a divorce from his wife Pauline.

They were married in 1910, and Worthington said that $100 he had saved has been converted into fine gowns and hats. Forty dollars a week besides. Worthington declared that the wives had spent hundreds of dollars on fine gowns and hats.

One man said his wife had purchased 28 pairs of shoes, 12 fancy belts, 21 hats and 14 gowns during the last year, and that he has discovered his salary of $70 a week is not sufficient to keep her, so he wanted a divorce.

Henry Jauzus, who wore a frock coat, a chic mustache and was blessed with Chesterfield grace, was the one man who contested his wife's attempt at liberty.

The couple were married in New York in 1900 and later resided in Philadelphia. Jauzus is reputed to have been very wealthy at one time. He caused a scene by jumping to his feet and delivering a speech that would have made the eloquent Bourke Cochran take notice.

MISTAKE STRAYED COW FOR BOLD BANK ROBBER

PIITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 28.—A lost cow was the innocent cause of a serious bank robbery scare in Sheridan at 2 o'clock this morning, and, as a result, a policeman saw a dark object trying to force its way into the First National Bank of Sheridan.

"Throw up your hands," he commanded, and rang the bell in the Volunteer Fire Engine House.

A score of policemen and citizens raced to the scene in few clothes. All were armed and opened fire at the same time.

When they saw the supposed burglar drop under the bullets they sauntered forth to identify him. To their amazement they found it was a cow belonging to Peter Shaughnessy.

OLD OPIE DILDOCK'S STORIES.

(Copyright: 1911 by The Tribune Company, Chicago, Ill.)

I stood out on a bleak field one day watching two rival teams playing a game of polo. The thought came to me that perhaps I might be able to put a little life in the old nags they were riding, and thus give a little ginger and zest to the game.

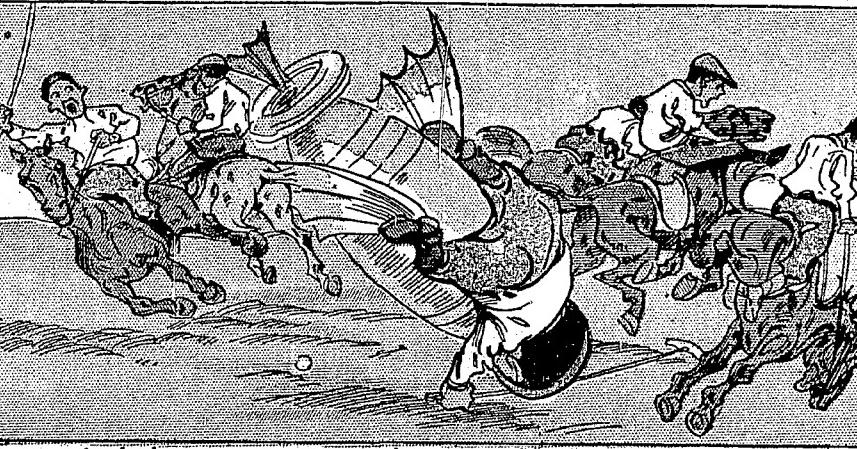

So I raced away to my nearby hangar and took out my airship, "The Opie"—first one ever built, by the way—and, throwing myself in the seat with reckless abandon, I turned on the current and shot out over the billowing ground. The horses saw first.

Naturally they were frightened to death as I approached them, and they reared and bucked frightfully. The riders had great difficulty in retaining their seats, and they all backed away from the ball as I grabbed a mallet and entered the game.

Swinging the mallet with great strength, I struck the ball and sent it floating high in the air. Then I rose rapidly and gave chase. Over a distant hill the ball flew, the horses and their riders joining the pursuit. The ball fell in a ravine.

As the horses grew accustomed to my strange craft they became more manageable. As the ball fell they clustered about it, but I swooped down, knocking the ball sideways with my mallet and turning my machine completely over while performing the hazardous trick.

Then, with the nose of the airship, I struck the ball sharply and again tossed it into the air. The players, thinking the ball would fall within a few feet, hurried in my direction, but I bumped the ball with the machine and kept it floating just above their heads.

A minute or so later I permitted the ball to fall almost to the earth, and then dived under it and bumped it into the air. Then I turned the machine upside down and again bumped the ball as it descended. This I did several times, the players standing by bewildered.

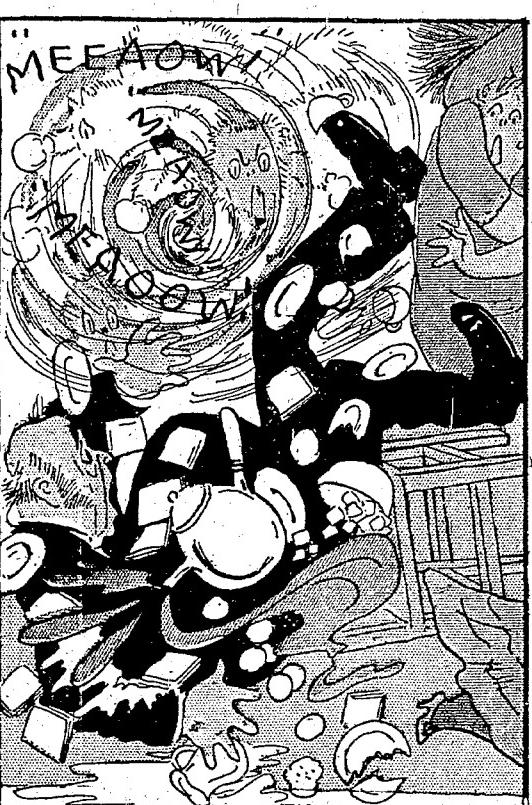

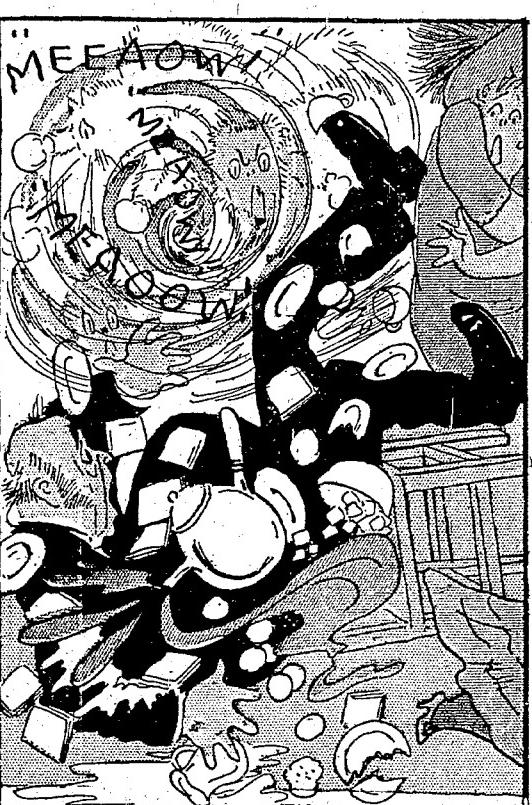

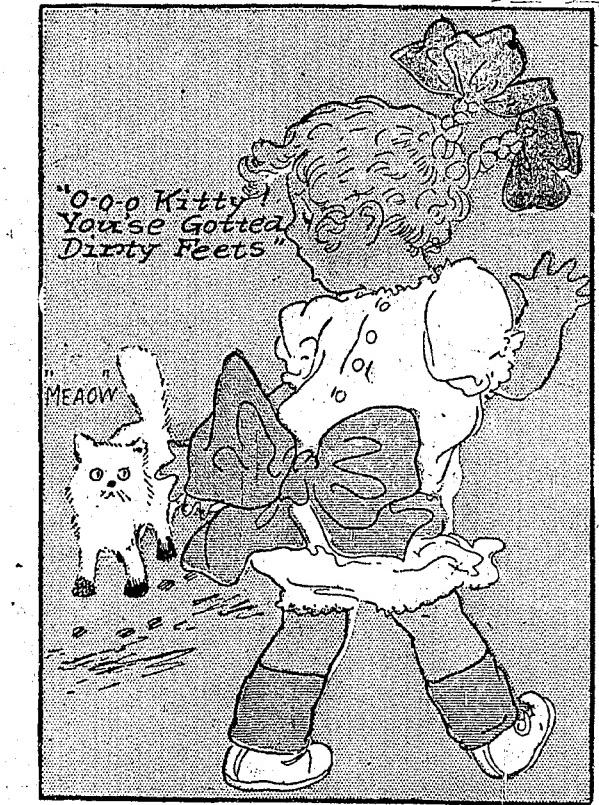

As a final feat I permitted the ball to fall upon the ground and balanced the machine on the extreme tip on top of the ball. Immediately I gave the ship a jerk and started it twirling about on top of the ball, spinning thus for fully an hour and a half.

As I departed the polo enthusiasts begged me for my mallet. I gave it to them and they split it in a number of pieces, each one retaining a bit as a memento of the occasion. I afterwards offered them fabulous sums for these pieces, but they refused to sell them.

NO REVENUE FOR MORE POLICE

Commissioner Turner Says the Prese Budget Will Not Warrant Larger Force

Department Is Strong Enough to Cope With Any Ordinary Situation

The demand for more police in several districts of the city has raised the question of increasing the Oakland police force by a score of new policemen. According to Commissioner of Public Health and Safety, Turner there has been a steady stream of petitions coming to his office asking for more adequate police protection.

Commissioner Turner explains that with the present budget the expense incident to an increase in the force would be difficult to meet, and he states that the present force meets the requirements to a large extent. In response to the demands for an increase in the number of patrolmen in various districts, Councilman Turner has issued the following statement:

"In making demands for police and fire service, a constant stream of which demands comes to the city authorities, I find that many people do not have any very clear-cut ideas of what the police or fire department is or should be. Police department should be looked upon as an organization to which a citizen can appeal in time of need. It should not be looked upon as an absolute preventive of crime and violence, for that is humanly impossible. If there were a policeman on every corner in the city there would still be violence and crime."

"After you have a police force in your city sufficiently large to cope with the maximum disturbance possible—such as riot and sufficiently large to provide help at short notice in any quarter of the city, the limit of reasonable expenditure has been reached. With our signal system, our police boxes and our automobiles, it's impossible for the central station to get into communication with any policeman on patrol within the limits of the city within five minutes. But if we had a thousand policemen it would not be possible to prevent housebreaking, or hold-ups, or murders, or crime. So, when the members of a district ask for policemen, it is well to bear in mind that the request is for expenditures which in turn increase the tax rate, and that the need ought to be real and the resulting protection that is obtained clearly understood."

Long-Distance Chess Calls Forth Pistol

Player Who Is Interfered With Draws Gun and Is Arrested.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 28.—A long distance game of chess in which the players sat for a 18-hour stretch, and during which moves were made sometimes at one hour and a half intervals, culminated in the arrest of John Fenimore Welch, champion of the Pacific Coast, on a charge of carrying concealed weapons today.

The game was being played in Grane's pool parlor, and Welch was contesting with another devotee of chess who was sitting at a board at Utkah. Telegraph messages kept the players posted as to the moves made and the game, which started at two o'clock yesterday, was still in progress at 1:30 this morning when, after a considerable space of time had elapsed since Welch's last move, M. Leaf took it upon himself to remonstrate. Welch took issue with him and drew a revolver. Judge Shortall, who listened to the testimony, dismissed the charge against the champion for carrying concealed weapons.

Missionary Bodies Attacked by State

Attorney-General Charges That Societies Are Carrying on Fraudulent Operations.

TOPEKA, Kas., Oct. 28.—Charging that both missionary societies were organized for fraudulent purposes, John S. Dawson, attorney general, today filed in the supreme court quo warranto proceedings asking the court to forfeit the charters of the "Women's Home Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal church of the Kansas conference and the "Women's Home Missionary Society of the Kansas conference of the M. E. church."

This is a new shot in the sensational church row started at the recent missionary meeting at Wichita, which culminated in the bringing of $50,000 damage suit by Mrs. Carrie E. Cope of Topeka against Mrs. George Robinson of Detroit. Mrs. Cope was the organizer of the two societies against which the attorney general has brought action.

OIL GIANT HALED TO COURT

Officers Serve John D. Rockefeller, Finding Him in Mansion Upon His Estate

Rushed to House in Financial King's Carriage and Asked to Stay and Visit

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Steel trust magnates of all degrees and factions maintained today the rigid silence the government filed its dissolution suit at Trenton. Thus far the Gary statement issued late Friday afternoon is the only utterance that has come from any steel trust concern. That statement was decided upon only after a lengthy conference at the banking house of J. P. Morgan & Co. between Morgan, Chairman Gary and George E. Baker, a leader of the dominant Morgan faction in the board of directors.

Not until today, however, did it become known that those pronouncements of the giant trust sounding, as it did, a stern note of defiance to the government, was formulated in the offices of Chairman Gary only after he had held a conversation by long distance telephone with Francis Lynde Stetson, chief counsel of the corporation, who had his chamber and by-laws. Stetson left New York a short time after news of the filing of the suit became known Thursday afternoon, for his country place at Sterling, N. Y. From there today he said to THE TRIBUNE correspondent in response to a request by telephone for an expression as to the further course of the steel corporation:

WILL REMAIN SILENT.

"There is nothing for me to say at present. The chief officer of the corporation spoke very plainly in the statement he issued Friday. I suppose I shall return to my office Monday, just as I feel then—as I do now—I shall remain silent."

John D. Rockefeller was the only one of the fifty big financiers named as defendants in the government's suit who was served with a summons today. The process was served in the morning by United States Marshal Henkel and Deputy Crofton. They were met at the Tarrytown station by a double-seated carriage from the Rockefeller estate and were driven to the great mansion of the oil king in Pocantico Hills.

This was by arrangement made the day before through John D. Rockefeller Jr., who, like his father, was with a summons at his new office in the suite occupied by the Texas Company, supposed to be the Standard Oil Company's chief rival.

The officers had no trouble in finding Rockefeller. They were immediately ushered into the mansion by a uniformed butler, who conducted them half way down the splendid hallway of the first floor. Then suddenly turning to the right the butler tapped gently on a great oak door, which Men Leap From Vehicle as It Slides Off Road on Steep Hill.

PLEASANTON, Oct. 28.—A near fatality occurred near here yesterday when an auto, in which Dr. H. A. Turner and Ernest Sinclair were riding, commenced sliding off the side of the road on a steep hill.

Sinclair, who was at the wheel, jumped just in time to save himself from being crushed beneath the heavy auto as it pitched into a deep ditch and turned turtle. Dr. Turner also leaped to safety.

Manchu Rule Doomed, Says Professor Jordan

Leland Stanford Savant Says Government Cannot Last.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 28.—"There is no question but that the Manchu must go. Although no trouble had occurred during my stay in the Orient, it would appear that the people are displeased with the imperial government and had made preparations to overthrow it."

The foregoing opinion was expressed by Professor Leland Stanford University, upon his arrival on the Pacific Mail steamer Mongolia, from a several weeks' tour of the Far East. Dr. Jordan was in excellent spirits and said that he had enjoyed his seven weeks' stay in the land of the Mikado immensely. It was originally intended to take Professor Jordan ashore in the revenue cutter as an act of courtesy from the government, but this he declined and proceeded to the wharf on the Mongolia.

Appointments to Be Made at Meeting of Consistory on November 27

ROME, Oct. 28.—At last the claims of the 15,000,000 Catholics of the United States for increased representation in the hierarchy of the church are to be recognized and there are to be three American cardinals.

As a matter of fact, there will be four cardinals in the United States. Announcement is made that the Most Rev. J. M. Farley, Archbishop of New York, and the Most Rev. W. H. O'Connell, Archbishop of Boston, are among the prelates who will be created cardinals by Pope Pius at the consistory to be held November 27th, and the notification that a similar honor is to be bestowed upon Mgr. Diomede Falconio, the apostolic delegate in the United States, is added.

Mgr. Falconio is a citizen of the United States, having become so in 1871.

FOUR TO WEAR RED HAT.

These three, to be added to Cardinal Gibbons of Baltimore, will therefore place the number of wearers of the red hat in the United States at four.

It is stated that another American archbishop will be elevated so as to give the West a representative in the cardinalate. Some time ago, when the question of appointment of another cardinal was under discussion, the names of Archbishop Quigley of Chicago and Archbishop Ireland of St. Paul received mention.

France—Monsignor de Cabriles, Bishop of Montpellier; Mgr. Amblete, Bishop of Paris.

Spain—Mgr. Vico, papal nuncio at Madrid; Mgr. Cos y Macho, Archbishop of Valladolid.

Austria—Mgr. di Belmont Pignatelli, formerly papal nuncio at Vienna; Archbishop Franz X. Nagel of Vienna.

England—Archbishop Francis Bourne of Westminster.

The remaining names are Mgr. Bisletti, major domo of the Vatican; Archbishop Bauer of Olmest; Mgr. Pompell, secretary of the congregational council; Mgr. Von Russum, rector of Jesus; Mgr. Lugar, assessor of the Holy Offices; Archbishop Billard of Chambery.

This was by arrangement made the day before through John D. Rockefeller Jr., who, like his father, was with a summons at his new office in the suite occupied by the Texas Company, supposed to be the Standard Oil Company's chief rival.

Woman Who Shot Son-in-Law Charged

Could Not Resist Pulling Trigger When She Saw Daughter and Husband Together.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 28.—Mrs. Katherine Johnson, mother of Helen Watson, of Lorne, Minn., shot and wounded her son-in-law yesterday evening in the Mission district, was charged tonight with assault to murder and released on $250 bail. The woman who, roused to distraction by the sight of her 17-year-old girl walking along the street with her husband who, prior to their marriage, was charged with being a "white slaver," attempted to kill the young man, has recovered from her spell of hysteria. The hospital authorities pronounced her able to go to prison this evening and after she was booked A. Waldstein furnished her bond.

De Lorne was originally charged with being a member of a gang of white slavers who abduct the girls. He married her immediately after obtaining his liberty in Santa Cruz. The mother was along frowned upon the match.

De Lorne is at the Morton sanitarium suffering from a bullet wound which, however, is not expected to prove serious.

As showing the productivity of California soil and the volume of the company's traffic, the company handled the last twelve months, including October, 50,000 carloads of this state's products. Their value was approximately $40,000,000.

SANTA FE LINE.

The Santa Fe maintains its own fruit express company, which has 8000 refrigerator cars. It handled 40,000 carloads of products in the last year.

The total of these shipments by these two fruit express companies for the last two months was therefore 90,000 carloads, with an approximate value of $73,000,000.

2000 Are Killed and 4000 Wounded During Battle

Large Bands of Bedouins in Tripoli Prepare for Holy War.

ROME, Oct. 28.—It was announced today that the Italian government has decided to make a naval demonstration against Turkey. Prime Minister Giolitti has decided to postpone the assembling of the Italian parliament for an indefinite period, fearing the social opposition to the program for Tripoli.

De Lorne was originally charged with being a member of a gang of white slavers who abduct the girls. He married her immediately after obtaining his liberty in Santa Cruz. The mother was along frowned upon the match.

Rodgers Flies 231 Miles In 229 Minutes, High Up

SIERRA BLanca, Texas, Oct. 28.—C. P. Rodgers, the sea-to-sea aviator, flew today from Sanderson to Sierra Blanca, a distance of 231 miles, in 229 minutes' actual flying time. Rodgers took the air at 11:41 a. m. and, flying at an altitude of 2500 feet, made the 101 miles to Alpine in 99 minutes. Between Alpine and Marfa, the next stop, the aviator crossed Paisano Pass, which is the highest point he will have to fly over until he reaches California. The pass is 5082 feet above sea level. From Marfa to Sierra Blanca, 104 miles, his time was 101 minutes. Rodgers made the 91 miles from El Paso and will start for that point early tomorrow.

McShane explained that he knew nothing of the presence of the drug, but on account of the theft of nearly $4000 worth of opium from the steamer City of Panama, several days ago, and the enormous amount of smuggling that is being attempted on the occasion of her New York debut.

RUNS OVER BANK INTO GREEK

Occupants Are Seriously Injured When Hurled Among Boulders Beneath Heavy Machine

Second Accident Happens in Same Place Because of Absence of Bridge

BERKELEY, Oct. 28.—Plunging into Codornices creek at the same place where William Mattern, an Oakland automobile dealer, met death several months ago, a large touring car owned and driven by R. J. Jones, proprietor of the Mt. Diablo garage at Richmond, overturned in the bottom of the stream and threw the four occupants of the machine, including Jones, upon the boulders in the creek. All were injured more or less seriously.

The men are:

R. J. JONES, 1115 McDonald avenue, Richmond; serious injuries about the body and limbs.

OLIVER WYLIE, proprietor of Wylie's cafe; serious internal injuries, a broken rib, which punctured lung, causing several hemorrhages; a sprained right elbow and broken right hand.

While Wylie's injuries are serious, it is not thought they will prove fatal.

DASHED INTO CREEK.

Jones was driving his machine out Cornell avenue, northwest of Berkeley shortly after 6 o'clock this evening, after turning off San Pablo avenue on account of that thoroughfare being torn up. He evidently believed he was on Shattuck avenue, where there is a bridge across the creek into Albany. Instead, he followed the wrong road and his machine passed through a light bridge down an incline into the creek. The drop was not as steep as that which caused the death of Mattern, whose machine plunged into the creek from the opposite bank.

gument to the extent of deciding that there should at any rate be a second American cardinal.

It is an open secret in Vatican circles that the Pope has always conceded the rights of American Catholics to increased representation, but that he has been hampered in his choice to bear that representation by the activity of those seeking the coveted honor.

To avoid giving personal pain or offending the partisans of the various aspirants, the Pope has even avoided the summoning of consistories or has let consistories pass without nominating any one to fill the rapidly growing list of vacancies.

AMERICA RESPONSIBLE.

It is on record that not long ago a high prelate, when asked why so few consistories were summoned, replied with much emphasis:

"America is responsible for it."

Finally the Pope, having carefully and prayerfully considered the whole situation, came to the realization that no matter who was chosen, some one must be dissatisfied, that the thinned ranks of the sacred college must be filled, and that as head of the church, the heroic selection among the American aspirants lay without appeal in his hands and must be made without further delay.

LIFE OF ARCHBISHOP.

John Murphy Farley, archbishop of New York, was born in Ireland in 1842, emigrated to America as a young man and completed his education at Fordham College and St. Joseph's Seminary, Troy, N. Y. He studied four years in American College in Rome and was ordained a priest in Rome in 1870. He returned to Italy in 1883 and was honored by important charges and missions and became archbishop of Acerenza and Matera in 1889.

He was apostolic delegate to Canada from 1899 to 1901, and has been apostolic delegate to the United States since September, 1902.

Like his predecessors in the apostolic delegation at Washington, it was expected that Mgr. Falconio would be elevated to the cardinalate.

22 SEATS TO FILL.

The last consistory was held in December, 1907, four cardinals being appointed at that time. Since then many vacancies have occurred in the sacred college by death, and now there are 22 seats of the total of 70 unfilled.

Since 1907 the intention to hold a consistory has been announced from time to time and on each occasion has the convocation been postponed for various causes. The question of the appointment of another American cardinal has been under discussion a number of times. Archbishop Farley, Archbishop O'Connell and Archbishop Quigley of Chicago being mentioned. But on one occasion it was stated that the Pope adhered to this opinion that the United States should not have more than one cardinal during the life of Cardinal Gibbons.

The proposed consistory in November will be the fifth held by Pope Plus X. On the death of Leo XIII there were 64 cardinals. During the last eight years Plus X has created 17 new cardinals, of whom two have died.

Thirty of the cardinals who took part in the election of Cardinal Gibbons as pope also have died.

The first consistory of Plus X was held on November 9th, 1903. Its chief purpose was the raising to the cardinalate of Mgr. Merry del Val, in order that the papal secretary of state could bear the full title of his position.

The second consistory was held December 11th, 1905; the third on April 15th, 1907, and the fourth and latest on December 16th in the same year.

NO OFFICIAL WORD.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Interviewed tonight in connection with the report from Rome that he was to be elevated to the cardinalate, Mgr. Falconio, papal delegate to the United States said that he had received no official information on the subject and expressed the opinion that if the report were true the fact would have been communicated directly to him.

Burlingame Clubmen Bet on Horsemanship

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 28.—Wagers are strange things. A dare is given and taken on the spur of the moment and sometimes the doing of it is more difficult than was the taking up of the gage of battle.

It was at the Burlingame Club and Percival Selby and Dr. McEnergy were on hand. The wager offered by Harry Simpkins was accepted. Simpkins and other members of the club had been discussing the test horseback ride for army officers and finally Selby said:

"I will wager that I can ride fifty miles a day for ten consecutive days, or 500 miles within ten days."

Simpkins bet him a thousand that he couldn't. Selby took up the gauntlet and has been in saddle since Tuesday morning. He is making a dash to San Luis Obispo and back and should be welcomed home on Friday evening.

Pearl Alisky Sues Husband's Parents

MALTA, Oct. 28.—Advices today from Tripoli say small forces of Turks made three separate attacks on British forces east of Tripoli, but were repulsed. The losses were not heavy. The attacks were directed chiefly against the Italians guarding the Bounnella wells, which furnish the water supply for Tripoli. It is now stated that the Arabian losses in the battle of last Thursday were about 2000 killed and 4000 wounded. The Turkish general chief of staff and the commanding general, was killed in the engagement.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 28.—Mary Alice Adams, the two-weeks-old girl found near the Guerrero street car tracks in the middle of the night ten days ago, died at the central emergency hospital tonight.

The babe was picked up with a note pinned to its clothing giving the name which was desired it should be christened, and the hospital authorities complied with the request. The infant died from malnutrition.

"Step in, gentlemen," said the rich man in the world in welcome to the officers. "I have been looking for you, we're to be ready to meet you."

The summons was handed to Rockefeller by Dept. Court. After glancing at it hurriedly, the master of the Standard Oil crumpled it up and tossed it on a table.

"I am obliged to you for your kindness in coming away out here at so early an hour," he said. "I suppose you found the air crisp and a little cutting, as you came up the hill to my house?"

"None too cold," volunteered Marshal Henkel.

"Ah, ha," Rockefeller grunted, the while striking his hands in front of his bald, of his tightly buttoned breakfast coat. "If it's not too cold for you then I shall have a good time on the golf links this morning."

INVITED TO STAY.

"By the way," he added, as an afterthought, "can't you gentlemen stay here a few hours? Let me have you shown over the place? Or have you more summonses to serve today that demand your immediate return to the city?"

"No more today," responded Marshal Henkel, "but we've got to get back."

The officers were driven briskly back to the station behind the same pair of Rockefeller high steppers that had carried them out to the mansion.

Although Rockefeller forgot to ask them to go down while we were in his house," explained Marshal Henkel, "we found him a mighty nice man. I believe had we accepted his invitation to remain and be shown over his place he would have gone with us; he glad I met him."

SUBPOENAS LIE IDLE.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 28.—The 61 subpoenas issued yesterday by the United States Circuit Court in the suit of the government against the United States Steel Corporation still lie on the desk of the clerk, pending word from Washington, and it is not expected any of them will be served until Monday.

The theory is that the delay due to the fact that the department of justice is making up a list of marshals of various districts to whom the papers shall be sent for service. Only fourteen of the persons named in the subpoenas reside in New Jersey.

Equally as interesting is the statement that W. C. At least one of the communications is said to be a reference to Miss Violet Edmonds.

COUNSEL AND JUDGE IN M'NAMARA CASE WRANGLE OVER TALES MEN

Verbal Tilts Enliven Proceedings Until Court Adjourns, With Battle Flags Still Flying on Both Sides

(By EDWARD H. HAMILTON.)
LOS ANGELES, Oct. 28.—The Mc-Namara case went petulantly, peevishly and pettishly today, and wound up with Clarence Darrow issuing an appeal to the people from a ruling by Judge Bordwell.

The appeal to the people perhaps will now take the place of the appeal to the supreme court, since those people have just decided that technical hair splitting doesn't count any more.

In any event, the attorneys for the defense were quite sassy and there was a tone of scrap all through the proceedings.

The judge had ordered court to convene at o'clock and perhaps the earliness of the hour caused the lawyers to get out of bed wrong side fore, for they were as testy as so many setting hens.

JUDGE ASKS QUESTIONS.

Things had not proceeded far when Judge Bordwell started to question Talesman T. J. Lee, a fellow Knight of Columbus with Joe Scott and very much desired as a juror by the defense. Lee had been challenged by the prosecution.

"Mr. Lee, have you any prejudice against either side in this case?" began Judge Bordwell.

"Sir?" asked the talesman, putting his hand to his left ear and bending forward.

"Have you any prejudice against either side in this case?"

"I can't hear you quite."

"Are you at all hard of hearing?"

"A little bit—just a little."

"How long have you been afflicted that way?"

Now, that seemed an innocent question enough, but Darrow was angered and he came out with the promptitude of a jack-in-the-box. Red and veined he said:

"I object to that question, your honor. He has answered every question and heard every word in this room except one, when the court did not speak loudly. There is no evidence in this record that he is afflicted in any way."

SQUARES FOR BATTLE.

"He says that he is," put in District Attorney Fredericks, squaring away for battle.

"He said, 'A little bit,'" retorted Darrow.

"He has answered every question and heard every word in this room except one, when the court did not speak loudly. There is no evidence in this record that he is afflicted in any way."

"Objection overruled," said Judge Bordwell.

"Exception," snapped Darrow. "The record ought to show that your honor's voice is hoarse and—"

"Very well, let it show," admitted the court.

"The juror hasn't any affliction—" began Darrow.

"Mr. Darrow, I have made a ruling on that," replied Judge Bordwell severely.

"Except what he says himself," sneered the district attorney.

TROWNS ON QUARREL.

"Gentlemen, I would not have these personal talk or controversies," frowned the judge.

"It does not seem to us that the court's questions or a challenge from the other side are anything like the questions or challenges from our side," rapped Darrow, which was really quite a sassy remark.

"Mr. Darrow, I have ruled upon your motion and there is nothing more to be said," replied the judge with the face that seemed to have met the Medusa's head.

Then the court found, over Darrow's persistent objections, that one of Lee's ears is not as good as it used to be, though the other can hear like a squirrel. It was also ascertained that the talesman had visited the Times wreath out of idle curiosity and that he had no prejudice in the case.

"The challenge of the prosecution is disallowed," said Judge Bordwell, and all the sputtering and fuming had

PACIFIC FLEET WILL MOVE NORTH FOR INSPECTION

Battleship Oregon Enters San Diego Bay and Is Thronged by Visitors.

WARSHIP LOOKS ODD AS IT RIDES AT ANCHOR

Officers of Vessels Are Royally Treated by Citizens of the Southern City.

SAN DIEGO, Oct. 25.—Under convoy of the navy tug Fortune, acting mother ship, the two submarines Grampus and Pike left after sundown this evening for San Pedro. This will be the first northward movement of the Pacific fleet for the mobilization, for inspection and review off San Pedro next Wednesday, and incidentally the longest voyage for submarines made on this coast since the two little boats came to San Diego bay from the Mare Island yard more than a year ago.

The battleship Oregon entered San Diego bay at 7 o'clock this morning. At noon the only ships of the Pacific fleet scheduled to enter the bay and remain until Monday still outside were the cruiser South Dakota, the collier Promes and the supply ship Glacier. Places for them had been reserved in man-of-war row and they took their positions in the line this afternoon.

THRONGED BY CROWDS.

Rear-Admiral Chauncy Thomas, commander-in-chief; Rear-Admiral Southerland, commanding the second division, and their staffs were guests of the Chamber of Commerce at an informal luncheon this noon. He stated that the ships would clear from San Diego bay Monday and Tuesday.

All the ships in the bay were thrown open to visitors this afternoon and soon were packed with sightseers. Crowds lined the waterfront to look at the Oregon. Liberty parties were ashore this afternoon from all the ships and as the men are being paid off as fast as possible, nearly all have money.

The voyage of the Oregon to San Diego was without incident. She entered the harbor at low tide and was given a post of honor in the line just north of the flagship of the second division.

OREGON HAS ODD LOOK.

It is manned by 650 officers and men of the cruiser Pennsylvania, now out of commission at Bremerton. Compared to the rest of the fleet, the battleship looks odd. All of the cruisers apparently sit high out of the water and the low freeboard of the Oregon makes it look much smaller than any of the other ships excepting the Raleigh and Cincinnati. The armament of thirteen-inch and eight-inch guns looms up large compared with the armament of the cruisers, however, and curiosity to see the big guns soon packed the old battleship from stem to stern and from the upper decks to the hold with visitors.

MARRIES, HAS CHILDREN, WHILE SQUASH CAN IS SOLD

BOSTON, Oct. 28.—The Society of Canned Fruits received another recruit the other day when a Boston grocer's clerk sent an ardent note to a young woman who had written her name on the label of a can of squash. He was about to sell the canned squash when he noticed the name and address. With a slight blush he slipped the can under the counter and sold another one.

At a favorable moment he indited a missive to the squash canner, mentioning himself favorably and offering to correspond further. Now he is wondering how to get that squash ripened under the autumn suns. Furthermore, he says he knows how a canned squash really tastes. The letter he received in answer to his note reads:

"My Dear Boy: Times have changed since I packed that can of squash and wrote my name on the label. I have married since then and have a family of my own. You should have written sooner."

KOHLER & CHASE CO-OPERATIVE PIANO & PLAYER-PIANO CLUB

The unparalleled success of our San Francisco Club of 1910 conclusively proved the piano-buying public appreciate the enormous money-saving power of co-operation—they know that participation in a huge wholesale purchase gives the greatest economy and maximum quality. Hence our decision to organize this much greater Club, extending throughout four Pacific States, thereby obtaining absolute preponderance in purchasing power and still greater benefits for the individual piano-buyer. Club members will immediately participate in this, the greatest profit-sharing plan ever conceived and carried out in the piano business.

After an entire year devoted to planning and organizing this great Co-operative Club—a year, during which Mr. Chase has visited every important piano manufacturing center in the United States—we announce

The Plan and the Pianos

Every Club instrument is of the most reliable and trustworthy character; built throughout by sturdy German labor, with selected, seasoned, tested materials, under the direct supervision of expert craftsmen, in the leading piano manufactories of the world. We ourselves have personally tested and handled all these makes for over fifteen years and in one case, for forty years.

Their value is far greater than the prices charged to club members—hundreds of them have been sold right in this city and the adjoining suburbs for far more than the club prices—hundreds more are being regularly sold all over the United States at far higher prices—measured by any standard of value you wish they are worth far more! If we were to sell these Pianos and Player-Pianos in the ordinary course of business to fifty or even one hundred customers, we could not do so at these prices—it is only by the co-operation of at least 1,250 buyers that we can effect these tremendous price-savings and other privileges; but you don't have to wait—you get your piano now—we take the risk of this huge purchase.

Full particulars of this unique and generous Club Bonus Plan are printed on the back of every Club Coupon Book.

Special Advantages of This Club

Every instrument is guaranteed without reserve—for five years. There are no "ifs" or "ands" in the guarantee—just a straight out guarantee, as strong as we know how to make it in writing. If, after 30 days' trial, the piano is not satisfactory we will give you your money back. Every club member has a full year in which to satisfy himself as to the character of the piano. If it does not prove to be everything that you expected you have the privilege of exchanging it without one penny's loss for any other instrument of equal or greater value that we sell. If a club member dies during the life of the contract we will immediately send a receipt in full for the instrument. A beautiful stool to match the piano is included without extra cost. In this city the piano will be tuned twice without charge.

The minimum saving to the Club is $98.750. It will take 66 solid carloads to deliver this order—more than four trainloads.

The 1250 Pianos and Player-Pianos, if placed end to end, would reach considerably over a mile.

The saving to each club member will pay for the musical education of a child for two years.

The saving to each club member would pay the first installment on the purchase of a home.

HISTORIC EVENT ON SCREEN

"Lady Godiva" Will Be Shown at Popular Lyric Theater.

The Lyric Theater announces "Lady Godiva," a picture based upon the old English legend of the same title—a beautiful picture, well worth seeing, which has historical interest of the eleventh century, and the manners and customs of the people of the celebrated and quaint town of Coventry, made famous in the literature of many periods.

Many Americans with the delightful story of the sacrifice of Lady Godiva, who agreed to ride naked through the streets of Coventry, that a severe tax imposed by her husband upon an impoverished people might be remitted. The story relates at length how she accomplished the task. Mantled by her wealth of golden hair, she rode a mille white steed through the streets, after all the people had been strictly enjoined to remain within their abodes and gaze upon her as she passed. Only one disobeys the injunction, and he, in punishment for his curiosity and disobedience was struck blind and ever afterward known as Peeping Tom.

There are many dramatic situations in this picture, especially where the appearance of Lady Godiva is anticipated as she is about to start upon her journey. Within the picture, in the church, the scene suddenly changes to the church of "Peeping Tom," whose unrestrained indiscretions are suggestively contagious and fills us with a strong disapproval of the lack of appreciation he displays for the magnificence of the price of his and his neighbor's debts. Coming through an aperture a crack in the window shutter, through which he tries to gaze upon the form of his benefactor. No sooner do his eyes penetrate the crevice than he is struck blind. The acting of Mr. Wilson as "Peeping Tom" is a stroke of genius and art.

When Lady Godiva has passed through the cathedral and fulfilled her mission of love and compassion, which she was willing to sacrifice so much, she returns with a full realization of her husband's severity and tyranny. This climax touches our sympathies and we grasp the refine-ment and culture displayed by Miss Swann in acting this part so admirably and successfully—a matter not easy to accomplish.

NINE TRIBES SEEK MONEY FROM U.S.

Western Indians Would Have Use of the Vast Sums Due Them.

SPOKANE, Wash., Oct. 28.—Nine tribes of western Indians in Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana have retained Harry H. Phipps of Spokane to represent them in presenting a memorial at the next session of Congress to obtain money be-longing to them. He will start for Washington the latter part of November. The tribes in the pact are: Pend Oreille, Cayuse, Nez Perce, Colville, Kootenay and Blackfeet.

In addition to the awards, some of which date back 25 years, efforts will be made to obtain allotments of 80 acres of agricultural land or 160 acres of grazing land for each Indian child born since the adoption of the 1907 treaty. It is pur-pose to present these tribal claims to the court of claims for adjustment by the government.

The Indians are losing the use of vast sums of money belonging to the tribes, and this action is to secure a settlement. Judge Webster of the district court at Missoula, Mont., has made the formal certification authorizing Mr. Phipps to represent the various tribes.

CHINESE INSURGENTS BEATEN AT HANKOW

Imperial Troops Recapture City and Important Railroad, Thus Stemming Tide Against Manchu Sovereignty

PEKING, Oct. 28.—The Chinese revolutionists received their first setback in their successful uprising against the Manchu dynasty when the imperial troops yesterday recaptured the city of Hankow after an all-day fight. The casualties of the imperial army amounted to about 200, while the rebels lost 450.

The recapture of Pih Sien, a city in Sze Chuen province, by the government forces is officially confirmed.

IMPERIAL CONTROL RAILWAY. WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—The control of the entire railroad line from Peking to Hankow by the imperial Chinese forces was reported to the Chinese legation here today in cables from Peking. These dispatches confirm the report of an imperial victory north of Hankow yesterday and added that the imperial forces had completed the railroad station in Hankow.

DRIVE REBELS FROM TRENCHES. The imperial troops advanced within 500 yards before beginning the attack. The rebels were forced to abandon the trenches and the imperial troops then entered the native city. A second engagement was fought at the Sao Tao bridge, where the rebels were forced from their position at Liu Chia temple. This paved the way for entry into the other division of Hankow, and though possession was assumed last night, the city was not occupied until today.

Large quantities of guns and ammunition fell into the hands of the imperialists. The revolutionists have fallen back across the Han river into Hankang.

CAUSE IS DESPERATE.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 28.—The dispatches telling of a government victory at Hankow are received here, even in official circles, with incredulity. The situation around Shanghai and along the lower part of the Yangtze River appears desperate for the government. There are persistent reports that Chiang Kiang is about to fall into rebel hands. This is about 150 miles above Shanghai, and is regarded here as the keystone of Shanghai's defense. If Chiang Kiang falls it is conceded that all the forts below, here, as far as Wu Sung, will quickly follow. Wu Sung, which is ten miles above Shanghai, marks this city's last defense.

The wealthy city of Suchow, west of Shanghai, is also threatened, while above Chiang Kiang the four cities—Nanking, Yangchow and Wu-hu—are believed to be in danger. All of these places reported today that while the situation was quiet on the surface there is open sympathy for the rebel cause and probably little effective resistance would be offered to the attack when it comes.

The report that Canton had fallen into the hands of the revolutionists proved erroneous, but there is much credence in it. The city has declined to contribute men or money to support the government.

POWERS GUARD SHIENG.

Owing to the persistency of the radical element in the national assembly in demanding the beheading of Sheng Hsuan Hua, former minister of communications, who was recently dismissed in disgrace, it has been decided to place a guard at his disposal. This force, which will go to Tsin Tsin, once will be commanded by an American officer and will consist of two soldiers from the American, Brit-

'DEMOCRATS MUST LEAD PROGRESSIVES'—WILSON

New Jersey's Governor Says People Are Awakening to Fact That a Few Politicians Have Been Running Country

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 28.—Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey delivered an address here today at the state fair. In part he said:

"There was a time, but three or four years ago, when we stood high in the councils of the nation, only to ask the question: 'What was to become of the powers of the states?' passing the inquiry, not because they entertained any jealousy of those powers, but because, apparently, the states were not inclined to exercise them, were lethargic and indifferent in the presence of conditions which needed thoughtful and effective remedy. But such talk has ceased, the states have asserted themselves, each is attempting a systematic treatment of its own problems, studying them from the point of view of its own people, and adapting the remedy to the circumstances."

"Texas led the way in this renaissance of the functions of the states, but all the country is now quick with the new life and America is beginning once again to realize the happy circumstance that our diversified conditions can be met without any futile attempt to apply a too uniform remedy. Our states are our testing grounds, and they have full power and authority to make trial of the remedies which we have devised for them. In many instances it is desirable, however, that we should co-operate and bring about as nearly as possible uniform regulation. But in others we shall be strong only when we adapt ourselves most perfectly to the variety of our people, of our soil, of our products, of our social and economic development."

DANGER OF CONCENTRATION.

"The states are the political laboratories of a free people. Their self-adjustment is the most vital process of our life. The danger of a too great concentration of authority in the government at Washington is not so much a constitutional danger as a practical danger. It is the danger of an artificial uniformity of arbitrary unity, of a system without elasticity, of regulation without local accommodations."

"One of the reasons why our states lagged in the exercise of their powers; one of the reasons why the question arose whether they were going to exercise them or let them lapse by neglect, was that they did not have such political arrangements as made it easy for public opinion to tell upon legislation and effect the objects which thoughtful and public-spirited men had long had in mind."

"There had been going on all over the United States a process of change, a political and political, a political change, in another, by another, but almost everywhere there was this common difficulty, that the government did not seem easily responsive to opinion; that the people seemed caught in an elaborate machinery of politics, which could be so used as again and again and again to cheat them of the objects they sought, which seemed to put the whole control of affairs in the hands of small coteries of men who were exercising it too often for private and not for public objects. As I said, the result of this was the utmost wedge separated in this respect as in many others, but it was true in so many states that men had begun to ask themselves, whether we were not living in a fool's paradise; whether we were not boasting of representative institutions, when we really did not have them; whether we were not caught in an elaborate system of elections, and delegations of power which made our government virtually independent of the force of general opinion."

REFORM IS BEGUN.

"It is worth while to note that the chief representatives of the progressive political thought of the country are the men who are here, who always go into debate furnished from top to toe with the facts of the case they are discussing; that their speech is not framed with rhetoric, but bristling with verifiable facts. They are seeking adjustment, accom-

NEW SCIENCE OF MEDICINE FOUND

Boston Physician Discovers Method Which Shows Great Success.

Intense interest has been aroused in the Bay Cities recently by the introduction here of a new system of medical treatment to which many remarkable cures are ascribed. The new system is known as the "Lanham Method," and it is said to be based on the doctrines of the officially recognized "Eclectic" school of medicine.

The theory of this new practice consists of "specific diagnosis and specific medication," which, in plain English, means a particular remedy, or combination of remedies, for each particular ailment or combination of ailments. The new science "selects the best" from all schools of medicine and is in radical opposition to the old-time barbaric methods of making a patient sick to get him well. The principle of the new system of treatment is to build up the bodily and bodily strength of the sick man or woman, and to supplement this with the specific remedy which tends to counteract the specific complaint from which one suffers.

The Lanham Eclectic method is the discovery of a Boston physician, who has quietly gathered about him a large number of sympathetic practitioners who have brought the new system to its present state approaching perfection. Among these are several California physicians, and it is planned to open an Institute, or laboratory, in this city for treatment of patients. Offices will be opened in the Bacon building, Suite 33 and 34, Tuesday of this week.

One of the group of local physicians who are interested in the new venture said yesterday: "This new Lanham system of treatment has worked wonders wherever introduced throughout the United States. While based on the progressive Eclectic method, which is one of the old schools for centuries, it contains many radical modern features which have proved a tremendous success. It is not a new science, by any means, but rather the logical development, along twentieth century lines, of principles of medicine which have been proved sound by many years of experimentation and practice."

POLICE OFFICER KEYES ILL. ALAMEDA, Oct. 28.—Detective Charles Keyes of the local police department is confined to his bed as the result of a severe case of rheumatism. It is probable that he will be unable to report for duty for a week or ten days.

For your love seems drifting away,
Farther from me day by day;

Like waters flowing beyond the mill,
My love no more your heart does thrill;
Like the sinking sun at the close of day,
Your love seems drifting away.

STEAMER CUT IN TWO IN COLLISION

Steel Vessel Slices Its Way Through Wooden Craft
During Fog.

SEATTLE, Oct. 28.—During a dense fog at midnight the steamship Iroquois, outbound from Seattle with passengers for Victoria, struck the freight steamer Multnomah, from Tacoma to Seattle, and cut her in two. The Multnomah was sunk in very deep water. All the persons on board were saved. Fifteen head of cattle went down with the Multnomah. The Iroquois proceeded apparently undamaged.

The Iroquois, a fine steel ship of 1169 tons, left the Canadian Pacific pier at 11:30 o'clock under charter to the Canadian Pacific and carrying passengers for Victoria. She is owned by the Inland Navigation Company.

The Multnomah, a wooden stern-wheeler, but for the Columbia river passenger trade, was coming up to her pier at Olympia and Tacoma with freight. The fog was so thick that a light could be seen only a few feet, and there was a bewildering tumult of fog whistles.

Both boats were proceeding with caution because of thick weather, when suddenly the knife edge of the Iroquois sliced the fragile Multnomah almost clear through. The Iroquois' engines were stopped at once and the crew of the wooden vessel were taken on the Iroquois, which put back to her pier and landed the men.

The Multnomah's wreckage went to the bottom as soon as the Iroquois disengaged herself. No one was injured on either boat.

The Multnomah, which was owned by the Olympia Navigation Company, was built at Portland, Ore., and was a favorite passenger vessel on the Columbia river for many years. Estimates of her value range between $15,000 and $25,000. She is a total loss.

STOCKS DULL TILL PANIC IN STEEL

Government's Suit Stirs Things
Up in Otherwise Peaceful Market.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The stock market was dull and peaceful as in mid-summer this week, until filing of the government's suit for the dissolution of the United States Steel Corporation threw it into confusion.

Alarmed felt by holders of the steel securities, who were others than from all parts of the country. Present volume resulted in severe declines not only in the securities directly affected, but in stocks of all kinds. This movement probably was much less violent, however, than would have been the case had it not been for the heavy liquidation of United States Steel last month, when it was believed that the suit was soon to be filed or that the corporation would dissolve voluntarily.

Trading during the greater part of the week was narrow and professional. Bonds were relatively more active than stocks. Speculation was restrained to some extent by the growth in opposition to the American Tobacco reorganization, and the decline in textile indications as to the outcome before entering upon fresh ventures.

The only real case of money was reflected in the metal cities, where the Prussian government obtained more than half of its $20,000,000 loan in this market. There was little change in the market, but a continuation of falling off in the demand for copper and indications that new orders for steel products were slowly dwindling, despite further reduction in prices.

EXPORTS FROM U. S. SHOW BIG INCREASES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Exports from the United States so far this year show large increases over those of last year, while imports have decreased. According to figures by the bureau of statistics, exports for the nine months ending with September last approximate $231,000,000 greater than those of the corresponding period last year, while imports were $39,000,000 less.

The largest single item in both exports and imports was in crude materials for use in manufacturing, manufactures ready for consumption coming second. Of the former the exports in September totaled almost $74,000,000, the imports $39,000,000.

COMPLEXION OF PARIS WOMAN HAS CHANGED

PARIS, Oct. 28.—The complexion of the Paris woman has changed this season. Last winter the prevailing mode was white with red lips. This autumn the out-door tint with the touch of dusky red in the neck has become the fashion. The leading hairdressers supply glistening eyes for the evening by four drops of a chemical formula.

The dressmakers of the Rue de la Paix continue to have a large number of women for them because of the sharp enforcement of American customs regulations. An American who formerly bought several costumes now takes one, just to have something from Paris.

TONE OF MARKET IN LONDON SATISFACTORY

LONDON, Oct. 28.—A slight reaction occurred in consols on the stock market today, but otherwise the tone was good. Some railway stocks were in increased request. Investment issues were firm. Discounts were unchanged. At Berlin the open market rate moved lower.

Paris exchange on London declined ½ centime to 25 francs 16 cents. Berlin rate advanced ¼ pfennig to 20 marks 48½ pfennigs.

PENTECOSTAL MEETINGS WILL BE HELD TODAY

Pentecostal meetings will be held this morning at the corner of Sixteenth and Jefferson streets, where scriptural lessons will be delivered by laymen. Services will also be held Tuesday, Thursday and Friday evenings at 7:30 o'clock. Short meetings will be conducted Tuesday and Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

HOW GERMS SPREAD SKIN DISEASE

Eczema, Psoriasis, and other skin troubles are caused by bacteria of germs at work in the skin. Under favorable conditions they rapidly multiply, gnawing their way deep into the sensitive tissue. This is what causes that awful itch, and what seemed a mere rash, becomes worse and develop into a soreness and torturing skin disease with its years of misery.

Don't take any chances! Destroy the germs at the beginning of the trouble with that soothing and cleansing wash, the U. S. Preparation, by Zemza.

MOORE DIVORCE STARTS THE TONGUE OF GOSSIP

AN FRANCISCO, Oct. 28.—The pending divorce suits of the J. J. Moores have not been unexpected in our society, for the scraps of beauty and the beast have long been on the tongues of the gossips.³

The pair used to live at the Fairmont. Well, you know that when the Law brothers fitted up that hostelry after the fire they skimped it sadly.

The walls are not deadened, and it is possible to hear what goes on from room to room much as you can in a cloth and paper country hotel.

The people who lived next to the Moores had strange tales to tell of what used to go on between husband and wife. I suppose a lot of this will come out in the trial and it will make mighty lively reading.

One of the favorite Fairmont yarns was that he used to come home and "kick in her slats." She'd show up with a black eye or swollen nose and explain that she had some accident. Then, in contrition; he'd buy her a beautiful jewel and she'd let it go at that.

She's very pretty still and has a charming style, while he has long been numbered among the rich boors in the Pacific Union Club, so society is praying she'll get a fat alimony.

Talking Bob Is at It Again

Admiral Talking Bob Evans has been in California again, and there has been some question whether he is just at himself. It isn't that he was lured into heading that oil syndicate, but he's been exuding another interview.

Bob has been saying again that Los Angeles is the only Pacific Coast harbor where the railroads do not own most of the water-front.

Now, when Bob said that first people regarded him with a smiling pity, for a sea dog wasn't expected to know accurately about land matters. There was considerable effort to set him right.

But now he's said it again, and his case is getting a little pitiful. Of course the State owns nearly all the San Francisco water-front, and Oakland owns the best part of her frontage. Los Angeles is in the poorest position of the lot in this regard, but Talking Bob got headed the wrong way and can't change his course.

A Cloud On the Horizon

People who are sniffing up the wind say they detect the coming of a labor storm next month. The people involved are the iron manufacturers and the iron workers.

At present San Francisco pays more for less hours in the iron trades than do Los Angeles, Portland or Seattle, and the manufacturers say the cities north and south are in consequence getting away with the business. They have been chafing a good deal about it.

The agreement between the manufacturers and the workers will expire on November 10th, if I am not very much mistaken in the date. Under that agreement there was to be an adjustment next month so that conditions in San Francisco and the competitive cities were to be equalized. That is, either the workmen were to get the hours shortened and the pay raised in Portland, Seattle and Los Angeles, or they were to lower their pay and lengthen their hours here to correspond to the pay and hours in the other cities.

But I'm told that no meeting for arbitration and agreement has yet been possible, the labor leaders holding off. If this be true we may find trouble afoot in our city of industrial peace.

The New Game of Noir Et Noir

"The colored population of San Francisco is very small," said Colonel X. of the Southern Club. "It must have less negroes in proportion than any other big city."

"What's up now, Colonel?" asked a friend. "Been combing the census reports?"

"No, but we noticed it the other day when we tried to start the game of noir et noir."

"What's that game, Colonel—anything like rouge et noir?"

"Oh, no; noir et noir is just 'nigger up—nigger down.' It's a game that was invented by Oliver Belmont and used to be played at the Union Club in New York. Two men merely bet which way on the street, up or down, the most negroes will come. They play it in Los Angeles, where there are lots of negroes and not much to do in the way of amusement. A man bets his friend, say a dollar, that a colored person will come up the street before one goes down. He wins or loses and the betting keeps on."

"Once at the Union Club Tom McCaleb saw a negro funeral coming up the street. He jumped into a taxi, beat the funeral to the club, bet fives and tens with everybody on 'nigger up' and nearly broke the club when that funeral procession passed.

"But we tried to start it here, and the colored population is so small the betting wouldn't keep a man awake."

The Party She Was Affiliated With

"Ah wants ter voht!" said a buxom colored wench as she stepped up to the registration clerk.

So the clerk got out his blank and found height, weight, birthplace and even age without much difficulty. Then came the question:

"What party are you affiliated with?"

"Whas at, boss?"

"What party are you affiliated with?"

"Does ah have-ter ahnsah dat?"

"You must answer all the questions or you can't vote."

"Mus ahnsah or not voht?"

"Yes."

"Say, boss! I'se been ahfiliated wid er white pahty, but he's marrid, an ah promiss nevah ter tell hes name. Ah'll not voht, boss."

And the Wise Guy Won

Out at the Registrar's office a lot of hangers-on—young fellows with an eye for sport—got to making book on the women who would come up to register. They'd see a woman coming, size her up and each would state a number and put up a dollar that the number would be nearest the age given by the woman on her registration certificate.

After the woman had gone they'd rush up to the desk and ascertain what age she had given. Then the man with the number nearest the mark would rake in the pot.

It began to be noticed that one chap was quite phenomenally successful. At first it was attributed to luck, but after the lucky man had won a lot of the money, the others tumbled to his game and found he had been working a simple system.

He merely waited till the others had chosen their numbers. Then he chose a smaller one. The women nearly always gave ages younger than they looked, and the wise guy raked in the coin.

Is He Grooming for a Race?

I haven't noticed much in the papers about the locating in San Francisco of E. O. Miller—former Senator Ed. Miller of Visalia. Yet that move may mean some big Democratic politics.

You know Miller was the real choice of the Democrats for Governor last year. He could have had the nomination sure as shooting if he would have taken it. In fact Gavin McNab, M. F. Tarpey and the big party leaders were lined up for him. But either because of political wisdom or because his health really was bad he said "no" and stuck to it.

Now Miller was the leader of the State Senate when he was there. He has brains and courtesy and a way of making himself popular. And now he's at the Bellevue Hotel and intends to make San Francisco his home. Suppose he should go back to the State Senate from this city and make as good again as he did before, isn't he going to be a formidable Democratic nominee for Governor?

He Has Given Up New York

A short time ago there were many inquiries as to what had become of our old friend, D. M. Delmas. It was noted that he was no longer in New York and no longer a partner with Towne in the law business. But he hadn't come back to San Francisco, and naturally the question, arose, where, oh where, is he?

A lawyer just back from the south tells me that the brilliant advocate has located in Los Angeles. He has a will contest to start with, and has decided to make his home in the southern city. His old partner, Henry C. McPike, formerly of Oakland, is still with him.

The Wit of the New President

William Sproule, the new president of the Southern Pacific, has a shrewd tongue, and a pretty wit. That was recognized in the old days at the Pacific Union Club, when he used to hold his own with Horace Platt, Lansing Mizner, Frank Michael, Billy Stafford and others of a brilliant coterie.

The other day an important and pestiferous club man got a sidewise that showed that the cutting edge of the new president's tongue hadn't been dulled any by his promotion. The man was one of these fussy fellows, and he had pestered Sproule for a long time with trivialities until he asked:

"How do you pronounce your name, sir—Sproule or Sprowl?"

"O-u, as in towel and bowel," at once came the cynical reply.

Greenway refuses to say how many names from his list of invitations of past years have been stricken off by the committee of twenty women. His intimates assert, however, that the list for this winter season contains but 200 names. The latter therefore can and will be considered by those who care for those things as the socially elect of San Francisco. Not until the dance of Friday night takes place and the daily papers publish those who were present will the general public get a definite idea of who are considered to be ultra fashionable in this burg. At that time, also, many on the favored list will, for the first time, find out who has been dropped from former season's dances. Those blue penciled know their fate by this date all right, all right, for the coveted invitations are already out and they are in the minus roll.

Greenway insists that as the committee of twenty has done most of the pruning it must back him up in his protests against any one being admitted who lives here and is not on the list. The committee has given him its promise.

Later in the season, it is said, Mrs. John R. Drexel, the Newport and Philadelphia society leader, who has a 150-charmed set of her own in opposition to a similar set headed by Mrs. Ogden Mills of Newport and New York, is to grace one of these dances with her presence while on a winter outing to the coast. Rumor also has it that Mrs. Theodore P. Shonts and Miss Shonts of New York are to be present at one of these affairs at the invitation of the William H. Crokers. These ladies are respectively the wife and daughter of the steel railway magnate of New York, Theodore P. Shonts, who is also a large owner in Western steam railroads and at one time was chairman of the Panama Canal Commission. His other daughter is the Duchess de Chatlines of Paris, now a widow with a young duke of a son having a name as long as a summer garden hose.

Objected to Silk Pajamas

A young and talented clergyman, who has been ill in one of the hospitals suffering from a bad cold and rheumatism, is good, naturally enduring the chaffing and joking of several ministerial friends over an incident which happened several days after he was taken to the sanitarium. It appears the young reverend is fond of wearing embroidered pajamas, silky and thin. He is credited with possessing quite a number of pairs of these up-to-date and artistic undergarments. One of his superiors is very fond of the minister and was not long in paying him a visit after hearing of his sickness. The superior is a practical, hard-headed fellow who does not wear pajamas. While he is not opposed to others wearing them, he does not think they're the thing for a man afflicted with colds and rheumatic pains. Seeing what his junior was wearing, he did not hesitate to give him this advice:

"I think you will get better quicker if you put on a thick red night gown."

Can You Really Believe This?

You may become a doubting Thomas when you read this tale, but it is nevertheless a fact.

She was young and pretty.

She had no baggage when she registered at a hotel in the neighborhood of Union Square and sweetly said that she intended to remain only three or four hours. She was charged a dollar for her room and paid in advance. Half an hour later she telephoned the clerk for a bellhop. On the appearance of that worthy she asked to be shown to the rooms of the clothes presser and tailor. In a jiffy she was ushered into the presence of that hard-working, middle-aged and cheery-faced Benedict. Locking his door she demurely asked him if he would sew a button on an intimate piece of lingerie and then press them. Ily concealing his surprise and pleasure, the man replied in the affirmative. Strictly business, the pretty guest bounded over into a corner, removed the bit of female apparel and handed it to the man in charge, who was now more cheery and pleasant than he had been in many a long day. The work was done properly but with no haste. Once finished the bit of lingerie was soon out of sight in its accustomed place. The workman wanted no money. His fair customer put a dollar on his table, thanked him, unlocked the door and walked out.

A couple of hours later the young woman sped away in an automobile.

The presser of clothes has not yet recovered from his surprise and pleasure, both of which he is still exhibiting by quiet chuckles to himself.

Governor Wilson Criticises Hymns

Against the recent criticism of Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey that the hymn "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" was too "ambiguous and nonsensical" to retain a place in the hymn book, a prominent Methodist divine of this city informed me the other many political idols in the southern republic during the past few months," remarked a leading San Franciscan who has large interests in that country, last evening. "Many thought Bernardo Reyes, at one time the idol of the army and Secretary of War in the Diaz government, would survive the ordeal and ride into power. You saw the other day where he is utterly down and out, where he was insulted in the streets of the City of Mexico, and as a candidate for President against Madero was a mere joke."

"I knew General Reyes very well. He is a man of some ability. But he is abnormally self-conscious, likes to pose and is extremely peevish and dictatorial. These attributes did not make him a strong character and I always wondered why Diaz at one time was jealous of him, fearing that he might lead a coup d'état. Let me tell you what I personally saw about Reyes a couple of years ago while I was walking along one of the main streets of the Mexican capital. Reyes, in full uniform, was on a prancing steed. From all sides, passers-by were saluting him. Beneath a shade tree on a bench sat several señoritas talking and laughing among themselves. Frowning, the general rode up to where they were and roughly demanded to know:

"Why are you making fun of me?"

"Afrighted, the pretty, innocent young ladies made profound bows and said:

"Most gracious señor, we were not laughing at you."

"You lie, all of you," was his rough reply, and then he rode on.

"From that time I had no more use for Reyes and am not surprised that as an idol he has completely collapsed."

His Signature Was a Little Irregular

Mr. _____, who is a wealthy cattleman and bank director over in Nevada, has, after considerable delay, paid two checks and saved himself a suit in the courts. We will call him Mr. Blank instead of giving the name he writes on the Palace register whenever he comes to town, which is frequently. A couple of nights before the September primary our Nevada friend took a fling in the tenderloin. At a cafe on Turk street, he licked up a lot of laughing water and then purchased more by giving a check for $50 on the Nixon National Bank of Reno. The signature on the check was a bit scrawly. Later on at the same saloon he bet Dr. Charles Strub, a dentist, $100 on McCarthy's chances for Mayor. Mr. Blank wrote out a check on the Crocker National Bank for the amount. Strub did the same thing. Schwerin was the stakeholder. A week later the saloonman sent his $50 check to the Nixon National Bank for payment. Back came the prompt answer, "Decline to cash check for the reason that the signature is irregular." Strub, having won his bet, presented Mr. Blank's $100 check to the Crocker National Bank to be cashed. That bank refused to cash it without giving any reason. A second demand met with the same treatment. A sharp, personal letter was then forwarded to Mr. Blank asking him why checks written by a man of his position in the business world should be dishonored. A couple of days ago a friend of Blank's called and cashed the checks. He vouchsafed no explanation why they had at first been dishonored by the Reno and local banks. Anyhow, the money has been paid, so the affair is a closed incident.

The Presidents of Wells, Fargo

It is rather flattering to California that Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express in selecting its presidents always gets somebody who was either born within the limits of California or who has been prominently identified with its interests in some way. The late Mr. Valentine of your city was for years its president. Before him other Californians, like Lloyd Tevis, were at its head. After Valentine, Edward H. Harriman entered the presidency. He removed the office to New York. Colonel Dudley Evans, an old-timer on the coast, succeeded Harriman. Then came William Sproule, who resigned the office a week or two ago to come back here as president of the Southern Pacific Company. Sproule's successor with the express company is a native son. B. D. Caldwell is his name and he was born in Placerville in 1858. Caldwell, before taking this job, had achieved success in the railway world and resigned the vice-presidency of the Delaware & Lackawanna road to succeed Sproule with the express company. Caldwell, who will soon visit the city on official business, was fifteen years of age when he moved East with his parents. At that time, his friends say, it was the ambition of his life to become a stage driver, for the company he is now the head of, and he was greatly disappointed when his parents frowned on his ambition and took him east for a quieter vocation amid less stirring surroundings.

THE KNAVE

day that Governor Wilson some years ago, while president of Princeton University, severely criticized another popular hymn, which begins with the words:

"Oh, to be Nothing, Nothing,

Only to lie at His feet."

My reverend friend says Wilson in criticizing the latter song took the ground that it taught an abashment that Christ never intended His followers should take. Rather, they should be something, somebody, and reflect credit on Christ's divine teachings through what their aid could make them attain to. My friend thinks Wilson was right in his attack on this latter hymn. He does not agree with him in his attack on the "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" because it expresses a comforting, sweet sentiment, a sweet, longing hope to many bereaved people who have lost loved ones.

Characteristic Story of Sproule

A pretty story comes from New York about William Sproule, the new president of the Southern Pacific Company.

The man who vouches for its truth says it is characteristic of Sproule's ideas of friendship and of his devotion to his friends. In his younger days here the railroad president and three other men were great cronies. One of them, richer than the rest, is now pretty hard up in New York. The other two have fine positions in the metropolis. About a year ago when Sproule had just left the Guggenheim to go with Wells, Fargo's Express as its president, this broken-down friend of earlier days called at his office when he was busy at a directors' meeting. The fellow had already been to see the other two men he had at one time been chummy with on this coast. One had sent out word he could not see him. The other was busy, but sent out word for him to call the first of the next week. The man was waiting in the anteroom to see Sproule when the latter passed through with a director who was going away from the meeting early. Sproule recognized the former San Franciscan, shook him warmly by the hand, told him to wait a moment and then walked out with the director. Coming back, Sproule had a brief chat with his old friend. He then had his secretary take him in his automobile to his residence, with the injunction to remain there with the members of his family and join them at dinner when he got home. The man was made to feel at home there for a week. By that time, Sproule saw that he had a position where he could be, as was his desire, independent and able to at least live in comfort.

Wrecked by the Opium Habit

The death of a certain able physician and surgeon in a certain town in California recently recalls how some of his professional friends in this city drastically tried to save him from himself and cure him from the morphine habit. One night while under the influence of the terrible drug here, they kidnaped him and imprisoned him in a certain hospital. There he was kept in close confinement for two months. By day and at night, strong male attendants were ever present to prevent his escape and try and make him amenable to discipline. A most recalcitrant patient, he cried out one evening to a couple of doctors who were trying to minister to him:

"By what right do you keep me here?"

"By the right of might, a friendship of many years and with the hope of curing you of the curse that is sapping your manhood and life," was their reply.

Their noble intentions and efforts were in vain. He ended by becoming a harmless insanity subject, lingering a little while in another town until the spark of life departed.

When the poisonous fit of the drug was on him, this man wrote some strange dreams, startling hallucinations and colorful weird imagery that rivaled here and there some of the things to be found in De Quincey's "Confessions." In successfully treating members of several respectable families for the opium habit, this unfortunate man of ability first tasted of the drug lightly, and finally was held fast in its clutches.

Hearst Saw Humor of It

The return of William Randolph Hearst to the National Democracy, with the consequent abandonment of the Independence League, recalls how some two years ago an unfriendly editor in Southern California wrote a pointed editorial brevity in his paper about the league. A friend of Hearst's, knowing his strong sense of humor, mailed a marked copy of the paper to him. The editorial brevity was as follows:

"The Independence League is not a party. It is a pay roll."

Hearst is represented by his friends as having laughed very heartily over this Southern Californian's opinion of the league and is said to have remarked that the man who penned it gave promise of being a new star among humorous writers.

By the way, Dent H. Robert, who was sent to Europe several months ago by Hearst on account of sickness, is rapidly recovering. Just before leaving London for home several weeks ago, Hearst sent over to the continent to Robert his 90-horse power touring car with instructions to use it extensively and not return to this city until he felt himself fully restored to health.

Hotels and Apartment Houses

The latest revised hotel and apartment list of the San Francisco Convention League shows this city to have 1591 hotels, lodging houses, rooming houses and apartment houses. This is about 700 more than the city possessed in April, 1906. These places in the aggregate accommodate 160,000 people. Many of them are constantly full. All told, they can house easily an extra crush of say 60,000 in a week. San Francisco is not a city of homes like Oakland or Los Angeles; which explains why there are so many of these transient-travel structures here. But with all this large number, the demand is not yet evidently well supplied. A hundred more are in process of erection in the district north of Market street and between Van Ness and Powell. A couple of architects tell me that it is safe to state plans for 200 more are in various stages of perfection in architects' offices, most of which are destined for the part of the city just mentioned, Nob Hill, once the site of the luxurious homes of railroad and mining multi-millionaires, is to be dotted with expensive apartment houses, which will not in the least detract from its two present architectural glories, the Fairmont hotel and the Pacific Union Club. Kearny and Sutter streets are looming up strong as hotel thoroughfares. Market, west from Powell, is soon to have several hotels. It is astonishing the number of syndicates being formed, each to control several hotels and apartment houses in various parts of town. Several syndicates are already in successful operation, notably the Palace-Fairmont, Edward Roelkin, with his chain of hotels, including the Argonaut, and the Harris crowd with the Stanford hotel on Kearny and a couple about ready for opening. Much of the activity in the building of these structures is because of the approaching exposition. There will be much more of this activity because of the fair in 1912 and 1913. The start is certainly a promising one. How far investors will go in this direction time only can tell. It is an impending harvest for architects and builders and also for the supply establishments and skilled mechanics.

They Will Attend the Durbar

In addition to the M. H. de Youngs and their two daughters, I understand the William Miller Grahams are to attend the durbar at Delhi, where, amid pomp and pageantry, King George and Queen Mary are to receive the homage of their Indian subjects and be crowned as the Emperor and Empress of India. Friends of the Grahams say they have decided to go to India direct from London. What other Californians will be there is hard to say—probably only a handful. A local steamship agent says his company has booked for the durbar direct from England, Maxine Elliott, the actress who is so popular in local society, and the Count and Countess of Grannard and Mr. and Mrs. John Ward. Mrs. Ward and the Countess Grannard are cousins of Miss Jennie Crocker. They wanted her to go with them, according to local society gossip, but she preferred to spend the winter here in her own home. Mrs. Ward is the daughter of Ambassador Whitelaw Reid, while the Countess Grannard is his niece. Both the de Youngs and the Grahams are on the best of terms with these various connections of Ambassador Reid and with the latter himself, so their visit to Delhi promises on that account and for other reasons to be as pleasant as they could wish for.

TAFT ADDRESSES MINING CONGRESS

President Endorses Alaskan Plans of Secretary of Interior.

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—President Taft in his address before the American Mining Congress today took considerable pains to make it clear that he fully endorsed the speech last night of Secretary of the Interior Walter L. Fisher, who outlined the government's plans for Alaska.

"If Secretary Fisher can straighten out the Alaska situation," said the President, "you can believe me he will have my undying gratitude as well as official approbation."

He said he hoped there was a "full in the muck raking and unnecessarily sharp criticism of those who were seeking to develop Alaska," and that the bureau of mines, created recently, would be able to lend hand to the adjustment of the situation there.

The following officers were chosen:

President, H. A. Taylor, Pittsburgh; first vice-president, D. W. Brunton, Denver; second vice-president, E. A. Montgomery, Los Angeles; Carl Scholl, Chicago; secretary, J. F. Calbraith, Denver.

The Congress then adjourned.

TOWNS SPRING UP LIKE MUSHROOMS

Vast Ranch Regions of Texas
Are Rapidly Changing Into Communities.

GALVESTON, Texas, Oct. 28.—Town development has become a science in Texas and it is said the average traveler and native Texan is kept on the jump to keep track of the new towns springing up in the ranch regions of Texas. Flourishing marts of trade have come into existence almost by magic in South Texas and all along the Gulf coast. It marks a new era for a region that has long been neglected in the matter of making good use of its natural resources.

These towns are the centers of both agricultural districts on ranges from which the cattlemen have been driven by the man behind the plow. The towns are being built along lines of civic beauty that presage much for the future greatness of the country.

Mushroom growths are not feared for it has been proved that a town in an agricultural section can grow no faster than the country around it.

STOCKS RECOVER SOME STRENGTH

President's Anti-Trust Attitude Still Causes Depression in Wall Street.

(By THOMAS C. SHOTWELL.)

WALL STREET, NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Under leadership of railroads, stocks recovered somewhat today from the extreme depression of the previous session.

Union Pacific and Canadian Pacific were used as leaders, the latter having an extreme advance of more than three points, most of which it held.

Some specialties advanced, notably National Biscuit and Can preferred. Erie was higher, although the report of operation for September showed a small decrease. Steel was barely steady and did not show the rallying power that was expected after the severe break of the previous day.

Further statements by President Taft and Attorney-General Wickesham that all violations of the Sherman anti-trust law would be punished, whether committed by capital or labor, tended to worry investors and prevent anything like a general recovery.

$16,000,000 TO RECLAIM 300,000 ACRES OF LAND

SPOKANE, Wash., Oct. 28.—Three thousand acres of land in the Horse Heaven country, in Klickitat, Yakima and Benton counties, south central Washington will be reclaimed by a $16,000,000 project upon which the Klickitat Irrigation and Power Company, L. M. Pierce, chief engineer, has started construction work near Goldendale. It is announced that 2000 men soon will be at work. The main canal, lined with concrete, will be required to complete the works. The main canal, lined with concrete, will be 25 feet in width at the top, 13 feet at the bottom and 12 feet in depth and 122 miles in length, with three primary laterals, aggregating 200 miles and 100 miles of distributing laterals. The project includes also five miles of tunnels, large storage reservoirs, dams and weirs. Four thousand feet of water will be required to cover the acreage. The land to be irrigated is owned by ranchers who will pay $60 an acre for the water rights in fifteen annual installments, the first being payable a year after water has been available for farming.

Hamilton, rector of the Episcopal church at Grant's Pass, Ore., who was a delegate to the council of the Episcopal church, will deliver a sermon this morning in St. Paul's church, Eighth and Grove streets. 'IF YOU CANNOT TRUST, KILL HIM'

American Consul Who Ended
Life Gives Advice in Note
He Leaves.

CEIBA, Honduras, Oct. 28.—Allan Gard, who was relieved this week as American consul here, committed suicide by shooting himself through the head. He had been despondent for several weeks.

Besides a small photograph of himself, which was torn into pieces, Gard left the following unsigned note on his desk:

"Yes, it has come to this; if you cannot trust a man, kill him. Procrastination, carelessness, negligent cowardice—bah!"

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Allan Gard's home was at South Orange, N. J. He served as a teacher in the Philippines, then as secretary and later as governor of Moro province. He was made consul at Selba in 1909.

SPLENDID WORK IS BEING DONE

Beautiful Rock Ridge Rapidly Becoming Very Popular.

Speaking of the situation in Rock Ridge, Mrs. Fred E. Reed of the Laymen's Real Estate Company, who are handling this property, said:

"We are right now at the point in Rock Ridge where the finishing work is just being put on the ground; treatment that it added to any ordinary subdivision would lift it from the commonplace to the extraordinary, and when added to a magnificent tract like Rock Ridge will make it one of the most beautiful residential parks in the country."

"We refer to the placing of cement work designed after the old Italian renaissance architecture throughout the tract—a buttress here, a seat there, a wall just beyond, or across, with a balcony above and below are to turn Rock Ridge into a veritable Old Italy. This high-class property which have been promising the public to make the most beautiful out of doors will take shape in full within the next few months."

"We are awaiting the first rains before planting the parkways between the sidewalks and curbs with their flowers. The seven parks which are to be dedicated to the city of Oakland have all been prepared for planting immediately after this first rain."

"The public of San Francisco will cross the bay Sunday afternoon this spring and, leaving the Oakland-Antioch station at Broadway right off the highway, the passengers will go on to look on our work in amazement. We are planning everything now for one grand climax in May when Rock Ridge will be complete. Our promise to give Oakland the most beautiful residential tract in the world is to-day being realized."

"The completion of the macadamizing of such splendid thoroughfare as Broadway with oiled macadam turns the attention of hundreds of automobile owners to Rock Ridge every Sunday. The Rock Ridge car and bungalow through the Country Club, too, carries its hundreds of people."

"Meanwhile our sales continue strong. With the coming of the Oakland-Antioch railroad, the Rock Ridge station to San Francisco of any of the good properties buyers from that side are coming to Rock Ridge in large numbers."

ODIVA TOSSSED ON SHORE OF SAMOA BY GREAT WAVES

ODIVA, the Water Queen.

Shrouded in mystery is the parentage of Odiva, the beautiful Samoan pearl diver about to begin a notable engagement at the Oakland Orpheum. Her feats are said to surpass even those of Annette Kellerman. The story of her early life is a marvelous romance. Even she knows very little about her forebears. Were it not for the kindly influence of missionaries working among the natives of the far-off Pacific archipelago she might even now be one of the motley crew of beach combers that frequent the shores of the little known islands.

Odiva knows only that her parents were English and were aboard a trading schooner that was lost in a Samoan storm. She and her mother were rescued from the waves, the latter soon succumbing to the violence of her conflict with the surf, while her father, the master of the vessel, was lost. A tiny white girl was like a new toy to the simple, kindly savages of the coast village, and she was soon the adopted daughter of the chief.

HOME IS WATER.
They crawl along the sand and they "dog paddle" through the water with just the same muscular exercise. It is small wonder that they grow to be practically amphibious, as much at home paddling about in the surf as walking erect on the shores where summer never ceases.

It must have been about 22 summers ago, Odiva could not tell even if she would, that a tiny child, was thrown into the kindly hands of the islanders of the Southern Seas. They allowed her to grow up as one of them. Thus she, too, became "amphibious." What more, indeed, than to be born with her inherent ambition, should soon surpass all her companions in aquatic sports?

She became the champion surf rider of the shores, and as she grew and waxed strong she became a diver of rare abilities. These she soon put to use and became a pearl hunter.

Now she is a vaudeville star.

LIKE WEB-FOOT FOWL.

Natives of Samoa, in early childhood, are much like web-footed fowl. The children are permitted to loll about the sun-kissed beach. It is but natural that occasionally one wave, higher than its fellows, sweeps up along the shore, and gathers in its foamy fringe the sun-crowned babies. There is no fear, however, of drowning, and why?

Have you ever watched an infant during the months preceding its first feeble attempts at walking, hitching itself along the floor? If you have noticed the movements of a baby's crawling, you will at once recognize them as identical with the motions of the sportive youngster of our own shores, who, before he has learned the precise, mechanical method of swimming, revels in what his more accomplished companions derisively call "dog paddling." So it is with the youngsters

RICH MAN WEDS HOTEL MATRON

Bride Is Niece of College Chum of Aged Groom and Millionaire.

LONG BEACH, Oct. 28.—With an entire lack of show and with a quiet simplicity that would be marked even in the marriage of a man and woman in ordinary circumstances, Mrs. Clara Rood Royce, former housekeeper of the Virginia hotel, became the wife of H. C. Alekey, the aged multi-millionaire of Minneapolis, at the home of the bride's mother, 348 East Nineteenth street, in this city, at 11 o'clock this morning. The Rev. O. H. L. Mason, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, officiated.

Only the immediate relatives and friends of the bride witnessed the ceremony. The couple left immediately on the Salt Lake road for Arrowhead Hot Springs, where they will spend their honeymoon. They will make their home in Pasadena for the winter.

The wedding of today resulted after a romance lasting more than a year, and beginning during an automobile ride, when the millionaire learned that Mrs. Royce was the niece of an old college chum. The acquaintances thus begun soon ripened into decided affection. Mr. Alekey had been spending the winter at the Hotel Virginia in Long Beach. When he left for the East at the beginning of the summer he carried with him the promise of Mrs. Royce's hand on his return to the coast in October.

Mr. Alekey, who, although 75 years old, is hearty and strong, is one of the most prominent lumbermen in the north—besides being a clubman, banker and man of extensive business interests and great wealth. He recently resigned his directorship from many of the enterprises in which he is heavily interested and will devote the remainder of his life to rest and recreation in Southern California.

HILLSIDE CLUB HOLDS

The investment is safe, the income is adequate, and the proposition is probably exactly what you are looking for.

COMPLETES 40TH YEAR IN POSTAL SERVICE

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Oct. 28.—W. B. Brown, a railroad postal clerk running between Dallas and Wichita Falls, has just completed his fortieth year in the service, all of which has been spent in Texas. He is said to have one of the longest records in the postal service.

Brown came to Texas just after the close of the Civil war and for some time carried the mails between Waco and Fort Worth. In 1878 he was appointed a route agent, the name at that time for postal clerks. His run was between Houston and Kosse, the terminus of the Houston & Texas Central. After several years he was given a run between Shreveport and Longview, on the Texas & Pacific, and made a record of thirty-one years on this road. He has been in a few wrecks, but none of consequence. He claims to be good for another twenty years of service.

FIRE DISCOVERED IN ROOF OF DWELLING

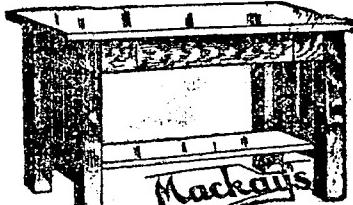

A small roof blaze at the residence of O. E. Lofgren, 1392 Twelfth street, shortly after 3:30 p. m. yesterday, called out the local fire department. The fire was believed to have been caused by a spark lighting on the dry shingles. The damage was very slight.

SOUTHERN TENNIS CHAMPION LOSES

John Strachan of San Francisco Takes Ward Dawson Into Camp.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 28.—As a result of today's play in the women's bay counties' championship singles tournament on the tennis courts at the park three players are now in the semi-final round. They are Miss George Tyler, Miss Anita Meyer and Miss Irene Norman. Miss Meyer will play for the other players in the semi-final round.

Between Misses A. N. Meyer and Miss Anita Meyer provided the best tennis of today. But one set remained to be played and it was won by Miss Meyer by a score of 6-3, 6-3, and the two sets were set more than a game or two separate the players. Miss Meyer won because of her superior steadiness. Miss Norman won from Mrs. Fletcher in straight sets, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4, and the third round match between Mrs. Tyler and Miss H. Baker was 6-4, 6-4, 6-4 and Miss Greenberg won from Miss Daisy Upham 6-4, 6-4.

CREATES SURPRISE.

John Strachan created a surprise in the semi-final round of the men's championship singles by winning from Ward Dawson in straight sets and allowing the Southern California champion to win the games in as many sets. The score were 6-2, 6-1, 6-0.

In the doubles championship event, Ward Dawson and Ella Fottrell defeated William Johnstone and Strachan 6-5, 6-5, 6-4.

The following matches were played in a special event for the women: Miss H. Baker beat Miss Fletcher 6-4, 6-4.

Miss M. Sheekman beat Miss Coryn 6-4, 6-4.

Miss Nagle won from Mrs. Griffiths by default and Miss C. Mitchell beat Miss M. Arendt 6-4, 6-2.

The Trusts Must Go.

The attorneys general of Virginia and North Carolina have protested against the proposed plan of reorganization of the Tobacco Trust. They assert that the dissolution in obedience to the order of the United States will be a farce if the concern is permitted to reorganize in the manner proposed. They say the trust is preparing to modify its methods, only to continue the practices which the court has declared to be unlawful.

"The plan turns loose no asset and no agency," the attorneys general set forth, "by which the American Tobacco Company now maintains its absolute domination over the tobacco trade. Its avarice for power and its utter unwillingness to loosen its grip on the tobacco business is strikingly illustrated in its refusal to give up one of the least of its subsidiaries, R. P. Richardson Jr. & Co., Incorporated, although that company has petitioned to be allowed to do an independent business."

Very likely this is all true. In all probability the trust managers are scheming to work out some plan which will enable them to evade legal penalties without surrendering the advantages they have gained by violating the anti-trust law. Among those advantages is a vast amount of watered capital on which they are receiving dividends. A strict compliance with the law in spirit and letter will eliminate this fictitious capital and the dividends based upon it. Hence, the effort to conserve a vicious system by a colorable compliance with the law that will permit the continuance of an extortionate monopoly. Chicane is being employed to defeat the purpose of the law.

It is not strange that attempts should be made to retrieve the disaster that has befallen the trust system. Human selfishness is prone to cling to every advantage to the last extremity. But the attempts to defeat the purpose of the anti-trust law by circumlocution and evasion will fail, and they ought to fail. If the trust magnates were wise they would accept the situation with as good a face as they can put on and comply with the law in good faith. If they do not, so much the worse for them. It is abuses, not forms, that public sentiment is aroused against. Still more drastic laws will be enacted if the evils of trust operation cannot be abated under the present law. The people are in no mood to stand evasion and trickery, and it is quite evident that the administration is determined to compel obedience to the law. Artificial monopolies created by trust organizations will no longer be tolerated, and the sooner that fact is recognized the better it will be for those interested in trust monopolies.

It is idle for the trust magnates to complain of a condition they have brought on themselves. With the sky full of portents of a coming storm, they have crowded on all sail and pushed their unjust advantages to the last extremity. They defied the lightning of popular indignation. They laughed at the law and the rising clamor of public complaint. They destroyed competition by the tyrannous use of capital or suppressed it by combination forbidden by law. They built up a vast, unsubstantial financial fabric in reckless disregard of the mandates of the law, and now they whiningly complain that the officers of the government are attacking capital and industry.

But it will do them no good. They will have to obey the law. They will have to put their houses in order or suffer the consequences. The movement to break up the combinations in restraint of trade has gained too strong a headway to be arrested. The people cannot be cheated any longer by subterfuges and subtle pretenses. It is the system they are after, and the system cannot be preserved by legal artifice and ledgerdemain. Attempts to preserve it will only add flame to the popular wrath and the penalties exacted in expiation.

William J. Burns talked rather freely in an address he recently delivered to the Politics Club of Columbia University, according to the report of the New York Sun. Among other things, he said: "The word of a detective is never taken," he affirmed. "You will hear of cases where detectives have actually played into the hands of thieves. As a rule, you will find that detectives are the biggest lot of blackmailing men in the world." Mr. Burns claimed to be an exception, however. He said he had never double-crossed anybody or made "a plant" to involve any other person. In short, he lauded himself while denouncing his profession. He represented himself to be an exceptionally honest man engaged in an exceptionally crooked business. But if Mr. Burns were as crooked as he represented other detectives to be, would he be likely to say so in a public speech?

Reciprocity and the Coffee Duty.

In the course of an argument against the principle of reciprocity, the American Economist uses an exceptional case for an example in point with small regard for the bearing it has on the question in controversy. It says:

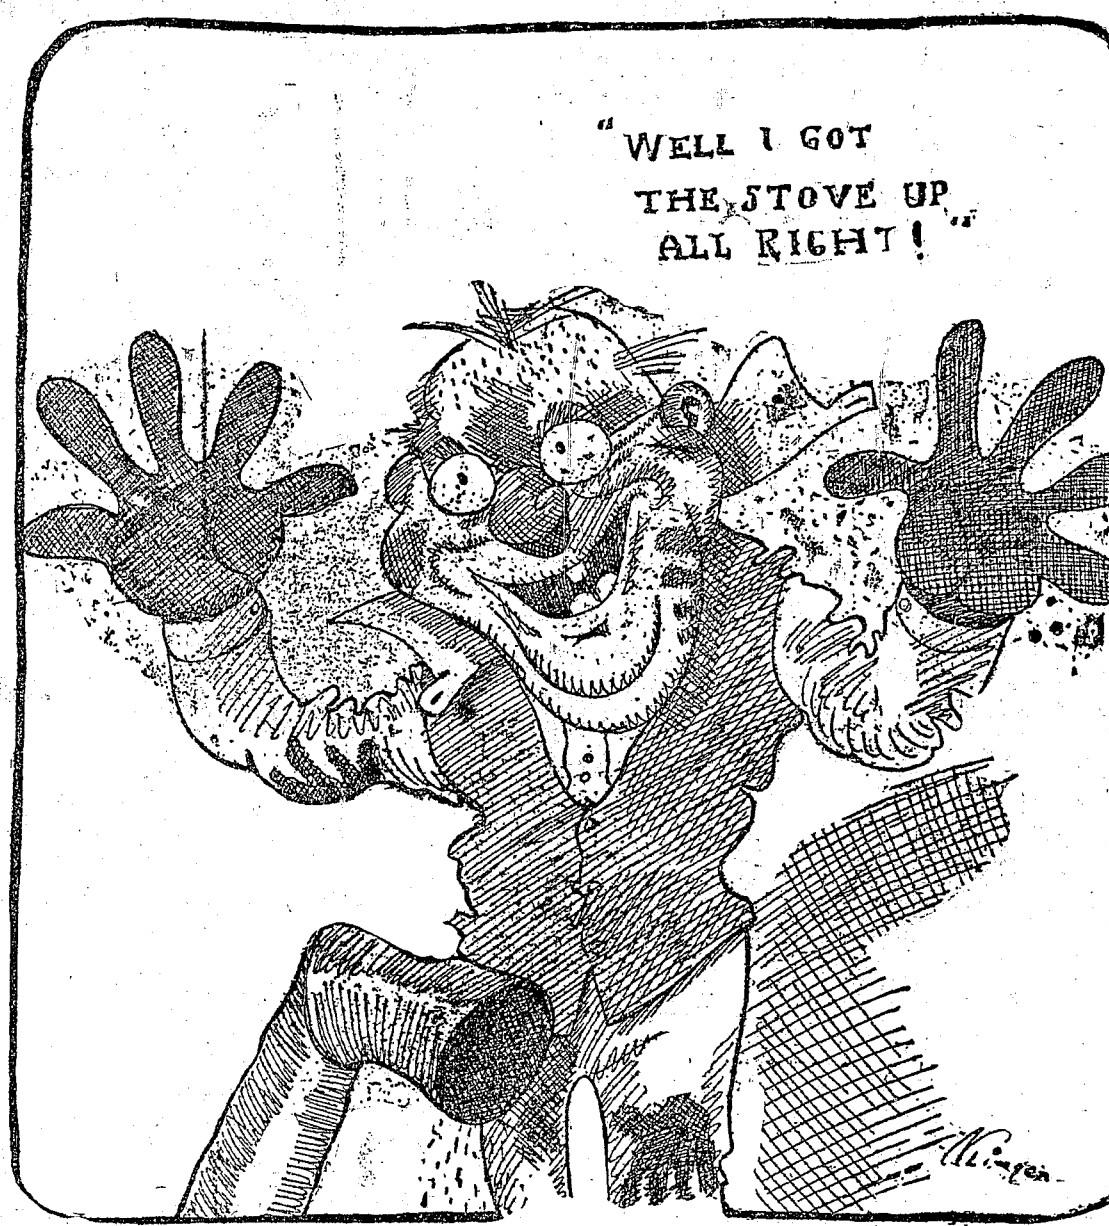

"Immediately after we removed the duty on coffee Brazil imposed export charges equal to the duty that had been taken off, so that we got no return whatever. Last year we imported $108,154,491 from Brazil and sold to her in return $22,897,890. That is the kind of trade we have been carrying on with that country for a great many years. Congress could easily improve that state of affairs, but has never done so. Everything the United States sends to Brazil is taxed to the extreme. There are so many taxes, state and otherwise, imposed that it is difficult to tell how much any article has to pay before it can reach a consumer. The same condition of affairs exists with some other countries."

And this is offered from a protection standpoint as an argument against reciprocity. It is not an argument in favor of protection, but is an argument, when examined closely, in favor of reciprocity. More than anything else it shows that the Brazilian government is taxing the productive energies of the Brazilian people to obtain more revenue.

When the duty on coffee was remitted, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippines had not come under the American flag; there was no coffee-producing territory within the borders of the United States, and the tariff on coffee was not even remotely protective, since no part of our national domain was adapted to coffee culture. The duty on coffee was for revenue purposes alone, and it was remitted for the same reason that the abolition of the internal revenue was urged—to give force to the argument for the retention of all protective duties.

If Brazil were to cease collecting the tax on coffee tomorrow, the price of coffee would not be lowered in the United States. The export tax is paid by the producer, not the foreign consumer. It has no effect on the price of coffee in other countries.

An analogy would be furnished if the United States' government should levy an export tax on cotton. The constitution forbids the collection of such a tax, but if the government could and should levy such a tax, it would not affect the cost of cotton to the foreign buyer. It would decrease the grower's profits; that is all. It would not be an argument in favor of protection or against reciprocity.

The American Economist complains about the small volume of our exports to Brazil and the heavy duties collected on American goods by the Brazilian government. Reciprocity would remove or decrease those duties and expand our exports to Brazil. Would not that be a good thing? The American people are great coffee drinkers and Brazil is the chief coffee-producing country of the world; hence, we import vast quantities of coffee from Brazil. If we should levy an import duty on coffee the American consumer would have to pay more for his favorite breakfast drink.

As a missionary of peace Dr. David Starr Jordan does not seem to be a conspicuous success. He went to the Orient preaching the gospel of amity and proclaiming against the sin of bloodshed, and lo, the Chinese empire flamed with civil war. The battle hymn rose shrill and fierce above his admonitions to keep the peace. He returns to find the war-pulse throbbing on the shores of the Mediterranean, where Latin and Turk, Christian and Mohammedan, are once more joined in deadly strife. The good doctor ought to stay awhile at Stanford and see if grim-visaged war will not smoothe his wrinkled front without persuasion.

The Case of Hilda Anderson.

It turns out that the young girl an Oakland saloonkeeper was accused of debauching has been an inmate of the Whittier school and stands charged with several minor moral delinquencies. As her relatives declined to prosecute the man who was arrested for misusing her, he has been released from custody and the facts of the case will not be brought out in court.

Nevertheless, THE TRIBUNE reiterates what it said last Friday about men who corrupt and mislead young girls of tender years. This girl is scarcely more than a child—she is stated to be under 18 years of age. A man is a beast to hold impure relations with a girl of her age. If he did not corrupt her, he was willing to do so. His commerce is an evidence of his evil character.

We again repeat that men who commit such offenses should not be granted licenses to conduct saloons in Oakland. Their willingness to tamper with young girls is an excellent reason for depriving them of licenses already issued to them.

The San Francisco Chronicle says Mexico is a prey to disorders and that the new president, whom it describes as weak and vacillating, is unequal to the task of pacifying the country and insuring public safety. There must be some mistake here. Did not the Chronicle read the letter of congratulation recently addressed to President Madero by that other great president, Benjamin Ide Wheeler, wherein the Mexican ruler was complimented on restoring peace and liberty to his distracted country? What better testimony could be given that Francisco I. Madero is one of the noblest patriots and most successful rulers that ever lived? When Dr. Wheeler offers himself as a witness that Mexico is peaceful, orderly, prosperous and well-governed, the evidence must be accepted as conclusive. Dr. Wheeler cannot be mistaken. He never is. Infallibility is his chief characteristic. Besides, President Madero was once a student at the University of California. That was before Dr. Wheeler broke into the wild and woolly west like a pillar of celestial fire, but it is none the less a convincing proof that Dr. Wheeler is right.

The difficulty in getting a jury in the McNamara case has started anew the oft-repeated complaints against the jury system. The faults of the system are neither few nor small, but nobody has yet offered a substitute that commends itself to reason. Many of the faults complained of can be remedied. If the system is abolished, what is to be substituted in its place? The purpose of the jury system is to incorporate in criminal administration a human equation that the stern letter of the law does not permit. Like all human institutions, it has its imperfections; but it works well in England, where it originated, and we see no reason why it should not work equally as well in the United States. However, there is little use in proposing to abolish it unless something better is offered. It is often asserted that marriage is a failure, but nobody has offered a rational substitute for that institution. It is always easier to find fault than it is to suggest a remedy.

CURRENCY REFORM

Thoughtful citizens who realize the practical importance of the currency and banking problem should carefully read, compare and digest the speeches which James J. Hill and John V. Farwell, the president of a nonpartisan, enlightened body organized to promote monetary reform, delivered the other day before the Illinois Bankers' Association. Mr. Hill criticized certain details of the Aldrich plan, but they are not details which Mr. Farwell or the highly useful organization he presented at the convention is at all committed.

There are excellent things and sound principles in the Aldrich plan, but Mr. Farwell stated repeatedly that he was not advocating any particular measure. "Politics" the mere possibility of political manipulation as well as the danger of sectional or local control, he fully recognized, must be kept out of any proposed plan of bank organization.

Centralization, Wall street domination, the use of financial power or political ends can, however, be effectually guarded against without surrendering the great benefits of the suggested national reserve agency, of regulated co-operation on the part of the banks, of scientific protection of credit, of modern provision for elasticity of the currency and of proper utilization of the sound commercial paper of all the banks.

Mr. Farwell and the national league present platform which covers the essentials of banking and currency reform as means of affecting industrial movements, manufacturers, promoters of trade and business—see these essentials. The changes they advocate will urge on Congress and the people are changes that will facilitate legitimate business, remove the menace of monopolized credit, and help bankers by helping their non-speculative customers. Suggestions and objections are invited by the league, and Mr. Hill's speech has provided a wide spot and loophole in the Aldrich scheme which require attention. Let the discussion proceed. We cannot have too much education on the vital and complicated subject.—Chicago Record-Herald.

POSTAL SAVINGS BANKS

It is an interesting coincidence that at the very time when the United States is just establishing its first postal savings banks—the first was opened this year—the United Kingdom is celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of its foundation of a similar system. It was on September 16, 1862, that the postoffice savings banks of the British government came into existence, at a time when this country was so much occupied with other affairs that it had little attention to devote to that interesting experiment. The idea of the thing was not then new by any means, but had been broached more than half a century before and had been revived and discussed at intervals since. It remained, however, for the practical and successful plan to be prepared by Mr. Chetwynd, a bookkeeper in the money order department of the postoffice, to be approved by Lord Stanley of Alderley, then Postmaster General, and to be presented to Parliament and urged to enactment by William E. Gladstone. From the drafting of Mr. Chetwynd's scheme to the actual opening of the first post-office savings bank was less than ten months—probably the shortest time in which any administrative measure of comparably complexity and importance was ever put into effect.

The success of the enterprise was immediate and immense, far surpassing all expectations of even its most enthusiastic advocates. On the date which we have mentioned 301 banks were opened. At the end of the next year their number was 2532, with 180,000 depositors and balances of $5,750,000. The latest statistics which we have at hand, for the close of the year 1909, show that there were then no fewer than 11,405,000 depositors, with deposits of the enormous aggregate of $322,930,000. The interest paid to depositors is 2½ per cent and down to 1896 there was in addition a certain profit accruing to the government, which by that time had aggregated nearly $8,000,000. Since then, owing to the reduction of the interest rate on consols, there has been a yearly deficit, which in 1903 amounted to more than $500,000. Economies of management have now reduced it, however, to or nearly to the vanishing point. These deficits have not, we may add, amounted to as much as the former surpluses, so that the net profit to the government to date is something like $3,000,000.—New York Tribune.

20 YEARS AGO IN OAKLAND

A few days ago M. J. Keller, president of the Board of Trade, observed that the roads leading from Oakland into the country will be in bad condition during the winter and he wanted to see something done. Some of the roads referred to are in Supervisor Belzonte's district.

Professor Martin Kellogg delivered the first lecture of the high school series yesterday afternoon. A number of the friends of the school were present and joined with the pupils in the enjoyment of the occasion. The professor took for his subject "Berlin" and gave a description of the place as he saw it while on his trip to Europe.

The Assembly club, that swell organization whose parties were so successful and well attended last winter, gave their opening party at Washington hall, East Oakland, last evening for the season of 1891-92.

John Haywards and Miss Emilie Torrillas were married by Rev. C. H. Hobart in the parlors of the First Baptist church.

H. K. Belden and family have returned to Oakland from a visit in the east and are at the Albany.

W. H. Chickering has returned from his eastern trip.

Mrs. H. P. Livermore, who has been visiting in Santa Barbara the last month, will return to Rockridge this week.

The indications are that there will be a large crowd at the Piedmont baths to-night.

The splendid program that has been arranged for the occasion has attracted the attention of all pleasure seekers, and the fine promenade concert in itself is a drawing card.

Mr. Kales, an experienced banker, looked all over the coast for a favorable location for a big bank. He found that Oakland offered the greatest inducements, and decided to locate here. This shows how capital is being attracted to this city, by the activity now prevailing in all lines of enterprise.

GOLF

Mrs. R. W. Barlow, the golf champion, said the other day at the Philadelphia Country Club:

"A golfer is going to boast, let him boast modestly. I heard a golfer say one autumn evening as he toasted himself before the clubhouse fire:

"Never did I see better golf than this afternoon. My opponent got away every drive, he hit every brassie clean, he approached perfectly, and he didn't miss a single putt."

"How much did he beat you by?" I asked.

"Beat me?" said the modest man with a look of surprise. "Why, he didn't beat me. It was my game from the start!"

An Eye-Opener About Piedmont Properties

PLEASANT VALLEY, PIEDMONT—A sunny, protected spot, such as the name implies, lying at the head of Grand Avenue as it rises from Lake Merritt.

Even the two words that make up its name give one a feeling of comfort—a desire to live within its protected confines. For Pleasant Valley is ideally sheltered from the cold, raw winds of the bay by a high, solid rise of hills to the westward.

To the eastward lies the foothills of Piedmont, spotted here and there with their many palatial homes of the wealthy—making an artistic background to this favored spot.

Rights at the head of the valley, touched by the Piedmont Park car line, and with the right of way of the Key Route extension to San Jose on one side, lie Piedmont Manor.

The Realty Syndicate's tract is the only residential tract in Oakland, with about macadam streets, and where the scheme of broad lots, which gives the rich broadside view of the home streetward, has been carried out.

Besides the Piedmont Manor tract, there are the Piedmont Vista, Lincoln Park, Piedmont Cable, Bowie and Fairview tracts to choose from.

With so many tracts in this section, there are bound to be a certain number of bargains scattered among them. This district is my specialty, and I know the best buys in each tract. I know where fine lots with good depth, including street work, sewer, water and gas, can be had here from $25 to $30 per foot.

I just think of being able to buy close-in Piedmont property at that price. Usually when Piedmont is mentioned as a possible homesite, the prospective buyer sees nothing but $75 to $100 a foot prices.

Right now I know of two good bargains that can be had here—lots that are selling in my opinion, twenty-five per cent below the market value.

Call me up by phone, making an appointment for me to call for you with one of our automobiles—or drop in at the office and ask for me, and I will show you these two bargains just as I state they are—25 per cent under the market value.

FREE EXHIBITION OF CURIOS

Central Africa Antiquities Attract Throngs at Kahn Bros.

An interesting group of Curios from Central Africa is on exhibition this week in the window of Kahn Bros. This is part of the collection made by Mr. Edward D. Vialle, former United States Consul at Zanzibar, and now United States Consul at Addis Ababa, Abyssinia, who on trading expedition into the heart of Africa, where he exchanged shells, glass beads and bright colored cloths for ivory.

Mr. Vialle had headed three such trading expeditions, and from Africa he can to cross the source of the river Nile. He took the "Blood Brotherhood" with several of the native chiefs and was thus enabled to render timely aid to the British garrison at Uganda in 1897, when it was assailed by hostile natives.

The "Blood Brotherhood" is a sort of Free Masonry among certain African tribes, and when taken by a traveler means absolute protection to him by all tribes in the brotherhood, so long as the initiate given him, at the time of the ceremony, is preserved.

While at Lake Victoria Mr. Vialle had taken the "Blood Brotherhood" with him to the British force there. He left for home on which he had placed a drop of blood from the chief's body and the chief ate a coffee bean red with the blood from the body of Mr. Vialle. The chief then gave the traveler a ring and the latter made the chief a suitable gift. This completed the ceremony.

Not long afterwards rumors from Uganda arrived at Lake Victoria and reported that the British force there, under Sir Lucile Knowland, had been attacked by hostile tribes and that the garrison could not possibly hold out until reinforcements were obtained from the coast. Mr. Vialle had his shells, beads and cloths in the care of his new "brother" and, with his gun, sword, spear and shield and six dried porters, started at once for the relief of the British garrison. It was on this march that his "Brotherhood" tallied stand him in good stead. His trail led through the village of a tribe, the chief of which, upon seeing the "Brotherhood" ring, gave Mr. Vialle all the assistance in his power, and furnished him with information which enabled him to escape the notice of the native warriors before they got in behind the settlement. They are now in East Africa, unknown to the hostiles. Mr. Vialle and his porters fought the hostile black men for three months before reinforcements arrived from the coast, but a Gatling gun which the reinforcements brought with them soon put an end to the struggle, and the natives scurried off into the jungle, thus ending the war.

For services rendered the English paid Mr. Vialle a handsome sum in cash and gave him an appropriate medal.

The collection is on exhibition in Kahn Bros' window includes, among other things, a war drum made from a tree stump, war clubs, spears, swords, war horns, battle shield, musical instruments, half-hair monkey skins, native cloth made of tree bark, a spear-thrower, a leather dress and some unique sandals, the latter being in strange contrast to the dainty creations in footwear for which the manufacturers of Sorosis Shoes are famous, many samples of which are on exhibition in the same window.

Experts Give Figures Upon Which Millions of Dollars Will Be Staked.

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 28.—Commercial engineers employed by the Southwestern Telegraph and Telephone Company to make estimates of population of cities on which to base the size and equipment of the physical plant in each city for the next decade and a half, have just announced the population to four Texas cities in 1926 as follows:

San Antonio, 205,000; Dallas, 200,000; Houston, 197,000; Fort Worth, 145,000.

The population of Little Rock, Arkansas, in the same year is placed at 120,000.

LOCAL MUSICAL FOLK HAVE HARMONIC WEEKS IN STORE

Miss Simpson's Piano Recital Will Be a Stellar Event.

MRS. WILLIAM WALDECK BEERS, a local singer, whose concert last week was most successful. —Bushnell Photo.

One of the musical events of the season will be the piano recital of Elizabeth Simpson at Elwell hall on Thursday evening, November 9. This will be Miss Simpson's first recital since her return from Europe where she studied with some of the great masters of modern piano methods for two years.

She is giving a number of publics in this vicinity for her work at the first Bach festival in the Greek theater in Berkeley and in recital and concert won for her recognition as an artist. One of the features of the Stewart club at the Macdonough theater were two numbers by Miss Simpson.

Miss Adrianne Waldeck Beers is one of the most delightful of our local singers and her recent song recital was hugely enjoyed by lovers of the art who gathered from all the bay cities.

Miss Blanche is a strong singer, and has a voice of unusually good strength and timbre.

Miss Isabella O'Connor will give a song recital at Adelphi hall on next Thursday afternoon accompanied by Frederic Maun.

Miss O'Connor has recently returned from abroad where she spent much time studying under the instruction of Mme. Orphee. She is said to be a gifted musician.

The first of a series of Saturday morning musicals was given at 10:30 o'clock yesterday in the recital room of the Union Club, on the top floor of the building, by Miss Bertha Stut, pianist, and Charles H. Blank, violinist, assisted by Mme. Camilla Euergermeister, soprano. The program was under the direction of Alice Stewart, with Mrs. Lucille Knowland as accompanist and was remarkably good.

The musical and dramatic committee of the Union Club of California announces that at the half hour of noon in the Greek theater this afternoon, Mr. Roseco Warren Lucy will present one of his most brilliant pupils, Miss Aileen Murphy, in a solo recital, and for the occasion has arranged an exceptionally interesting program.

Miss Murphy will be assisted by Miss Ore Heckell soprano. The program will be as follows:

Three piano numbers by Miss Murphy: Impromptu, Op. 28, No. 2; H. Reinhold: Malden's Wish; Chant Polonoise; Chopin-Lazartie; and La Papillon (The Butter Cup). Violin solo by Wm. Costello Thorne from Sir Michael Costello "Virtuoso." Miss Heckell and three more piano numbers by Miss Murphy: La Fleuse, Concert Etude; Jocelyn Raff; Etude; Mignonette, Op. 13, No. 1; E. Schmitt; and Rondo Capriccioso Brilliant, Op. 11, Mendelssohn.

KATHERINE GOODSON'S TOUR.

It was a countryman of Katherine Goodson who first called her as the "Paderewski of the Americas." Miss Goodson's playing is remarkable for its many things. Her tours in Europe, Australia and North America have been widely noted and she stands today pre-eminent with the pianists who have attained to highest rank. Miss Goodson will be in America in January for her fourth tour of this country. This time, she is under management of Antonia Sawyer of New York.

Among the orchestras with which Miss Goodson will play during the early part of her tour are the Boston Symphony, New York Philharmonic, New York Symphony, Philadelphia and Indianapolis. She is also to give recitals in many cities and has already been specially engaged to play at the Peabody Institute in Baltimore, October 15, and the Peace Institute in Raleigh, N.C., and other cities and schools. Miss Goodson's tour will open in Brooklyn, New York, with the New York Symphony on the second Saturday in the new month.

By special request, Miss Goodson will play the Tschaikowsky concertos in B flat minor with several orchestras. She has an remarkable repertory, and during the past summer while in Switzerland, arranged her program for the forthcoming American tour.

Miss Goodson began her autumn sea-son in Berlin, Germany, October 5, with the Berlin Philharmonic Society.

Germany this gifted Englishwoman is immensely popular. The German music critics are usually severe upon all foreign artists, but Miss Goodson is one of the few who have won favor in the eyes and ears of these musical critics. It is her versatility, as well as her extraordinary power to thrill, that have appealed to the men who sit in judgment upon musical performances.

The pianist who plays Beethoven as well as Chopin, and Tschaikowsky as well as Schubert, is the one who has a message for every type of music lover, and for every musician whatever his tastes may be.

EVENING OF MUSIC.

There will be an evening of music at the First M. E. church, South, corner Third and Elm streets on Friday night, November 9, when the public is cordially invited. No admission will be charged, but a free will offering will be taken for the benefit of the choir fund.

CHARLES S. FEE PAINTS ROSY PICTURE OF THE FUTURE

GREAT PROSPERITY IN STORE FOR CALIFORNIA

RAILROAD BOOSTS THIS "HOME STATE"

Official Points Out the Natural Advantages That Are Offered.

"California, the Land of Sunshine and Flowers," a phrase time-worn almost throughout the land, is familiar in the heart of the true Californian as the day it was emblazoned, as it were, on mountain peak and fertile valley, symbolic of the riches that therein lay in store.

From the days when the first prairie schooner, forerunner of the long immigrant trains that later wended their trail across the plains to the mountains at her threshold, down the canyon's rugged sides to broad expanses where grew wild fruits and flowers, the state has given her share of wealth to the world, and her people have been noted afar for their thrift and progressiveness. In the half century of her growth the commonwealth has climbed to a pinnacle that the rest of the world may gaze upon.

WELCOMES THOUSANDS.

To these people, the thousands upon thousands who yearly come into the country and the thousands already dwelling in congested communities within her borders, California extends a hearty welcome to come and see for themselves. In this respect the invitation is being emphasized by the great corporations who have done their share in building up the resources of the state. To none of these is more credit due than to the Southern Pacific Railroad company, built by pioneers and directed ever since by men who have had a sincere interest in the welfare of California.

Just what the Southern Pacific has done for California in the past and its measures being carried on today for its future advancement is best set forth in an interview recently with Charles S. Fee, passenger traffic manager for the railroad, whose motto is:

"California has room for every man who will work."

FOR STATE FIRST.

The traffic manager says that he is for California first, and, secondly, for the Southern Pacific.

"Development of the community spirit among the people of the state until they present one solid front is needed to secure the best results," said Fee, "and that is what we all must strive to do." We men of the Southern Pacific have learned, as thousands of others in California, that advertising is the best way to secure men of brains and brawn, who have a little capital, to come here and settle, and we also have discovered that one of the best ways to advertise for the right sort of men is at the land shows like those held in Chicago and Omaha.

"The results obtained at these exhibitions last year are sending us back there this fall, and we want to take California with us. Not as she went last year, in scattered communities, but as a united state. We have proved the results to be obtained, now we intend to reap the harvest and California will reap it."

The railroad will be represented with lecture halls, where we will set forth by lecturers and by moving pictures and stereopticon the advantages to be gained from a residence here.

PSYCHOLOGICAL TIME IS AT HAND.

"The people of California and the men of the Southern Pacific have had their misunderstandings in the past. Some of our moves have been criticized, but time has shown that what was done was for the permanent good of the state. Today I am glad to say that there is a better spirit shown on both sides. Now in the psychological time to get together for the interests of all."

CITY SPIRIT WAS LACKING.

"At the last land show in Chicago California was not adequately represented because the state as a whole had not awakened to the significance of such exhibitions. Many counties had exhibits and mighty fine ones, but there was no spirit of unity. And yet on California day the people of Chicago forced their way into the big Coliseum where the United States land and irrigation exposition was holding its exhibit and claimed for a sight of the wonderful produce. It was the biggest day of the two weeks, and the carload of fruit given away was one of the best advertisements to the state ever had.

"When the Southern Pacific saw that the movement to tell that part of the east what California was doing had not taken hold as it should we turned in to remedy it by undertaking to cement the whole state display with a general exhibit supported by lectures on California illustrated by stereopticons, slides and motion pictures. That was a big advantage for the Southern Pacific, but it was a bigger one for the state."

"This year the manner of exhibiting should be changed. We want the state as a whole to come in. We want every town and every community from Del Norte

FIRST TO SEARCH WORLD FOR MEN.

"Our railroad was the first to send its agents to Europe to seek out the best men and bring them to California to make their homes. We brought wine-growers that planted vineyards and helped build up the great grape industry of the state. We brought fruit growers and other tillers of the soil."

DANGERS OF FAT

HOW FAT AFFECTS THE KIDNEYS

The kidneys often become affected by fatty deposits before any other organ. Robobably there is no more important function of the entire body than that performed by the kidneys. Any interference or impairment of this function, must necessarily soon result in serious trouble. And not the least of these dangers is the gradual change in substance of the organs themselves. You will hardly care to risk Bright's Disease, or the torture of Rheumatism, to say nothing of the unwelcome burden of fat which attacks the whole body, making it a sight far from attractive. There is one sure, harmless means by which fat may be checked; that is the famous Marmola Prescription of a Detroit Physician, rendered more convenient and effective in Marmola Prescription Tablets. All druggists sell Marmola Prescription Tablets, and their price is 75c for a large case, or they will be sent postpaid on receipt of price by the Marmola Co., 78 Monroe Ave., Detroit, Mich. By their use, exercise and dieting may be discarded; a smooth, clear complexion and even satisfactory reduction accomplished at the rate of 10 to 16 ounces a day.

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 28.—During the last week San Antonio and other Texas cities were visited by swarms of little green bugs that swarmed about electric lights and about lights in the houses whenever they could enter. Nothing like them was ever seen before. Apparently they numbered in the billions. They did no damage and disappeared with the approach of the north wind.

But stranger visitors are reported to have visited Galveston. In swarms so thick as to dim the brightness of the early morning sun myriads of variegated butterflies descended on the city, circling for several hours just above the high buildings and then settling down in the gardens and lawns. It is not known whether they were attracted by the flowers or the flowers that brought them, but they spent the day in the city and about dusk moved off toward the mainland. Scientists who examined them said they belonged to a species found extensively. They caused no annoyance, in fact, were welcome visitors.

COUNCILMAN FASTS 28 DAYS

NEED OF LITTLE WARMTHFASTING CURE FOR ALL ILLS
HE SAYS

If You Don't Believe it,
Watch Animals," Advises
One Who Did.

Nearly Everyone Who Can Get Hold of Food Eats Too Much."

BERKELEY, Oct. 28.—On the 28th day of what is scheduled to be a month's fasting experiment John A. Wilson, Socialist Councilman, confessed that he felt a desire for something.

You're wrong. He said nothing about craving a food carriers' size porterhouse steak, smothered in onions, a peck of French fried, the staff of life in proportion, and trimmings ad lib.

Nothing like that.

On the 28th day—Wilson began the 28th this morning—he wrote, Crusoe-like, in his diary:

"A slight feeling of weakness comes over me and I feel the need of a little more warmth."

Only that, and nothing more. Not a word about cold feet, either.

He added, however, the observation that summer is the best time for fasting; provided, of course, that summer comes during the summer time. Wilson has found the month of October ideal for abstemiousness with the exception of that one day.

Explaining first that the high cost of living has nothing to do with his experiment, the Councilman told a TRIBUNE reporter today what it is all about.

And here is another chance to go wrong on a guess.

Had Wilson been overeating? Is he trying to spite the grocer and the butcher?

CURE FOR CATARRH.

He has been troubled with catarrh. That is why he is scorning the flesh pots.

That fasting will cure not only catarrh, but colds, sore throat, stomach troubles, rheumatism, cancer and the liquor and tobacco habits, is his firm belief.

The commissioner of finance and revenue stopped shoving up for meals October 1 and he has been regularly at his desk in the city hall ever since. He hopes to be troubled with nothing worse than another cold day before next Monday evening, October 28, when he is to preside at a lecture to be given by Senator Bennett of San Francisco, who will tell how it feels to be a boy of 71 as a result of exercising. Wilson will go him one better by relating the pleasures and benefits of a 30-day fast.

The Councilman may decide to take a little light nourishment on the following day.

WATER FOR WILSON; THAT'S ALL

He has been drinking warm water during his fast. During the first few days he indulged in lemonade, but gave that up as being too much like food. With warm water only as his diet, at the end of a week he began to feel stronger than ever, and ceased to lose weight, as he had done at first.

"I can do things I never could do before," he boasted at the end of the second week.

Photographs of Councilman Wilson, taken at his office in the city hall today, are far from being suitable for a "before taking" subject. But he considers the pictures ideal for "after not taking."

"Why am I fasting?" he echoed the reporter's question.

Because I have long been annoyed with a cold. Thinking that it was becoming worse since I ceased active muscular work, I decided to take a long-promised internal rest.

FOLKS EAT TOO MUCH.

"Nearly everyone who can get hold of the food eats too much. Especially is this true when little exercise is taken."

"The result is that the system becomes clogged."

"I have been feeling unusually well and active, mentally and physically. On the 24th, however, I did experience a feeling of weakness, and felt the need of little more warmth."

"That feeling shows that summer is the best time for fasting."

"I would not advise a fast lasting more than twelve days for the cure of simple ailments, like colds, sore throats and stomach troubles, much less time might suffice."

"Longer fasts should be taken for chronic diseases like rheumatism, catarrh and cancer."

DON'T TRY FOR RECORDS.

"As long as one suffers no inconvenience or trouble, let him continue."

"But do not set out to break records."

FASTING WISDOM

By JOHN A. WILSON

When you are sick, fast.

Fasting is the natural method for curing disease.

If you don't believe it, watch the animals.

Nearly everyone who can get hold of the food eats too much.

I would not advise a fast lasting more than twelve days for the cure of simple ailments.

Longer fasts should be taken for chronic diseases.

As long as one suffers no inconvenience or trouble, let him continue; but do not set out to break records.

Woman Who Horsewhips
Judge Faces Two Courts

SEATTLE, Oct. 28.—Christiana Olson, who horsewhipped Superior Judge John F. Main in the courthouse corridor yesterday because he had set aside two jury verdicts in her favor, was arraigned in the criminal court today on a charge of assault in the third degree. She pleaded not guilty and her trial was set for next Saturday. Immediately after the arraignment she was taken before Judge Main to answer a charge of contempt of court. The judge said he would wait upon the case next Saturday.

Following the arraignment, Mrs. Olson, her husband, George Olson, a painter, was arrested in the court room, charged with having made threats to kill Judge Main. He will be required to furnish a bond of $500 to keep the peace.

PAST MASTER OF BOXING DISCOURSES ON NEW RULES

Says That Change at New York Will Do Away With Loop the Loop and Breast Grazing in Ring Contests

By W. W. NAUGHTON

This is the way it reads: "New York, Oct. 19.—Hereafter, in all fights in the State of New York, the contestants must break clean in the clinches. This was decided upon yesterday by the New York State Athletic Commission at a meeting held in this city. The commission no longer favors the old practice in which fighters could protect themselves in the clinches."

Can it be true?

If so, farewell the loop-de-loop and the breast-grazing uppercut. For with the loop you must have something to cling to before you make it effective, while with the breast grazer the only man you could hit under the clean-break system would be yourself.

Furthermore, exit the Ad Wolgast and the Battling Nelsons and enter the Matt Wells and the Tom Joneses. We've got the straight left and the sweeping right and bid good-bye to the hundred and one little pokes and prods that can only be delivered when a fighter has been flattened against an opponent's chest.

It was the way they boxed years ago, and the New York State Athletic Commission has ordered a return to first principles.

But is it fair to the generation of American boxers that has built up a new system of glove craft—a system that has overshadowed the old straight from the shoulder method of boxing as completely as magazine rifles have replaced the muzzle-loaders of fifty years ago? It's not.

It was the "fight yourself loose" style of milling that gave in Terry McGovern, Battling Nelson, Ad Wolgast, Billy Papke and others too numerous to mention. If the clean-break system, which has never been rigidly observed since the day of the old California bantam, has been instated upon right along there would have been no Battling Nelson and, consequently, no Ad Wolgast.

Joe Gans, under the rules in question, would have kept his forces of champions until outlawed from the game by increasing years or declining health.

And then some other clean-break specialist would have usurped the premiership of the lightweight division and held the Nelsons and the Wolgasts successfully at bay.

The news of the clean-break romance will be heard with joy in England, where every boxer regards a referee and odds as an "old wives' tale" and disengages himself from clinches with lightning speed so as to minimize the prospects of disqualification. And it is not fear of the referee alone that breeds in him the desire to be a hard-boiled ready to break when called upon.

Much breaking and much stepping away means the introduction of many little rests that are not otherwise provided for in a clean-break system of boxing. Moreover, the system does not require a boxer to waste his strength in wrestling and wriggling and striving to blanket free-arm punches, to say nothing of the battering it saves him from if he happens to be holding onto the other man's coat.

BREAK AWAY IN FAVOR.

The break at the order of the referee is the one that has always found favor with English ring men, and there will be widespread satisfaction among the water when the action reaches there. It was announced recently that a small band of the pick of British boxers intended journeying to New York this fall.

What about the glad tidings they may tell for this country sooner than they proposed? With a revival of the "hit, block and get away" method of milling New York will seem "just like 'ome" to the transatlantic fighters.

Wonder what the dear public will think of the restoration of refined fistfights?

There is much to be said in favor of clean-break boxing. Where the principals are anywhere equal in the matter of cleverness a contest is much more interesting to watch than one of the go-by-the-hand bouts that found favor in recent years. But in a case of mixed company—that is, where one fellow is clever and the other a product of the fight-yourself-loose school—it is easy enough to see who is the cleverer. The crowd would go in a limited match. And from the wide divergence in style of the opponents it is not clear how the spectators could derive any particular entertainment from the affair.

When in his heyday Battling Nelson spoke once or twice of visiting London and tackling the British boxers on their native heath, it was pointed out to him that when fighting under the direction of an English referee he would be as harmless as a muzzled bull terrier. The Battler thought it over and stayed at home.

ENGLAND COMES IN 5-05.

Now, in a way, England is coming to us. The country way of fighting, according to London standards, is to prevail in New York, and Wolgast will be in the position Nelson would have been had the Battler invaded London.

If the order of the New York commission is as definite as it appears on paper, Tom Jones may well tremble for the fate of his champion, for in a ten-round bout with clean breaks it seems as though Matt Wells of London should be a top-heavy favorite over Wolgast of Cadillac.

SPOKANE TO SEATTLE BY AUTO IS ROUGH TOUR

Warren '30' Negotiates Snoqualmie Pass and Wenatchee Mt. Trip; Seldom Attempted

One of the most dangerous automobile trips on record was recently successfully made by a party of Spokane motorists who rode from that city to Seattle in a Warren touring car. A letter just received by the Matheson Sales Co. of this city from one of the party tells in a vivid manner of the risks encountered. It follows:

Against the advice of all those familiar with our intention to cross the almost impossible Snoqualmie Pass and the treacherous grades of the Wenatchee Mountains, J. A. Stoner, of the Edward Zane Co., Spokane, Wash., W. Bayless, local manager of the First Fire Co., Seattle, and the writer, started Thursday morning, the 12th, at 10 a.m. to drive a Warren "30" from Seattle to Spokane.

This trip is one seldom undertaken, even by the bravest of the auto enthusiasts, and is just a little too severe for the agent seeking notoriety.

For 41 miles the road is almost a boulevard, taking one to the small town of North Bend, where we had lunch and put in a fresh supply of gasoline, preparing to enter the mountains at that point.

AUTO A SCARCITY HERE.

As it is unusual to see an auto headed east from this little town, we naturally attracted the attention of the populace.

We did not then understand the little smile and the knowing look of our questioners, but later decided that they were making a mental wager that before many hours had passed some Milwaukee freight car would be traveling west with the remains of our little Warren tagged for some repair or junk shop.

Leaving North Bend shortly after lunch the roads became rapidly worse, and the timber so dense and growing so close to the road that we found it necessary to put down the top in order to get through at all. Grouse Grade is the first hard pull after leaving North Bend, and is about three miles distant. The grade is 26 per cent, and it is not hard. In fact, if it were not that its roadway is soft and sandy, however, we passed in good shape and went on to find our real troubles in deep holes, high centers, immense boulders and large roots all in our pathway. It is impossible to get around these, as we were in the midst of a national forest, hundreds of years old, with monster trees fallen from their own weight, covering the ground like a pile of gigantic jack-straws.

Going at the rate of one mile an hour we built roads over the high places by filling in with more rocks, or using the branches and limbs of trees. As these troubles continually confronted us on a steep up-grade, one cannot well imagine the effort required on the car in general, and the amount of power necessary to force a machine over a large rock pile going up 20 per cent grade.

Darkness found us still fighting our way through the forest, where the dense growth and high trees cheated us of what little ray of light there might have been from a clear sky and a bright moon. It was necessary for us to leave our car owing to darkness and the fact that we had encountered on a very steep upgrade, two large boulders directly in the path of our wheels, and so deeply imbedded that we could make no impression with the crowbar.

PICKING OUT THE WAY.

Taking one of the oil lamps from the car we started on, single file, trying to pick our way through deep mudholes and over unknown roads in search of some cabin, where we might get a bite to eat and a warm place to rest. Fortune was kind to us, for after a walk of a mile we came upon a small clearing with six or seven houses, all of which were of most beautiful strain. After some effort we got a response to our calls and were gratified to see an elderly gentleman appear at the door clad in his night clothes. Upon hearing of our needs he at once clothed himself, built a fire in one of his clean and comfortable cabins, and made us thoroughly at home while he hurried to get us a cold and greatly appreciated lunch. We later found that we were in a small resort conducted by our host, Mr. Beard, and called Elde-a-wee.

The next morning, by the aid of daylight, we returned to our car, and after more hard labor built over the obstruction and were again on our way.

We had traveled off the beaten track since entering the Pass, and still had about the same distance to cover before reaching the summit. Mr. Beard, with an apology, informed us that we would find the roads from this point on somewhat worse, the hills steeper, the roads more rocky, the plank roads torn up or washed out in places, and the south fork of the Snoqualmie river much deeper owing to the recent rains.

A heavy rainstorm set in at this point and continued throughout the next 48 hours. While I, the author of Dante's Inferno, could better describe the roads as we found them under these conditions; but Mr. Beard did not do the same in his edition.

COLE MOTOR CO. HAS NEW MODEL

Roadster Type Is Style of It;
Many New Ideas Are Embodyed.

The Cole Motor Car Company has adopted a new 1912 roadster, and it is announced that the 1912 speedster for this company will also be improved upon from the original plans.

J. J. Cole and A. E. Mordison of the Cole Motor Car Company and R. P. Henderson of the Henderson Motor Sales Company are responsible for the new style two-passenger car that has been hit upon. Both Cole and Henderson are former buggy builders.

The roadster is mounted on the 122-inch wheel base Cole chassis. It has a long hood, wide scoop body with a well shaped cowl. The seats, heavily upholstered, are constructed along the design of the high-priced foreign car, giving comfort and eliminating prospects of tired effects from long drives.

The riding part of the body is roomy.

All enclosed, the shroud is shaped to attract attention and protect occupants.

Special attention has been paid to the blending of colors. The wheels are of natural wood. The chassis is battleship gray with a penciled black stripe. The hood and fenders as well as the large gasoline and oil tank on the rear of the body are enameled black. The center of the body has a specially treated coat of battleship gray, while the upholstery is black.

There is a large trunk on the rear of the body arranged so that it can be used as a trunk or a case for carrying two large suit cases.

IN AGAIN, OUT AGAIN AND NEVER AGAIN LEWIS

Capital Wm. Mitchell Lewis, general manager of the Mitchell-Lewis Motor Co. of Racine, Wis., says: "I jumped into politics and out again. Never again, but I do not mind Mitchell cars being used for political work." Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin is loyal to state industries and has just purchased a 7-passenger, 6-cylinder Mitchell touring car. Undoubtedly this car will be used by Senator La Follette for campaign work. If Senator La Follette be successful the Mitchell will enjoy the distinction of helping to make a President.

LIKE GOOD WINE CAR IMPROVES

U.S. TIRE CO. ISSUES NEW PUBLICATION

Mitchell, Bought Three Years Ago for $1000, Is Now Assessed at $1350.

"Maganitte" Is Name Given the Latest Offering of Advertising Department.

That Mitchell automobiles, like good wine, improve with age seems to be the impression of a Nebraska board of assessors who recently placed the value of a 1908 Mitchell car belonging to a Mr. Burns of Omaha at $350 more than he originally paid for it.

Mr. Burns bought his car three years ago for $1000, and since that time has driven it about 18,000 miles. Accordingly, when he made up his tax schedule he put the value of the machine at something less than that figure. As the assessed value of an article is usually much less than the cost price, he anticipated no further trouble.

But much to his astonishment, he received notice a few days ago that assessors placed a valuation of $1350 on his automobile, and that he would be taxed accordingly. Mr. Burns at once sought an interview with the board and after some argument succeeded in convincing them that though his car seemed to be just as good as it ever was there was nothing about it to show its worth had been added to by its three years of almost constant service.

He has been doing some figuring for the last few days and declares that if his Mitchell keeps on increasing in value it will be worth as much as a good farm by 1925.

COCHRAN TALKS ON AUTO SITUATION

Haynes Manager Tells of the Present Motor Car Standardization.

In speaking to a party of automobile men a few days ago, W. B. Cochran, vice-president and manager of the Haynes Auto Sales Company, said:

The automobile has now passed the experimental stage, and has been standardized; at least to the extent that certain kinds of steel are required in building and the construction of the car in general. It would be just as impossible to use sheet steel or carbon steel for crank shaft or for transmission gears as it would be to make apple butter from peaches. And yet what an awful splash some manufacturers are making about their use of the only steel that could possibly be used in automobile construction—nickel steel.

Some manufacturers who build a large quantity of cars and pose as philanthropists because they sell their cars for $1000 when the say they are worth more money than any other automobile on the American market, give as their explanation of a thousand-dollar price on the "best" automobile their ability to buy material 115 per cent cheaper than anyone else.

Try to imagine it! But that's the kind of argument we find in a great deal of the present automobile advertising and doubtless it is selling automobiles to a lot of people who will know better next time.

It is most astonishing to read of all automobile concerns which are selling their cars for hundreds—even thousands—of dollars less than they are "worth." With very few exceptions automobile manufacturers are selling their product on the "bargain counter" basis. They advertise "only $1500, but really worth $2500," etc. Did it ever occur to you how much these manufacturers are losing in not getting the actual worth of their car? Apparently these manufacturers are just as sure their $1500 product is worth $2500 as you are that your silver dollar is worth 100 cents. Would you like to take 75 cents for your dollar? You might if it was plugged. That would be a reason why wouldn't it? There is also a reason why these manufacturers do not get $2500 for their $1500 product.

BRINEGAR TELLS HOW TO CHOOSE MOTOR CAR

What are some of the standards to have in mind in selecting an automobile? said E. P. Brinegar of the Pioneer Automobile Company, the local Chalmers agents. They may be arrived at quickly by asking yourself this question: "What do I really want in an automobile?" Here, we think, is your answer:

Ampie power, enough and not too much; flexibility of control; reliability; comfort; good looks; convenience; the quality to wear; safety; fair price.

These are the elements you want in a motor car. Combined properly in one car they assure that big result—satisfactory service. We are confident you will find the Chalmers "30" the "38" and the "40" standing the test with credit to their builder.

MAXWELL CO. ISSUES GLIDDEN BOOKLET

A handsome illustrated booklet devoted to the Glidden tour has been published by the United States Motor Company, parent of the Tarrytown team of Maxwell cars. This booklet, which has been widely distributed throughout the South and East, is one of the real souvenirs of the tour. It reached its second edition before the contest had started. It not only tells all about former Glidden tours, their routes and winners but is a complete exposition of the 1911 contest with photographs, pen and ink sketches, maps and other features. It should take an important place among the literature of touring competition.

MICHELIN ANTI-SKIDS ON MOUNTAIN ROADS

O. C. Haslett, president of the Truckee Lumber Company, pays a tribute to Michelin Anti-Skid tires.

While going over the Santa Cruz Mountains a fortnight ago he was caught in a heavy rain storm and he is enthusiastic with the manner in which his Michelin Anti-Skid tires proved a safeguard against the treacherous, slippery roads on the heavy grades.

Mr. Haslett states the situation would really have been serious if he had not had these tires and that in meeting this one situation so satisfactorily they have more than reimbursed him for their cost.

THE OHIO ELECTRIC

A DISTINCTIVE charm invests the Ohio Electric De Luxe, because of its beautiful and original lines and handsome proportions. It is the last word in electric brougham design. It fills a long-felt desire for a luxurious five-passenger car, with all seats facing forward. Besides being the most beautiful, comfortable and luxurious electric ever shown, it approaches more nearly the limit of mechanical and electrical perfection than any other electric car that has ever been built. Money cannot buy the superior qualities of the Ohio Electric for any other car.

BOB BURMAN WILL RACE IN THIS CITY

To Appear On the Oakland Motordrome Speedway in December.

Bob Burman, speed king of the world, will make a tour of the Pacific Coast States and the western country in December to show the fans in that section that he is without question the rightful holder of the title that he wrested from Barney Oldfield. In the West where new champions are much more welcome than in the East, Burman will make an effort to win the friendship of the many that have heard of his exploits in the record field on the treacherous circular tracks of the country.

Since the Michigan daredevil piloted his famous "Blitzen" Benz over the Florida sands at the remarkable speed of a mile in 25 2-5 seconds he has stayed in the speed kingdom, it is decided. He has not only won the hearts of the fans by his spectacular driving, but his record-breaking feats have placed his name on more sheets than any other living driver.

Coming from Florida, he clipped a piece off Oldfield's speedway mark at Indianapolis by setting the time to 25 3-5 seconds for the mile, and he has also broken the world's circular dirt track records for the mile and two miles held up until that time by the young Italian De Palma.

Every appearance of the great pilot has been a conquest and his work is much more sensational than that of his predecessor. He has received the welcome of a true champion, and when he makes his visit to the Pacific Coast the name Burman will become vernacularized and be the synonym of the Westerners for speed and sensationalism, like it is at this day in this section of the country.

His first appearance will be made on the Oakland motordrome about December 15.

FLY ON NOSE LED TO CHARGE OF TREASON

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—An ordinary house fire caused four men to be locked up in the Cook county jail for treason.

Police Justice John J. McDonnell of Lincoln, was summoned before the county court to explain why he sentenced four men for treason in lieu of fines. The offense classed as treason was the cutting of branches from drainage canal trees.

He found that section 268 related to cutting down trees, while section 264, on the same page, related to treason.

His explanation is that while brushing a fly off his nose he placed his finger back on the wrong section and entered the wrong number on the mittimus.

EXPENSIVE RUG USED AS A DOORMAT

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Oct. 28.—Mrs. F. G. Fayen, of 218 Upper Mountain avenue, has used last year at the entrance to her home a small rug. It was bought with others at a sale in New York.

A rug expert had been summoned to the Fayen house to look over the rugs that received renovation. As he was going out of the house he saw the rug that was used as a doormat.

"What shall I do with this?" he asked, as he stooped down and picked up the rug. "Nothing," said Mrs. Fayen. "It isn't worth while."

"Not worth while," he said. "Why? This is a precious rug; worth all the others together."

Mrs. Fayen was amazed when the expert explained to her that the despised rug is probably worth $2000; that it was woven by a Persian bride, and was never intended to be sold. He pointed out the peculiar characteristics of the rug, into the border of which were woven the features of the bride and the husband's hand.

The expert said the wool used in the rug was of a kind now hard to get. The rug, he said, is between 150 and 200 years old.

MOTORCYCLISTS CONDEMN CUT-OUT

Pass Resolutions Calling On Lovers of Sport to Discontinue Nuisance.

The Oakland Motorcycle club has adopted the following resolutions:

Whereas, we, the members of the Oakland Motorcycle club, stand for the improvement of motorcycling in every place, and the protection of the motorcycleists on the whole; and

Whereas, we consider that the use of the muffler cut-out on motorcycles is the greatest hindrance to furthering the sport, causing at all times a wrong impression to be given to the general public, and causing motorcycleists, generally, to be considered as a nuisance; and

Whereas, we realize that, unless the fair-minded motorcycleists who really desire to further the interests of the sport shall do their part, and, in concert with legislative bodies throughout the country, a suitable law against the use of the cut-out, particularly in the streets of our cities, that these legislative bodies will themselves prepare a law which will be so stringent as to become oppressive instead of a trip to be taken.

Resolved, That we, the members of the Oakland Motorcycle club, assembled in the city of Oakland, state of California, on this 24th day of October, 1911, request the president of the club to send a like committee from the other motorcycle clubs of this district and prepare a proper bill against the use of the cut-out, and see that same is presented before the proper officials, and be it further

Resolved, That we condemn most strongly the use of the cut-out, consider it absolutely unnecessary and will do everything in our power to prevent its use hereafter, and be it further

Resolved, That a member of this club found guilty of using the cut-out on our public streets shall be fined 50 cents and upon a second offense shall be dismissed from its membership; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be inscribed on the minutes of the meeting and sent to the various newspapers and the motorcycle trade papers.

MULE BREAKS LEG WHEN HE KICKS NEGRO'S HEAD

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28.—There must be something in the general belief that the hardness of skulls of the black race is far in excess of those of the Caucasian.

Following an alteration over a woman at a party given in the home of Henry Lewis, thirty-six years old, of No. 2402 North Alder street, Lewis, a negro, was shot four times in the head at a range of less than five feet. After penetrating the flesh the bullets flattened out and dropped to the floor.

Lewis was taken to the Samaritan Hospital, but was soon permitted to go to his home. The man who shot him escaped.

While harnessing a mule in a stable at No. 418 East Fifteenth street, William Pitten, a negro, thirty-three years old, of the same address, was kicked in the head and knocked down. Getting to his feet, Pitten discovered the mule lying on the ground. Examination showed that the animal's leg was broken.

Pitten was taken to the Germantown Hospital, where six stitches were taken in his head.

The mule was shot.

MOTORCYCLIST ON ENDURANCE GRIND.

Over 35 Starters in 18 Grind Ending in Hayward at 4 O'clock Today.

The 18-hour endurance run which is being conducted by the San Francisco Motorcycle Club started at 10 p. m. last night at Hayward with over 35 entries. It will continue until 4 this afternoon. At that time the survivors of the long grind will be called upon to place their machines in the hands of Referee Kirkpatrick until the coming Sunday, when those remaining will again undertake a grind of similar length to the one now under way. And thus it will continue. The survivors of the second Sunday, if there are any fortunate enough to be in the running at the end of the second eighteen hours will again battle on the following Sunday or until such a time as but one rider remains, and to this one will go the winning honors and prizes.

It is a rather curious fact that while the club across the bay is managing the present run they have fewer riders than the Oakland boys. Of this local contingent nine riders have been entered by the F. M. Jones Company of this city. Al Meyer, manager of the local Racely store, is an enthusiast for long distance grinds, which serve to try out and bring to light the weakness or strength in any motorcycle.

The riders competing under the colors of the Racely are Al Makas, D. W. McCarty, C. Elke, E. C. Anderson, George Billesbach, H. B. Uth and Jack Pickering. Each of these is riding a 4-horsepower machine. E. Matthews, riding a twin, Yale and P. Nash on a twin Merkel are two others whom Meyer secured.

George Faulkner is confident of the success of the Harley Davidson riders, the best-known of whom is Frank Karlska. The latter is mounted on a single Harley Davidson and can be counted upon to be among those to finish the test this afternoon at 4 o'clock. Karlska is probably the most efficient of the endurance riders in the West. He has a reputation the best of any rider we know.

While harnessing a mule in a stable of the Indian riders in conjunction with C. C. Hopkins of San Francisco. Between the two the Indian boys will be well cared for.

WILLIAM BROSS GIFT
NOT DUE TILL 1915

Regulations Governing Contests May Be Obtained at State University.

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA. Oct. 28.—Within the present week the university has received announcement of three essay contests which will compete for successful competitors.

The most valuable in yield is the so-called Bross prize of $6000 announced from Lake Forest college, Lake Forest, Illinois, and the third is the best in general "on the connection, relation and mutual bearing of any practical science, or the history of our race, or the facts in any department of knowledge, with the condition of the nation, England, etc."

The competition was organized out of the bequest of the late William Bross of Chicago, Lieutenant Governor of Illinois from 1866 to 1870. The income accrued has been deposited in successive periods of 10 years, the accumulation of one decade to be spent in the following.

In his deed of gift the founder had in view the relation of the Bross competition of the old and new Testaments. The scope of the gift is so comprehensive that any phase of science, of literature, of human history, or of modern life that may attract the attention of the contestants, or upon any phase of it, as received by the great body of Christian believers, would be, according to the trustees, a fitting theme for a book offered in the competition.

The books on treatises are to be in on January 1, 1915. The Bross prize for 1905 was awarded to Professor James Orr of the United Free Church College, Glasgow, for his article "The Problem of the Old Testament." The judges on this occasion were Professor Ladd of Yale, Ormond of Princeton and Wright of Oberlin.

EIGHT SUBJECTS ANNOUNCED. There also comes an announcement of economic prizes from Professor J. L. Laughlin of the University of Chicago. These prizes are offered by Messrs. Hart Schaffner and Marx. Essays are due on October 15 and the following topics in eight topics are specifically named:

Wage theories of American economics, agricultural education, the influences affecting the prices of agricultural products, a tariff policy for the United States, world public interests, as subservient by the amendment or repeal of the so-called Sherman anti-trust law, capital building through corporation savings, control of securities of public service corporations, a scientific basis for tariff revision.

Other "available subjects" are listed, but before any of them are chosen, the competition group of the three awards must be secured. The object of the competition is to arouse an interest in the study of topics relating to commerce and industry, and to stimulate those who have a desire to think and consider the problems of a business career.

Contestants are grouped in one of two classes: Class B includes only those who at the time the papers are sent are undergraduates of American colleges; Class A includes any other American without restriction. Contestants in Class A are eligible to a first prize of $1000 and a second of $500. Contestants in Class B may compete for a first prize of $400 and a second prize of $200.

INTERNATIONAL CONTESTS.

A so-called "International Literary Contest" is announced from the Manila University of San Tomas in celebration of the centenary of the Philippines. Essays may be presented in the departments of theology, canon law and civil law, the prizes ranging from 400 pesos to 700 pesos. Full information on the details of the competition, which are open to college students but to visitors in general, will be sent on application to the office of the president of the University of the Philippines. It would not be well for any one to enter the competition without making sure of the governing regulations, which are intricate; conformity to them is absolutely prescribed.

HELP! STUDENTS ARE TO GIVE BARN "KRAUL"

BERKELEY, Oct. 28.—Amazement, not unmixed with indignation, was writ upon the countenance of Berkeley high school beauties when they read invitations sent out by youths of the junior class to what is presumably to be a dance in Unity Hall next Saturday evening. They have been specifically bidden to a "Kraul" at Unity barn, and while some are searching for a perfectly proper meaning in the startling invitation, with the belief that "a Kraul" is but a new name for an innocent hop, others will have none of it.

"We want to know what we are being invited to," is the expression of several of the recipients.

The invitations are flanked on one side by the picture of a farmer wearing a wisp of hay between his teeth and on the other by his wife in a gingham wrapper and sunbonnet. The wording follows:

"The boys and girls of the 1913 Klan of the Berkeley desctrict Skule kindly invite you to a Kraul at Unity Barn, Dana and Bancroft crossroads, Nov. 4, 1911, at 8:15 p. m."

It was impossible today to learn the identity of the committee in charge of issuing the invitations.

BYRON, Oct. 28.—Byron Parlor of Native Daughters of the Golden West will be formally installed with the initiation of members, next Wednesday night, November 1. A banquet will follow the installation. The committee in charge of the supper consists of Mrs. A. M. Flumley, Mrs. H. T. Hammond and Miss Anna P. FARMS, NOT MINES,
STATE'S BULWARK

University Figures Prove California Must Rely On Things That Grow.

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, Oct. 28.—California must look to her farms and not her mines as the basis of her prosperity, according to tables prepared at the university by an advanced class in statistics, showing the relative importance of several groups of the State's products. The tables are based on the average annual production for the years 1908 to 1911.

The point of first interest emphasized by the tables is that the prevailing notion that California prosperity depends primarily on mineral wealth is erroneous, that many products of the farm stand well above the minerals.

Farm products, where the term includes barley, wheat, oats, corn, rye and hay, furnished an average annual production of over $78,000,000, and give 19 per cent of the total wealth of the State.

ORCHARD PRODUCTS.

Then follow in order orchard products at over $60,000,000, furnishing 16 per cent of the total prosperity; fruit products at $52,000,000, fish and game, 13 per cent; dairy products at $39,000,000, furnishing ten per cent; farm animals at $40,000,000 and over, furnishing also 10 per cent odd; and finally in the sixth place only do we come to mining, which gives an annual average annual production of $37,000,000 and providing simply 9 per cent of the total production of the State.

After these minerals come in order petroleum, $30,000,000, vineyard products at $20,000,000, and garden products at $15,000,000, fish and game at $5,000,000. Petroleum, despite the attention that has lately been directed to it, stands only seventh in the list.

Berkeley Merchants Stirred Over Formation of New Commercial Body.

BERKELEY, Oct. 28.—Commercial circles here have not been so stirred in years as they were last evening, the week over the result of the election of directors of the Chamber of Commerce Thursday evening, with added speculation as to the outcome of prominent members of the chamber's Board of Trade.

Amalgamation of these organizations is believed to be certain, although its exact form is yet indefinite.

The new directors will meet Monday evening in the Hotel Shattuck, business session, and some plan of action will probably be determined. A testimonial will be tendered the outgoing members of the chamber, among whom is C. C. Fuster, recently elected to the chamber. It is understood that the Board of Trade has planned a meeting for the same evening in the same hotel, when the same action will be taken.

The committee in charge is composed of Miss G. Lyman, chairman; Miss I. Diddings, Miss G. Matheny, Miss V. Gray, Miss E. Burr, Miss E. Galason, Miss A. Glasgow, Miss L. Carlson, Miss V. Remire, Miss B. Sherwood, Miss M. McNamara, Miss M. Stomm, Miss G. McFarland, Miss M. Ross, Miss H. Stanford, Miss M. Connolly, Miss E. Fraser, Miss B. McNamara, Miss N. I. Rowe, Miss G. PARK STREET DRAW-BRIDGE BREAKS AGAIN

ALAMEDA, Oct. 28.—The Park street draw bridge broke today, a casting in the turning mechanism collapsing during a series of tests by the government engineers. A new casting will have to be made before the damage can be repaired. The break delayed street car and other vehicle traffic for two hours. The bridge is about ready to be turned over to the county by the War Department. The kingpin giving way and the structure was in danger of falling into the canal.

Firemen Save Home of Woman in Her Coffin

ALAMEDA, Oct. 28.—While Mrs. Reynolds rested in her coffin last night, awaiting final services tomorrow afternoon at the First Presbyterian church, firemen were battling to save the home she occupied for so many years at 2065 Alameda avenue. The house caught fire from a defective grate. After Mrs. Reynolds moved to Berkeley, where she died yesterday morning, her home in Alameda was leased.

TAFT TO SEE REAL EXPLOSION IN A MINE DRIFT

Tests Are Made of Exhibits to Be Used in Realistic Experiments.

30,000 IN ATTENDANCE AT PITTSBURG PREDICTED

President, Secretary Fisher and Governor Tener to Be There.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 28.—Preliminary tests for the mine explosions and rescue work that are to be held here on October 30 and 31, before President Taft, Secretary of the Interior Walter L. Fisher, and Governor Frank H. Tener, and 30,000 miners, mine owners and mine superintendents took place today, under the direction of H. H. Wilson, engineer in chief of the federal bureau of mines. Wilson announced that his arrangements were in every way satisfactory, and that the two day's demonstration would provide even more graphic exhibits of the cause of mine explosions than first reported.

The big feature of the program will be the miniature explosion of a coal mine on Forbes Field, the Pittsburgh baseball park, October 31, before the President and others. The object of this explosion is to demonstrate to mine operators that coal dust is highly combustible and is blame for some of the greatest mine disasters that have taken place in years. Steel gallows will be set up in the park, coal dust will be placed within and the charge fired from the outside by means of electricity.

TO ENTER FUMES.

After the explosion, trained corps of rescue men will enter the mine and apparatus tested by the federal bureau of mines, and bring out the supposed victims of the disaster, giving a demonstration of resuscitation. The fact that the demonstration is to be held under the auspices of the federal bureau of mines, the Pittsburgh Coal Operators' association, the American Red Cross and the United Mine Workers of America, assures a wide interest in the test, which will probably do much to revise the rescue methods in the coal mines of the United States.

The explosion of coal dust in Forbes Field on October 31 will be preceded by a day devoted to the interests of coal operators, and those interested in coal mining. Its object will be to teach greater safety in mining. The first tests will be held at the experimental station of the Bureau of Mines. There will be tests of mine safety lamps in gas, and the dangers of electric sparks in gas and oil. This will also be shown in one of the galleries.

A class of miners will be trained in the use of the oxygen helmet, which permits breathing in poisonous gases for a period of two hours.

ACTUAL EXPLOSION.

In the afternoon, the operators, engineers and superintendents will witness an actual mine explosion in the experimental mine of the Bureau at Bruceton, Pa., 12 miles from Pittsburgh. Here the dangers of coal dust and black powder, an explosive, the greatest strongly advised against, will be tested, the experts carrying out all the bad practices which they believe lead to mine explosions.

On the morning of October 31, the spectacular explosion will take place, before the President. The rest of the morning will be given over to friendly competition between expert rescue teams from the principal coal mining country and a parade of miners which will pass in review before the President.

The tests and demonstrations are the result of many years of experiment by the government's corps of experts and it is believed will effect a great saving of life throughout the United States. The government's statistics show that thirty thousand miners were killed within the past ten years—thirty thousand were injured, and that mine explosions and accidents have thrown over eleven thousand widows and thirty thousand fatherless children upon charity. It is to rescue these casualties that the government and the mine workers and owners are co-operating.

The parade of miners, after being reviewed by the president, will march to a special bridge over the Allegheny, to witness the marine parade in honor of the centenary of the beginning of steam navigation on the Ohio river. The miners' demonstration will conclude at noon and the remainder of the day will be taken up with the river centennial.

Refreshed by his trip Dr. Maine will continue his practice next week. He and his wife were welcomed home by hosts of friends.

HIS ECZEMA GONE AND BOILS CURED

Eczema Began When Three Weeks Old. Arms, Shoulders and Breast a Solid Scab. Boils Broke Out During Teething. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and He Was the Picture of Health.

"My son was about three weeks old when I noticed a breaking-out on his cheeks, from which a watery substance oozed. A short time after, his arms, shoulders and breast broke out also, and in a few days became a solid scab. I began to treat him and called our family physician who at once pronounced the disease eczema. The little fellow was under his treatment for a month. By the end of that time, he seemed no better. I became disheartened. I dropped the doctor's treatment and commenced the use of Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and in a few days noticed a marked change. The eruption on the cheeks was almost healed, the shoulder scabs had cast and were decidedly better. When he was about seven months old, all trace of the eczema had gone."

"During his teething period, his head and face were broken out in boils which I cured with Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Surely I must have been a great sufferer. During the time of his teething, I discontinued the doctor's treatment. I used the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, nothing else, and when two years old he was the picture of health. His skin was soft and beautiful, and his head a mass of silky curls. I had been afraid that he would never be well, and I feel that I owe a great debt to Cuticura Soap and Ointment." Mrs. Mary W. Ramsey, 224 E. Jackson St., Colorado Springs, Colo., Sept. 24, 1910.

Although Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a liberal sample of each, with 32-page booklet on the skin and hair, will be sent, post-free, on application to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. 68, Boston.

WOMEN HARD TO SAVE FROM WAVES

Life Saver Tells of His Experience in Making Rescues at Sea.

HOUSTON, Texas, Oct. 28.—Stranglings are blamed by the professional life savers to a woman, who has an opponent into unconsciousness, according to Nick Starvo, a life saver of Houston, who spends his summers on the beach. The first thing a drowning bathes will do is to grab a hold of the neck and throw his arms around the neck of the rescuer and tighten them to a strangle hold.

To ward off this attack the rescuer always grasps the drowning person sharply on the back of the neck with the edge of the hand which renders him unconscious and limp and can be easily handled.

Starved out of their life savers who are constantly on guard along the beach. All are constantly attired in bathing suits, while they take turns about in being on the look out. When the cry for help rings out the four leap into the water and swim toward the drowning person.

Women put up the worst fight, according to Starvo. He possesses a scarf on his head, which he ties behind his finger nails before he was rendered unconscious by a rap on the back of the neck. Another trouble with women, according to Starvo, is when they once get their heads down they can not right themselves.

"When a woman gets her feet out of the water her head goes down and she cannot right herself," said Starvo. "I've seen women hanging onto the ropes with their heads down in the water."

SWALLOW TONGUES.

Another peculiarity of the drowning person, says Starvo, is that they all swallow their tongues....The first thing to do after rendering them unconscious, unless they are already unconscious, is to get hold of the tongue and pull it out of the throat. "Hold the tongue out of the throat and then press firmly on the ribs and the water streams out," are Starvo's words. "Sometimes," he said, "it is necessary to run a safety pin through the front of the tongue and let the pin fall back on the teeth. That prevents the victim from again swallowing the tongue."

Starvo gives some interesting information regarding the drowned person. Drowned bodies always go to the bottom and remain there for nine days on the average. If a female lies face downward flat on the bottom, while the female lies on the back. A bottle half full of lime, if sunk in the water, will cause the body to be located, will bring the body to the surface. The bottle must be without a cork. The lime and water mix and if any of this water gets near the body the gills will burst, causing the body to rise to the surface.

HIS STORY PROVES THAT OIL IS GOIN

Jeffrey's Eighty Pounds Now Touches the Mark at $2,500,000.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Oct. 28.—G. Jeffreys, an independent oil operator of northern Mexico, is spending a few days in this city. His story would indicate there is money to be made in oil, even without owning Standard Oil stock. Mr. Jeffreys went to Mexico five years ago, and since only of Welsh energy and intelligence and about eighty pounds, British coins now he estimates his holdings worth at least $2,500,000 and his income large in excess of $100,000. He was formerly associated with the Pearson oil syndicate and as geologist for the Westfield man Pearson, located many of the oil fields now making sections of Mexico the envy of the Rockefeller family.

Jeffreys makes his home in Tampico and said the gulf coast between Matamoras and Tampico is the most wonderful part of the globe, the soil being inexhaustibly rich and fruits and vegetables growing in riotous profusion, citrus fruits especially reaching perfection. "There is no political unrest or disturbance in northern Mexico," said Jeffreys, "and the whole country is bound to move forward faster during the next five years than ever before."

During his teething period, his head and face were broken out in boils which I cured with Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Surely I must have been a great sufferer. During the time of his teething, I discontinued the doctor's treatment. I used the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, nothing else, and when two years old he was the picture of health. Southern Pacific Company's Electric Lines to Be Extended to San Jose

OAKLAND AS A TRADING CENTER

Electrification of Local Railroads
Enlarges Its Tributary Territory.

Many Neighboring Counties to Soon Be Embraced in Chain.

The Southern Pacific company is concentrating its working forces on the electrification of the Webster street and the Seventh street steam railroad lines, which is now nearing completion. The relaying and readjustment of the double tracks on Webster street have been done. One track has been in active operation for about two months. The westerly track will be ready for use in a very short time, as only the finishing touches to the pavement laid between the tracks and the rails and the installation of the trolley wire and the adjustment of the mechanism, the signals and the derailing switches remain to be carried out.

On the Seventh street line only a few short sections of the old track, located at widely separated points, require removal and the reconstruction of the roadbed, the laying of the new rails and the strung of the trolley lines overhead. The new standard pavement is being laid from curb to curb contemporaneously with the new track.

FRANKLIN STREET EXTENSIONS

The extensions of the Franklin street division of the electric railway loop joining the Alameda and Oakland ferry terminals are being rushed ahead meantime. At Twentieth street the western track swings out of Franklin street and is carried along the first named thoroughfare westward to San Pablo avenue. In crossing the avenue to reach Nineteenth street, the line will cut through the point of the sidewalk at the end of the gore on which the Arcade hotel block stands. The eastern track is continued up Franklin street to Twenty-second, into which it swings westward through private property across Broadway and Telegraph avenue, thence into Jones street, along which thoroughfare the track was laid some months ago to the west side of Grove street. From that point it will eventually cut across a private right of way into Nineteenth street, where the two tracks will parallel one another until they enter the station now being constructed at the western end of Sixteenth street. The roadbed for this branch track is now being prepared on Franklin and Twenty-second streets.

EFFECTS OF ELECTRIFICATION.

These changes in the operation of the old-time local steam railroads and the extension of the new electric system developed are matters of the greatest importance to the central part of the city, where all of the local interurban transportation facilities are being concentrated. It will take some time yet to complete all of those now actually under way, but property interests along the line of these new and modern street railways are feeling very keenly the beneficial effects of their construction. These new electric railroads have abolished for all time the nuisance of smoke, steam, dust and intolerable noise created by the steam trains which the electric trains have displaced. Property flanking both Seventh and Webster streets can now profitably be devoted to business uses, and capital and enterprise are recognizing the opportunity which is being presented for investment in the improvement of such realty. While the reconstruction of the two railroads has been in progress important private improvements have been made on neighboring property, and the plans for others of still greater importance are being carefully prepared.

ELECTRIC RAILWAY TO SAN JOSE.

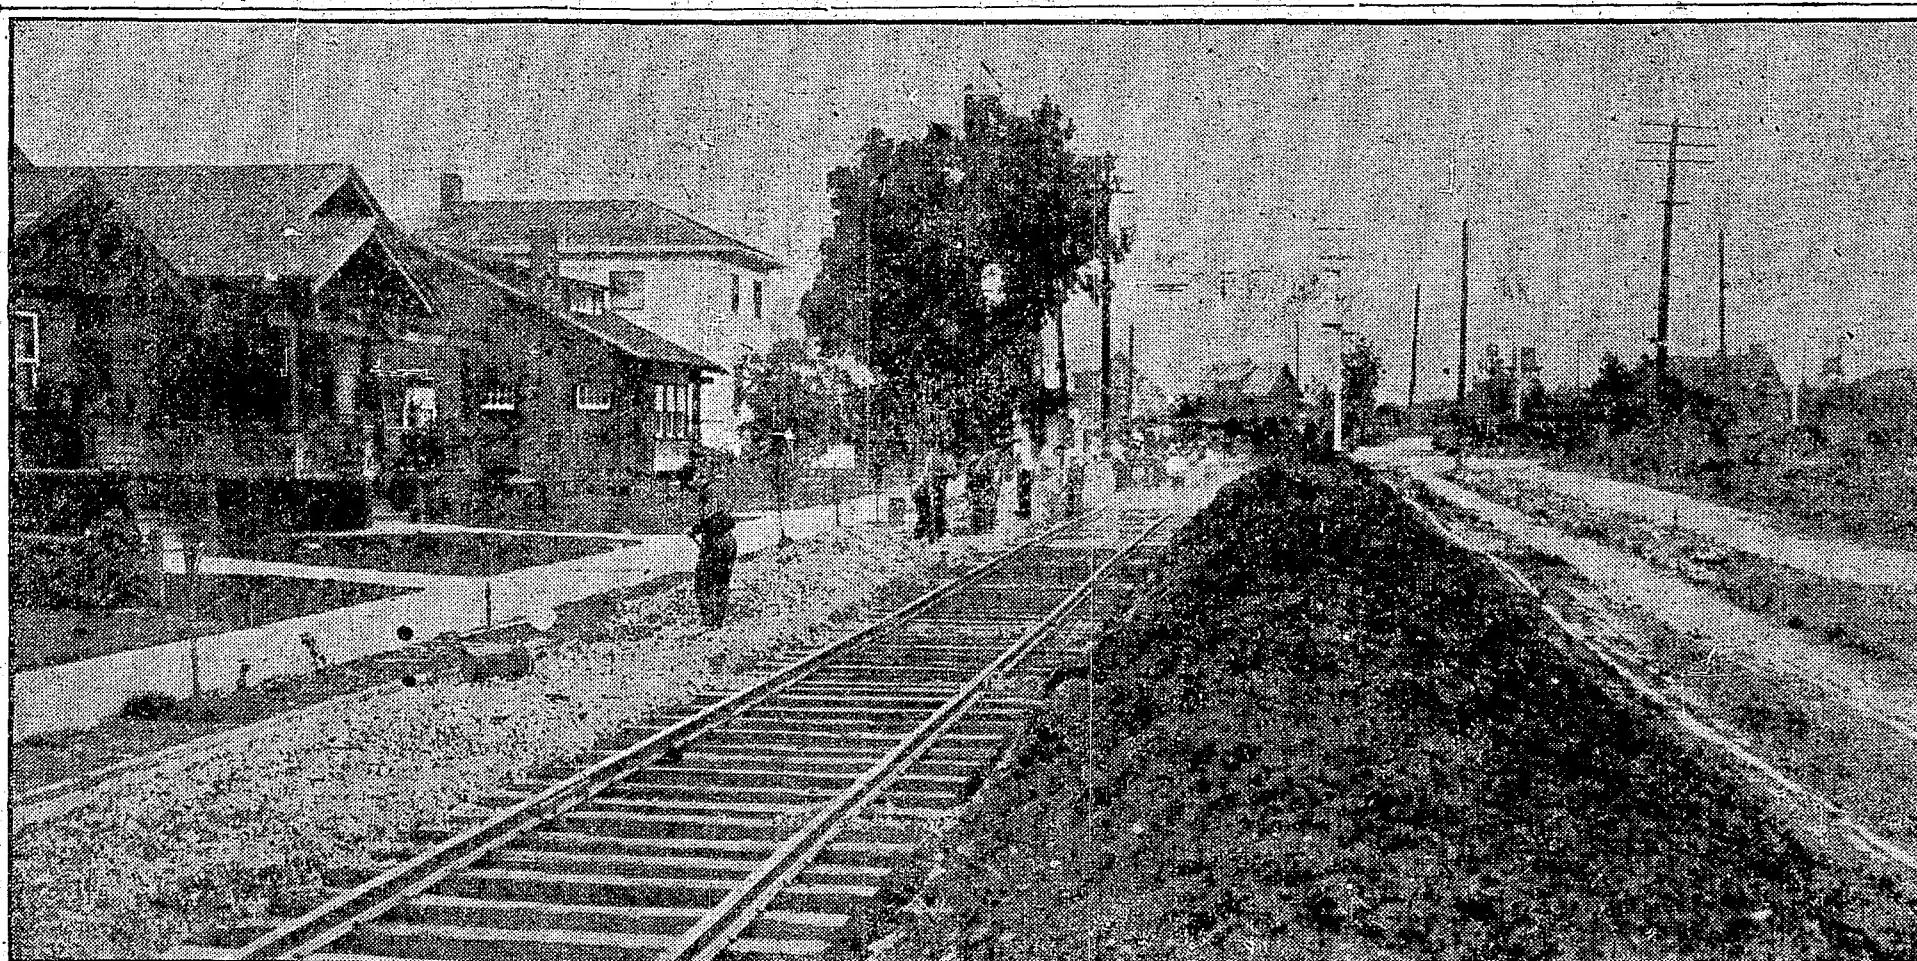

What is of equal, if not greater importance to Oakland at large is the semi-official report that as soon as the Southern Pacific company's engineers and construction gangs complete the local interurban electric line system the electrification of one of the steam lines running to San Jose will be taken up and pushed through as rapidly as possible with the view of meeting, if not forestalling, the construction of the Key Route line to that city. Work on the latter is now progressing.

The intention of the Southern Pacific company to electrify the lines following the southern bay horseshoe from San Francisco to Oakland and passing through the various bay shore towns between San Jose and the two cities named was announced two years ago, and the plans for the work have been pushed ahead as rapidly as possible. They are evidently ready to be put into effect.

OAKLAND AS A TRADING CENTER.

This improvement in the southern bay shore and interurban transportation service will add immensely to Oakland business importance. For improved traffic facilities between this city and the numerous communities along the east bay shore and in Contra Costa, Santa Clara and neighboring counties contribute greatly to its advantage and benefit as a trade center. Oakland has been for three years or more the trading center for a population of at least 500,000. And the number of people trading in Oakland is steadily increasing. The extension of these interurban electric railway systems will naturally increase the number of the trading population much more rapidly in the future than it has in the past.

CONSTRUCTION WORK IN PROGRESS ON THE OAKLAND AND ANTIOCH RAILROAD ALONG SHAFTER AVENUE.

BIG BUILDINGS STILL IN VOGUE

Construction of Structures Costing at Least $4,500,000 Now in Progress.

The applications for building permits filed during the past week aggregate in value $212,730. Included in the list is the application of the Loeb Realty Company for a permit to erect a three-story brick, steel and concrete theater and office building at the northwest corner of Twelfth and Franklin streets, on the former site of the Hotel Merritt and the business blocks standing between that caravansary and the new building of the Oakland Bank of Savings. The old buildings were entirely out of date and they have been razed to their very foundations. The main portion of the new, modern block to be erected under the building permit applied for will be devoted to vaudeville, in accordance with the purposes announced by the owners when the property was bought several months ago.

FAITH IN OAKLAND'S PROSPERITY.

Beginning the actual erection of this new playhouse emphasizes the fact that Oakland is not only still growing, but that shrewd investors and keen business managers whose foresight is quite as long as their hindsight have unlimited confidence in the continued growth and prosperity of the city in the future. They are backing their faith with their money.

BIG MONEY IN BIG BUILDINGS.

The final adoption by the First Presbyterian church committee of the places for a new house of worship to be erected of stone, steel and concrete at the northwest corner of Broadway and Twenty-sixth street, which it is estimated will cost $156,000, and for the construction of which contractors are about to be invited to submit their bids in competition, emphasizes the fact that the end of the construction of certain permanent edifices in Oakland is not far sighted. The new church at Twenty-sixth and Broadway and the new theater at Twelfth and Franklin bring up the total cost of imposing permanent buildings now in course of construction in this city to the enormous sum of approximately $4,500,000.

But in the matter of developments of this character Oakland is, in fact, only just beginning to get its second wind, for there are lots of other building enterprises of a durable and costly nature that are being matured, to be carried out as rapidly as possible with the view of meeting, if not forestalling, the construction of the Key Route line to that city. Work on the latter is now progressing.

BIG MONEY IN BIG BUILDINGS.

The final adoption by the First Presbyterian church committee of the places for a new house of worship to be erected of stone, steel and concrete at the northwest corner of Broadway and Twenty-sixth street, which it is estimated will cost $156,000, and for the construction of which contractors are about to be invited to submit their bids in competition, emphasizes the fact that the end of the construction of certain permanent edifices in Oakland is not far sighted. The new church at Twenty-sixth and Broadway and the new theater at Twelfth and Franklin bring up the total cost of imposing permanent buildings now in course of construction in this city to the enormous sum of approximately $4,500,000.

BRIDAL COUPLE USURP PULLMAN STATEROOM

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 28.—Alfred Reed, a prominent business man of this city, and his wife, Mrs. Bessie Reed, have brought suit in the United States circuit court against the Pullman Company, asking $5000 damages.

Mr. and Mrs. Reed allege that the conductor and porter of a Pullman car permitted a bridal pair to steal their stateroom, and that the bride and bridegroom paid no attention to repeated requests to vacate. The Reeds were compelled to sit up all night, and the following morning the Reeds will file as a consequence.

Mr. and Mrs. Reed say they had engaged a stateroom on the train from Sacramento, Cal., on their way home.

At Truckee a bridal pair boarded the train and took possession of the Reed stateroom. Mr. and Mrs. Reed entered the stateroom to retire and found the pair clasped in each other's arms. Mr. Reed pleaded with the pair to vacate the room, but "it was like talking to a stone wall," the plaintiffs allege.

Reed appealed to the conductor and porter who, Reed alleges, became insincere.

MAN LOVING WIFE OF ANOTHER, SHOOTS HER

BLOOMSBURG, Pa., Oct. 28.—Lowrey Faux, a widower, 65 years old, went to the home of Mrs. Alfred Evans, 26 years old, in the presence of her husband and shot her. Then he committed suicide. The woman's 6-year-old daughter witnessed the crime.

Faux was in love with the woman. Although seriously wounded in the head, she was able to tell the story of the shooting.

According to Mrs. Evans, Faux had no sooner reached her house than he declared, "You don't care for me as you once did," to which she replied, "You're right, I like you as well as ever."

"You don't care for me, going to kill you," he replied. Then he threw down and fired. Thinking she was dead, he left the room and killed himself.

Mrs. Evans' daughter summoned neighbors.

RUNAWAY HORSE SCALPS HUCKSTER; HE WILL LIVE

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28.—Charles Heppeler, a huckster, 1003 Fox street, Camden, is in the Pennsylvania hospital, scalped by a runaway horse which stepped on his head.

The sharp hoof of the frightened animal grazed Heppeler's skull when he was thrown from the driver's seat, to the ground at Spruce and Dock streets.

The hair and scalp were cut from his head as cleanly as though with tomahawk or surgeon's knife.

At the hospital the scalp was carefully shaved and then placed back on the patient's head. With care it was stitched back in place. The surgeons believe Heppeler will live.

MANY 'MICAWBERS' ARE FOUND BY SOCIETY

Annual Conference of State Charities and Corrections Held Across Bay.

ALCOHOL SAID TO BE CAUSE OF ALL POVERTY

Meat Declared to Be Essential for Nourishment, as Milk Without Substitute.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 28.—"What the applicants expect from the relief society" as a basis for discussion at the annual conference of the State Charities and Corrections in the First Unitarian church today brought forth the statement from Miss Mary Kidder, who presided, that there were many "Micawbers" registered under aliases at the relief society offices. On the question of food standards of self-supporting poor persons, Mrs. J. E. Gaffa declared that meat was essential for the best results and that starch foods, such as rice, meal and potatoes, could not be a basis for nourishment, while it was almost impossible to provide a substitute for milk.

Dr. Morton Gibbons said that alcohol was responsible to a great extent for the low standard of living among the poorer element classes and that it was also a cause of most of the extreme poverty.

INCREASE IN INSANITY.

W. Almon Gates, in the discussion of the question, said the records of the state hospitals for the insane would prove that a large increase of the number of inmates of the institutions was due to the drinking of a cheap grade of red wine which was furnished them at the vineyards where they worked and which, with bread, was their food.

Mrs. Cora Bethel of San Jose, in telling of the charitable work in her city, said that one of her dependents solved the problem by living on $4 a month. He is provided with 150 pounds of prunes each year and a pint of milk each day.

At the beginning of the afternoon session the following committees were appointed:

On time and place of next conference—W. A. Gates, Mrs. Cora Bethel, Dr. Jesse Polkett and C. E. Ladd.

Organization—Rev. Bradford Leavitt, Miss Anna Beaver, Mrs. Frances B. Lemon, Mrs. O. F. Lever and Miss Virginia Finch.

Resolutions—Thomas Hayden, Mrs. C. E. Estrella, S. J. Small and Miss Katherine Felton.

HEALTH CONDITIONS.

The afternoon was devoted to a discussion of housing and health conditions, with a paper by Dr. Langley Porter and stereopticon illustrations by Alice S. Griffith and Professor John Galen Howard.

"What the Associated Charities Means to San Francisco" was the subject for the evening session.

MARKED ADVANCE.

Even in the single twelve-month period from August, 1910, to August, 1911, a large number of articles show a marked advance in prices.

Coffee, for example, advanced, as already indicated, showed an average of 4.4 cents per pound in August, 1911, a decade ago; India rubber, an average of $3.4 cents per pound in August, 1911, against 46.9 cents per pound in August, 1910; clothing wool, 22.9 cents per pound in August, 1911, against 12 cents per pound in August, 1910; combing wool,

2.4 cents per pound in August of the present year, against 18.8 cents in August, 1911, against 18.4 cents per pound in August, 1910; hemp, $21.10 per ton in August, 1911; hosiery, 48¢ per pound in August, 1911, against $21.64 per pound in August, 1910; tin plates, 2.9 cents per pound in August, 1911, against 7.7 cents per pound in Au-

gust, 1911, against 3.1 cents per pound in August, 1910; tin bars, blocks, etc., 41.2 cents per pound in August, 1911, against 26.5 cents a pound in August, 1910, and tea, 18.2 cents a pound in August of the current year, against 18.3 cents a pound in the corresponding month a decade ago.

Statistics Issued by Government Board Show Other Nations Face Problem.

ADVANCE IN PRICES IS REPORTED WIDESPREAD

Values Soar Higher and Higher as the Years Go By.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—That prices have advanced in other parts of the world as well as in the United States is evidenced by a statement prepared by the bureau of statistics, department of commerce and labor, comparing import prices at the present time with those of certain earlier years. The import figures of the United States government represent, under existing law and regulations, the prices of the articles in question in the wholesale markets of the country from which imported and a comparison, therefore, of the average import prices of the principal articles imported at the present time compared with those of corresponding periods in earlier years indicates, in some degree at least, the fluctuation in prices in the countries from which these articles are imported.

This comparison of prices is rendered practicable by reason of the fact that the bureau of statistics publishes in its summary of commerce and finance a table showing the monthly average import prices of the principal articles brought into the country, and states at the head of the table the value of the goods imported and their value in the foreign markets.

These statements of average import prices are obtained by dividing the quantity with value for the period in question, or, in other words, by dividing the stated quantity of the article under consideration into the stated value thereof and thus determining the import value per unit of quantity.

ADVANCE PRICES.

This table shows, for example, the average price of coffee imported in August, 1911, as 11.8 cents per pound, against 6.4 cents per pound in August, 1901, a decade ago; India rubber, an average of $3.4 cents per pound in August, 1911, against 46.9 cents per pound in August, 1910; clothing wool, 22.9 cents per pound in August, 1911, against 12 cents per
